

SOCIAL & PERSONAL

The sub-graduates of the High School gave a very pretty and original dance in honor of the senior class Saturday evening. The costumes which were made by the young ladies were exceptionally beautiful and correct in detail and their powdered hair only accentuated their youth and was very becoming. Madeline DePlanck was asked to decline about the most correct and prettiest costumes, and in turn asked that the sisters all of whom enjoyed the party, to vote on the delicate matter. The costumes were all so pretty that a decision was difficult, but finally Madeline DePlanck's prize of books were won by Miss Mary Spottwood, a resident student from Florida, who wore a boy's costume, and by Miss Genevieve Canner, who wore a girl's costume. The minstrel and Virginia reel were danced and after the dance was over the company repaired to the refreshment, where a supper was given. The decorations in the rooms used were of autumn leaves and Jack O'Lanterns. The hostesses were: Misses Florence Martin, Annie Baker Gaskell, Martha Woodbridge, Janie Jones, Ruth Grey, Frances Hill, Helen Briggs, and Katherine Ommannay. There were seventeen seniors.

The Women's club held its semi-monthly meeting yesterday afternoon. Two gentlemen of Verona, which is being read by the club, was continued under the leadership of Mrs. H. Elizabeth Bolton.

The wedding of Miss Arline Stockton and Mr. J. R. Clements takes place today at the home of Mrs. M. C. Stockton, on Morrison avenue, at noon. Dr. R. F. Campbell will officiate and the wedding will take place in the presence of a few intimate friends of the family.

The wedding of Miss Mildred Bethel Hill, daughter of Mrs. M. L. Hill, to Mr. Sydney Oswald Izlar takes place tomorrow evening at Chateaux Loretta, Hot Springs, and will be attended by a number of Asheville people. Miss Hill is a niece of Mr. J. E. Rumbaugh, of this city.

Miss Carrie May Brown entertains this afternoon with a bridge party at her home on Haywood street.

The Y. W. C. A. membership campaign closed Saturday evening with particularly gratifying results, a total of 184 one-dollar members have been secured and eight sustaining, or five-dollar members. Mrs. McEwen's team led with 72 points; Miss Hickock's second, with 52 points; and the three were: Miss Fords, 30; Miss Barnard, 27; and Miss Ramsey, 23. The study club meets this evening under Miss Ingersoll, the program being a preliminary study of early English history. There will be talks by different members on the Anglo-Saxon period, the Arthurian legends and the work of the Druids.

Little Miss Alma Hawthorne gave a Halloween party Saturday evening which was one of the ghostliest of the juvenile parties. The guests were received by a witch under which disguise the hostess invited them to enter and handed them over a small ghost who entertained them until the hostess was ready to direct the revel. The house by the use of autumn leaves was turned into a dim native forest, lighted only by Jack O'Lanterns. The children played games. In the grain game the prize, a silver thimble, was won by little Miss Eugenia Cushing. The prize in the peanut game was won by little Miss Louise Jackson. The souvenirs were enclosed in a package of crepe paper. The guests were Misses Elsie Alexander, Mary Wiley, Miriam Reynolds, Florence James, Sarah McCloud, Agnes Lawrence, Sarah Givon, Kathleen Oliver, Mary Beall, Margaret and Louise Jackson, Pauline Moore, Eugenia Cushing, F. A. Sumner, Elizabeth Hyde, Mary Lorick and Agnes Lallanée.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Tighe entertained the teachers of the city schools Saturday evening with a characteristic Halloween party. The lights were lowered and the illuminations were chiefly the light that filtered through the eyes of cats, Jack O'Lanterns, etc. A sign on which was painted a large black cat warned the guests as they entered that bad luck would follow.
