In their opinion the danger mark, if there actually has been one during several months past, has been left astern They give those reasons for their predictions of plentifut money:

Primarlly, the banks saw what looked like a money shortage coming several months ago. They knew they could expect no help from the United States treasury such as they got in 1908, and prepared themselves. They piled up gold, built up reserves and cut down risky loans and bonds of other securities which might not be easy to sell quickly have been turned into money. New loans have been closely scrutinized.
