BY THE CITIZEN COMPANY.

Every Afternoon Except Sundays.

The Semi-Weekly Citizen is issued Tuesdays and Fridays in advance.

MONDAY, JUNE 13, 1898.

We trust no one will be so thoughtless as to mention that in the center, an engaged in lambasting the enemy.

"Rubber pouches for the Second regiment come today. These are squares of rubber, with an opening in the center, through which the head passes."

Ponchos, gentlemen proofreaders of the press. Ponchos, a Spanish-American word meaning indolent, perhaps because the poncho is the lazy man's overcoat—easily put on.

A Pittsburg university has conferred the degree of LL. D. on Admiral Dewey on the ground that "Pittsburg armor plate is on Dewey's vessels, and a member of the faculty manufactured some of Dewey's range finders."

This is the explanation given, at all events, by the New York Sun says the title was accorded because Dewey "lambasted the Lurking Dons," which is more in line with the fitness of things.

The monitor Monterey has not made a propitious start on her way to the Philippines. Arriving at San Diego, California, Friday, she left Saturday afternoon after taking on coal, several tons of which slipped off the deck on the way down from San Francisco. Her commander is reported to have said at San Diego that it was "about as near" to Honolulu by way of San Diego as by the direct. True, but not quite, and a day or two in arriving at Manila might mean a great deal to Admiral Dewey.

When the American marines landed in Guantanamo Bay Saturday they burned the first collection of houses they came upon—all deserted—in a little village several miles from the town of Guantanamo proper. This was not done, we may be sure, out of wantonness, but largely as a sanitary precaution, and it is probable that if every one of the filthy Cuban towns is razed to ashes as fast as control is obtained by our troops, there will be, in the end, a gain. In no other way can these fever breeding places be so effectually sweetened. Under the new order of things in store for Cuba, other and better town sites will probably be selected, and the cost of rebuilding with a proper and necessary regard for sanitary precautions will hardly be greater than the cost of making the old towns habitable. It would seem like a calamity to burn Havana, but a large part of it might be sacrificed without actual loss in the long run.

The Campaign. The plan of campaign for the freedom of Cuba seems to be to send a large force of troops to Guantanamo bay, in which there is plenty of room for the largest vessels. Guantanamo, where the flag was hoisted on Saturday, is a small town about 40 miles east of Santiago on the southeast coast of Cuba, and is connected by railroad with every important town and city on the island. It will be an easy matter to land troops and supplies there, and to make it the base of future operations. From that point Santiago can be surrounded at the leisure of General Shafter, through co-operation with the insurgents or without them, and gradually drawing the lines closer, it will be only a question of time when the city must give up and the Spanish evacuate. What will become of the Spanish fleet is an interesting question. It is said that Admiral Cervera has been notified by our government that if he blows up the ships of his squadron the bill will be charged to Spain and collected in the shape of part of the war indemnity; but it is doubtful if this threat deters him from preventing five or six million dollars' worth of cruisers from falling into our hands.

With the fall of Santiago practically two-thirds of the island of Cuba comes under Cuban and American control. With the railroad that runs the length of Cuba repaired it will not be difficult to transport any number of soldiers and heavy cannon towards the western end of the island, almost regardless of the rainy season. Then the investment of Havana can begin at the pleasure of the army and navy authorities. The campaign is proceeding on safe lines and rapidly enough. The one blunder of the war so far seems to be the failure to bombard the defenses of Havana sufficiently, from time to time, to prevent their being so greatly strengthened as reports say they have been.

The New Policy. The Boston Herald thinks it is not at all sure that the end of the taxes now to be put upon the people will come with the end of the war. The tariff has proved to be less reliable for revenue than those who have had and are likely to have in the future the control of it had expected. The shortcoming of the Dingley tariff proves this; and it adds: "Under the new policy the government has adopted, its normal outlay must be much greater than it has been. We are to have a great navy to maintain in any event; our army must be increased in numbers; the acquisition to the territory of the nation contemplated must add much to the expense of the government. Our ways have parted to an extent that compels permanent as well as much increased present taxation."

We did not know that the government had adopted a new policy, but there are signs that it is drifting into a new policy without asking the people—the true source of all power in a republic—whether they approve of the change. The President is urging the acquisition of Hawaii as a war measure, though it is by no means certain that such an important move would be voted for by the people and though all attempts so far to make the people's representatives in Congress vote for it have failed. He is urging it, too, on an argument that lacks something of frankness, in that we already have at Hawaii, or can at once secure, all that

AT CAMP CUBA LIBRE

From the Jacksonville Citizen.

The First North Carolina is now pretty well uniformed, and will soon be in as good shape as any regiment in camp.

