New York, March 29 .- A World corespondent who interviewed President Kruger at Pretoria February 7 says: Kruger explained at length the efforts which the British authorities made to seal up Delagoa bay and then told of a message he sent Salisbury oncerning it. He said he refused to have any more correspondence with hamberlain, but frequently cabled Salisbury. In one cablegram he asked Salisbury to allow foodstuffs to enter through Delagos bay or they would be compelled to feed 3000 British prisonrs in Pretoria on maize porridge. Salisbury did not reply, but a message signed Chamberlain explained that the embargo on foodstuffs had been raised Kruger laughed heartily when he told that the Chamberlain message telegraphed back to Salisbury with the query, "Is this true" The president added: "We have not from Chamberlain since," and brase aughed for fully half a minute. Secretary Reitz then told of the sec-ond series of communications between the president and Salisbury concerning prisoners who were taken by th British at Douglass, Cape Colony, and who, although they became citizens of the Orange Free State, were being tried at Capetown for high treason, The president sent a cablegram directly to Salisbury demanding that the Douglass prisoners be treated only as prisoners of war and not as treasonable subjects of her majesty, and stated that if they were executed reprisals would be made. Salisbury replied that if one of the Pretoria prisoners was injured both President Steyn and President Kruger would be hanged at the conclusion of The president thought that the war was harsh language to use, and according to Reitz' statement replied in ef-

Launa Gudger and others, who live near by to the scene, but the latter could no render any assistance, as the lady was only able to say that the negro had run to the rear of the Montford school building and disappeared, she was too badly trightened to give notice to his appearance, and could give no description of him.
