So large was the crowd which gathered in the court room of Justice of the Peace W. R. Gudger yesterday afternoon to hear the trials of Will Gaspersoon, Tom Praytor, colored, and Wood Hyatt, colored, who are charged with the killing of Aaron Walker, on July 1, toat it was decyided to move the cases to the police court room, where for two hours and a half the evidence in the case of the state against Wood Hyatt was heard. The court room was filled with people anxious to hear the trials and most of them stayed until court was

The state was represented by W. P. Brown; Wells and Swain appeared for Gasperson; H. L. Alston, colored, was Praytor's attorney, and G. Spears Reynolds represented Hyatt. After hearing the greater part of the evidence, the cases were continued until next Saturday at 10 o'clock, the negroes having been held without bail and the white man, with the permission of Mr. Brown, having been re-

The attorney for the state asked for a continuance upon the grounds that he desired the testimony of the car inspector who had inspected the train which is alleged to have killed Walker and the fact that he had been unable to examine Robert Praytor six-year-old son of one of the defen dants. However, he agreed to have the case against Hyatt called if Mr Reynolds would admit for that trial that the car inspector would swear that the train had no blood on it. A number of witnesses for the state were examined, the majority of whom swore that Hyatt had told them that he had no idea that the train killed the deceased although he knew who did do it. The Praytor boy was greatly excited and it was contended prepared by County Treasurer Thomby Mr. Brown that he had been beaten by his parents and his life threatened if he should tell what he knew.
