Miss Beth Arbogast entertained with a dinner dance last evening at her residence in Montford street, in honor of her house guest, Miss Mary Yeager of Marlinton, Va. Miss Yeager was an attractive visitor of last winter at which time she was very popular in the younger set. The residence was attractively decorated the color scheme being red and white. Christmas carols were used profusely in the decoration of the table which was illuminated by numbers of candles shaded with red. The place cards were unipue, and consisted of large red chrysanthemums in the heart of which was partially concealed small mirrors, and the guests in seeking their places were confronted by their mirrored faces. The dance followed the dinner and lasted until late in the evening. Miss Mary Garden is to play in this state in April, and her manager would have liked to present her in "Sappho" in Asheville, with the full company, costumes, etc., as presented in New York and the larger cities, but the guarantee of $2,000, put a quietus on any aspirations in that direction. If the seats could be sold for $2.50, $1.50, and on down to fifty cents in the gallery, and every seat sold, there would have been a surplus of about two hundred dollars to cover expenses of Auditorium, lights, etc., with a possible risk of not selling out the entire house. Miss Garden is rated as one of the most beautiful women in grand opera, probably the best actress, while her voice is not on a par with Tetrazzini it is very fine. Perhaps some of the music lovers of Asheville will journey to Charlotte or Raleigh in the spring for the occasion.

BETROTHED COUPLE NOT SUICIDES IS BELIEF

So Far, However, No Evidence Has Been Adduced to Show How Poisoned

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 2.—The fact that he had in his pocket at the time of his death a railroad mileage book considered by state's Attorney David A. Robb, good reason to believe that Charles E. Twiggs, of Kessler, W. Va., did not commit suicide.

The relatives and friends of Miss Grace Elosser are equally positive that she was not a victim of self-murder.

The authorities are positive only that the dead bodies of these two, who were to have been married last night, were found seated on a sofa in the parlors of the Elosser home by the girl's mother on Sunday afternoon; that they died from the effects of poison, that the poison was cyanide of potassium, of which the man swallowed more than did the girl. They are to examine the remainder of a box of candy from which all the members of the Elosser family are said to have eaten. They will also test some chewing gum found in the house. The funerals of the two victims will occur tomorrow.
