NEWS AND GOSSIP FROM CAPITAL OF OLD NORTH STATE

Poe's Announcement Draws Attention to Other Probable Candidates.

DIFFERENT IDEAS ON FREIGHT RATES

Considerable Divergence of Opinion Regarding the Refusal of Rates.

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 14.—Clarence Poe, editor of The Progressive Farmer, announces that he has no idea of getting in the race for governor in 1916. It is notable in this connection that two very much talked of eastern men for the democratic candidacy for governor are Hon. John D. Bellamy, former congressman, and Colonel Walker Taylor, prominent business man, both of Wilmington. Of course the local interests will have to fight it out as between the two before the state campaign if either gets under full headway. Both are widely known and popular. A. W. McLean, of Lumberton, is still the most talked of probable candidate. His friends hereabouts say that he is too busy just now writing his history of the Scotch people in the Cape Fear region to take much notice of the freedom with which his name is being used as a candidate for governor. Following the rejection of the proposal by the railroad companies for a reduction of freight rates in North Carolina in settlement of the rate contest on for some time there is a considerable divergence of opinion, some rejoicing at the outcome, others rather non-committal and others avowedly disappointed that the negotiations were so abruptly broken off by the complete rejection that would seem to preclude the possibility of either of the parties at interest renewing negotiations with any degree of self regard. The charge is heard that the dominant really wanted the settlement thwarted to prevent loss of jobbing territory to their particular sections and those who for political reasons really want to see no settlement that does not come through them. That two fatal interests were those adverse politically and those adverse for local interest and desire for commercial advantages over other sections. There are those who have concluded that the interests point advantages that any agreement on a proposition attainable is out of the question. The special session of the legislature and the attitude it will assume is being anticipated with keen interest that is by no means confident of settlement being attained or very radical measures being put through by that body. A charter was issued today for the Miller Manufacturing and Lumber company, of Linwood, Davidson county, capital $50,000 authorized and $24,000 subscribed by J. L. Miller and others for manufacturing furniture, operating saw mills, cotton gins and doing a mercantile business. The corporation commission today approved the plans of the Southern Railroad company for a combination freight and passenger station at Shoals in Surry county. The indications are that the bid of the Tucker estate, of this city, for the old municipal and market building on Fayetteville street will be accepted by the city commission. It was for $90,275 and members of the commission insist that they had expected to receive bids for not less than $100,000 and possibly $125,000. Over $400 was spent in advertising the property, which constitutes an ideal site for a big office building with a department store or something of the sort on the street floor. The property is surrounded by streets assuring ideal light and ventilations for a skyscraper. Governor Craig issued a commission to Judge T. J. Shaw today to hold a one-week term of Mecklenburg county court beginning August 25 in the stead of Judge Duis, who is unwell. A proclamation offering a reward of $100 for James Cameron, colored, was issued today by Governor Craig. The fugitive is wanted in Moore county for the murder of J. A. Blue, a white man, in Moore county, August 11th. Wake county defeated the proposition for a million dollar good roads bond issue at least five to one. Only one precinct in Raleigh voted for it. The vote was very light. Rev. T. W. O'Kelly, pastor of the First Baptist church here, recently declined a call to the presidency of Mercer university, sustained a very serious injury to his hip through a fall at Davis Springs, Hidenite, N. C., where he has gone with his family for his vacation. J. W. Bailey, appointee for the internal revenue collectorship of the Eastern Carolina district here, called on Collector Wheeler Martin, the retiring collector, to begin arrangements for the transfer of the office affairs which will be finally accomplished Friday, the 15th instant. A special examiner also arrived today from the treasury department at Washington to go through the books and make the transfer. Indications are that no changes will be made in the office or field forces for several weeks yet. The civil service examination will take place here Friday also, that will be depended upon to make demerits that are desirable to Mr. Bailey available for appointment, but this cannot be accomplished for thirty or sixty days as the examinations have to go to Washington and the successful ones certified back before Mr. Bailey will have those available from which to select men for appointment.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots. There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as a new prescription ointment—double strength—has been discovered that is guaranteed to remove these homely spots. Simply get an ounce of ointment—double strength—from your druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful complexion. Be sure to ask for the double strength ointment as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

THE BIGGEST STURGEON.

The sturgeon is a distinguished fish. In the time of Edward II it was designated as a royal fish, and even now, those that are caught in the river Thames become the property of the crown. But seldom is the fish caught now in English waters. Consequently the fishing part of the British public is deeply interested in a story that has reached London from the town of Littleport, in Norfolk. Not long ago a sturgeon nine feet nine inches long and weighing 439 pounds was caught in the river Dalph at Welney Washes, a point near Littleport. This fish according to the estimate of an expert, was large enough to provide a fair meal for nearly one thousand people. It had been noticed in the river for a number of days, and attempts were made to shoot it. But the cartridges used were loaded with shot too small. A large net was drawn across the river to prevent the fish escaping down stream. Then a boat was rowed alongside the fish, and, after many failures, a powerful spearhook was driven into it. After a tremendous tussle, says London Tit-Bits, the fish's head was held out of the water long enough for a large firearm to be brought into effective play. That the fish did not escape from the boatmen was due somewhat to the shallowness of the stream at the point of encounter, which rendered ineffective the great size and strength of the victim. Five men had to exert all their powers of lifting and hauling to bring the fish to the dock. The 439-pounder, is however, not a record breaker in English catches. The biggest one ever known to have been captured weighed something over four hundred and sixty pounds, while in the North sea, beyond what are known as the English fishing grounds sturgeons weighing nearly seven hundred and fifty pounds have been caught by trawlers. A peculiar feature of the British catch just described is that the sturgeon is practically extinct on most parts of the British sea coast and in river mouths. It is said on good authority that these fish cross the Atlantic from American waters. The sturgeon's flesh is held in great esteem. Caviar is made from the roe. In the days of King Edward, whenever a sturgeon was caught, its flesh was always reserved for his majesty's table. Western Australia produces more gold than any American state, sends more pearls to Europe than any other country except Ceylon, and is said to have the richest belt of hardwood timber in the world. Recent investigations indicate that the greater part of the diet of the bat consists of mosquitoes, and advantage is being taken of this fact in riding communities in Texas and other southern states of the mosquito pest.
