Mrs. Coker's Tea for Mrs. Dilworth.
Mrs. William Johnstone Coker opened her handsome home on French Broad avenue yesterday afternoon with a tea given in honor of her sister-in-law Mrs. G. N. Dilworth, Jr., of Texas, who has recently come to Asheville.

The entire first floor of the Coker residence was thrown open for the occasion and presented a beautiful appearance with its lavish decoration of palms, southern shrubs and fragrant cut flowers. Mrs. Coker received her guests in the front parlor and wore a becoming gown of soft pink crepe. She was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Dilworth whose costume was of black silk and rare old lace. Mrs. G. N. Dilworth, the honoree wore a charming frock of blue silk, hand embroidered and lace trimmed.

Mrs. Phil Coker's gown was fashioned of white satin and chiffon.

Other friends and relatives of the hostess who gave valuable aid in making the function such a signal success were Mrs. J. A. Burroughs, Mrs. Hilda Von Ruck, and Mrs. Robert Johnstone who greeted callers in the hall and Mrs. Frank Chapman, Miss Lillian Reynolds, Miss Rosa Chapman and Mrs. Herbert Reynolds in the library. A pleasing and novel feature of the decorations was the tropical arrangement of vines, grapes and various southern fruits festooned over an alcove devoted to the serving of a delicious punch made from the pure juices of fresh fruits and dispensed by two attractive young ladies in charming costumes. Miss Georgia Danna and Miss Matilda Coker.

The dining room, which was green and white, was presided over by Mrs. W. W. Barnard, assisted by Miss Besie Reynolds, Miss Julia Barnard, Miss Helen and Theresa Chapman.

The table, with its exquisite lace cover and arrangement of green candies, cut glass vases, bride's roses, satin and tulle streamers descending from the chandelier, proved a pleasing central feature in a room charming in every particular.

A gay musical program by Connell's orchestra enlivened the pleasures of the afternoon, the house being crowded with callers during the receiving hours, which were from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Lee-Jackson Tea a Great Success.
The Lee-Jackson tea given by the Daughters of the Confederacy last evening at the Y. M. C. A. was a pronounced success. The auditorium was decorated in red and white bunting with the Confederate flag placed in every available wall space.

The portraits of Lee and Jackson occupied the places of honor, these, too, draped in the flag done to the hearts of every true Southerner.

The central table was decorated in the Confederate colors of red and white and laden with good old-fashioned 1860 dishes. The costumes of the daughters were picturesque and represented faithfully the styles obtaining at that period, as most of them were heroines resurrected from stored treasures of history.

General Ray introduced the speakers of the evening, who were Colonel Bingham and Judge Henry B. Stevens. Colonel Bingham made a most interesting talk on General Lee, giving personal reminiscences. Judge Stevens was enthusiastic in his admiration of Jackson, both as a man and a soldier.

An old-fashioned band of fiddlers played quaint, out-of-date tunes, which were most enjoyable. A large number of Asheville veterans were present and perhaps 300 townspeople.

Miss Chapman's Art Tea.
An out of town affair which created a great deal of interest was the art tea given by Miss Rose Chapman at her country place, Holmcroft, Friday afternoon. Miss Chapman has recently opened an arts and crafts studio and work shop. Handmade and hand carved furniture of artistic and original designs was exhibited to a throng of visitors drawn from the Arden, Skyland and Fletcher neighborhoods as well as from Asheville. A hundred or more of Miss Chapman's friends called during the afternoon to inspect the results of her latest artistic enterprise and to enjoy her hospitality which was dispensed in a delightfully informal manner. The living room of Holmcroft has been converted into a studio for the present, and the chairs, window seats, tables, cupboards, dressing tables, chairs, cupboards, book cases, etc., arranged there for inspection, received enthusiastic admiration, one piece, a cabinet of superb workmanship, deserving especial mention, the wood of finest grained native oak, elaborately carved by a skillful artist and fitted with enduring compartments and shelves, with doors ornamented with leaded panes.

Miss Chapman was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Frank Chapman, Mrs. John Carroll, Miss Beanie Reynolds, Miss Nell Carmichael and the Misses Chapman.

Jesse Yates Entertains.
Master Jesse Graves Yates entertained several of his little friends Friday afternoon, at his residence on Flint street, the occasion being his sixth birthday. Toys, fruits and candies were served in the dining room. Then the small host excused himself and at the call of a whistle the guests followed to the play room, where they found Jesse in costume as Santa Claus. From a tree he dispensed small gifts to each, which was a surprise.

Surprise Marriage.
A marriage which came as a great surprise to the friends of the young couple was that of Mr. Horace Buckner and Miss Ella Idelle Maxwell on Wednesday evening, at the residence of Rev. J. A.