One of the most attractive features of the camp is the excellent vocal music frequently furnished by the members of the North Carolina regiment.

The cooks of the First North Carolina expect to receive Buzzsaw stoves today, this being the kind used by the regular army and issued by the government.

Separate mail facilities were yesterday provided for the First North Carolina, and Rev. A. A. Pruden, chaplain of the regiment, has become postmaster.

One hundred tons of hay was being delivered to the First North Carolina yesterday by the C. B. Rogers company. A bale is to be furnished to each man, for use upon which to sleep.

It has not as yet been decided when the court martial will convene that is to try two members of the First North Carolina who are charged with desertion, and who were brought back from Santiago, Cuba, in a suspicious manner.

The Cuba Libre Review will make its appearance Thursday, and will be issued daily thereafter. Private G. S. Nirdlinger of Company G, Fourth Virginia, will be the editor, and Sergeant Bell of the same company will be business manager. Nirdlinger is a well known newspaper man, and for nine months acted as correspondent of a New York paper in Cuba.

Provisioners around the city waterworks at night will be likely to find it very unhealthy business if it shall be continued. It is not until about 9 o'clock that the water is turned on.

The first brigade review that has been held since the encampment of the volunteer troops in this city was seen yesterday. Three thousand men filed past the brigade commander, General Burt, who was supported by his staff and by Colonel Guilan, adjutant and newspaper man, and for nine months acted as correspondent of a New York paper in Cuba.

Our Mascot. From the Charlotte Observer. It is worth an admission fee to hear the roll call of Company M, First Wisconsin. It is composed wholly of Poles. Sergeant and Herdman is still on duty, and, so far as can be learned, his application for discharge has not yet been approved.

The Asheville boys have the prize mascot. When I visited the company this morning I found First Sergeant Shipley busily engaged with a billiard table. He is a very dignified William, and seems to realize his honorable position.

Make 'Em Hot. From the Raleigh News and Observer. Col. Julian S. Carr left for home last night. Before going he wrote a letter to the men and officers of the First North Carolina regiment, explaining that the War Department would not permit him to advance them a month's pay as he had intended to do.

This aroused the fighting blood of North Carolina like a flash. Col. Armfield, always jealous of his men and the good name of his State, at once sent a letter demanding names and particulars upon which the charges against his regiment are based.

Had Gen. Arnold been spending his time in camp, as he is reported to have done, he would not have known that such charges are unfounded. He is reported to have been spending his time in camp and in the streets of New York, and he would not have known that such charges are unfounded.

THE GRINNING SUPER. More Intrepid by Far Than Our Army at Tampa. From the Chicago Chronicle. Misplaced sympathy often leads to results thoroughly disastrous. A sympathetic supernumerary found this out the other evening at McVicker's. Otis Skinner as the heroic Colonel West had dashed into the mass of cowardly retreating soldiers to turn the tide of the battle of Cedar Creek. A gun exploding near him lodged a small ball of burning powder in his head, which lay smoldering among the hygienic Skinner locks until notified by a super waiting to take his part in the retreat.

PEOPLE. It was one of Mr. Gladstone's rules never to have as a member of his ministry any director in a stock company.

According to John McDonald of the Kansas State Teachers' association, fully 600 out of the 2000 Kansas voters are teachers.

Captain R. C. Clipperton, who is about to retire, after 17 years' service, is British consul at Philadelphia, always advised English residents to become American citizens at the earliest possible moment.

Matthew J. Herron, who has written a new constitution for Maryland, was dishonorably discharged and then drummed out of Camp Wilmer, near Baltimore, for inciting to insurrection. He changed his mind about going to war and tried to change the minds of his company.

St. Louis has distinguished herself by sending to the front what her newspapers claim to be the youngest soldiers in their respective branches of service. Henry Green, a wonderfully well developed lad of 14, is on the cruiser Montgomery. For years he was under daily athletic training. The soldier boy is Percy Moore, aged 13, who has been commissioned lieutenant in the First Missouri volunteers.

LATEST FROM HAVANA.

A School Girl's Narrative of Conditions in Cuba's Capital.

From the New York Mail and Express. The following is the substance of a letter which was brought from Cuba to New York within the last three days, the authenticity of which is absolutely vouched for by the Mail and Express.

Names are needed, by which we have been 102 years old. She has one daughter, Miss Polly, still living, who is 88 years old. The old lady has several great-grandchildren.

My dear — Our fishermen brought me some papers from New York, and what a lot of lies they contain. My father and all the other officials say that we have food here for twelve months, flour, codfish, beans and groceries, all brought down from New York, and salted meat from Montreal.
