

Society and Personal

Riverside looked more festive yesterday afternoon than it has since the dear departed horse show, for which at this season of the year one was saving one's best gown and hat. There were any number of carriages and automobiles and the grand stand was crowded. Everyone seemed to be interested and whether they knew baseball or not, it was an opportunity to do something, and to wear pretty gowns. This afternoon will be equally exciting and the park will accommodate another crowd.
