

Society and Personal

One of the most important social events of the spring was the large and beautiful reception given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Arthur M. Galloway at her home, "White Oaks," in honor of her sister, Mrs. A. M. McCullum, of Chicago. The spacious residence was handsomely decorated for the affair. Masses of dogwood were used in the reception and drawn in groups, also many cut flowers of white. In the dining room delicate pink Killarney roses were used exclusively, to which soft ferns made an effective background. The lights were shaded with pink all over the house. Palm and tropical plants were included also in the floral decorations of the various rooms. Mrs. Calloway, wearing a handsome gown of Irish lace and gold cloth, was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. McCullum, who wore a gown of white crepe meteor veiled with black marquisette, with a trimming of jewels in tones of red.

day afternoon by the physical culture class of the Normal and Collegiate Institute quite came to the expectations of those invited, and surpassed that of last year. The drills were given in the little strip of woodland which added to the picturesque effect. Perhaps the most graceful of any of the drills was that of the Greek girls. Their classic garments were most becoming, and a unique feature was the filling of their water jars at a small spring. The queen, also in flowing white draperies, with her attendants, led the procession and was the central figure of the afternoon. The rose drill was very pretty also, real roses being used. The Greek girls playing ball, gave the students an opportunity for graceful posturing and their movements were lithe and beautiful. The annual drill was a most successful and interesting affair, and the two hundred or more people who were present to witness it, literally applauded the students during the afternoon.

The mixed foursome golf tournament will be commenced this afternoon at the Country club, and will be one of the most interesting of the spring tournaments. Mrs. Erwin Sinder will be the hostess of the afternoon. The beautiful weather which has prevailed the latter part of the week will be responsible for a very large gathering of the members this afternoon. It will not be long before the dinner dances will begin to pleasantly punctuate the season. The dinner dances were the social salvation of last summer, and were a most important factor of the social scheme.

The ladies of the Central Methodist church will hold a cake, candy and bread sale this morning at Sawyer's grocery store beginning at 10 o'clock.

Paint, and added three quarts of Oil to each gallon. The Oil gave life and preserved it. Besides—adding the Oil reduced its cost 40 cents a gallon less than other paint. Thirty-five years use in N. A. & S. A. Longman & Martinez, manufacturers, the L. & M. Pure Paints, Varnishes and Paints for every purpose. For sale by Otis Green Hardware Company.
