His majesty looked young and spry, and the marks were plain and easily read. He remarked it "August 12th, 1898" and turned it loose to wander round the old home stead where he has so long ranged. What has become of Mijamon McCurry's cooter?

-Durham Sun: Old mother earth is yielding an abundant harvest this year and is making glad the hearts of the toilers. An evidence of this fact is given in the sweet potato produced in the garden of W. T. Regan of East Durham, which gives him and his town a front seat in the potato line. He has brought out of the soil a sweet potato weighing three and a half pounds. This is a potato to brag over.

The wind bew furiously and the fire spread from one building to another intil two barns, a hog house, the wheat and oats granery and the corn crib were all on fire and were consumed with their contents, except horses and cattle. Four hogs were burned, two two-horse wagons, a hay rake, a reaper and binder, a good many farming ols, 200 bushels of wheat and about 00 bushels of oats and some cron.

-Salisbury Sun: James Bassinger, who is in the city today, tells us that the Shaver gold mine, in Morgan township, is now being worked again and is yielding a bountiful supply of rich ore. It was worked some time ago but the owners sus-pended work until they finished their This done they have returned to the mine and are sinking one of the shafts deeper. OUR NEW CITIZENS. The Devil Dance as it is Observed in From the Westminster Gazette.

The Davil dance of the rhilippines monies, has, it is said been witnessed by only one white man, an American who speaks the language like a native A Big Yield of Wheat and was disguised as a trader from to the orgie. The dancer, a priest is dressed in a curious costume, wear ing a high, conical white cap, with red tassel on his head, a long white robe from neck to ankle, and on it is mbroidered representations of oddesses of smallpox, murder and holera. Massive silver bangles encirle his ankles, and in his right hand h arries a spear and a bow, the string of which when struck give out a dul oming note, while in his other han is a sickle shaped sacrificial knife with curious emblems engraved on the blade. The dancer begins singing in feet as the music of the tomtoms be comes wilder, and with a yell and shrick of laughter, with outstretche arms and quivering muscles he pro-claims himself the deity, at the sam ime cutting and hacking at himself with the knife so that his blood mingles with that of the sacrifices which are offered to him. During his excite ment the worshippers ask questions and receive more or less oracular re plies. Sometimes, indeed, the dance inflicts fatal wounds on himself A fa more awful phase, however, is the dancing of the Order of the Pandietas the sorcerers who believe that mission is to kill Christians. From the Boston Herald. Mr. Smalley continues his reminis censes of Gladstone in the September Harper's and dwells extensively on Mrs. Gladstone's strong influence over her distinguished husband, not only in lomestic, but in public affairs. In the garden at Hawarden one evening Mr. Gladstone talked long and earnestly with a visitor on a political topic in which they were mutually interested It was getting late, and Mrs. Gladstone appeared upon the scene. "You know, William," said she, 'that you have to speak tomorrow, and it is very damp. don't you think you ought to go in?"

"Yes," he replied; "quite time"—then with one of those expressions of humor not frequent on his face or in his voice, he said to his visitor, softly, "We wil take another turn to vindicate our in dependence"; and they did. Then Mrs.

Gladstone had her way. LEGAL BLANKS.
