NEW CONGREGATIONAL MINISTER IS ORDAINED

INTERESTING SERVICE HELD AT TRYON FRIDAY.

Rev. Percival Campbell Morgan Duly Elected Pastor of Church—Many Laymen Present.

On Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock the following pastors convened at the quaint little Congregational church in Tryon for the examination of Rev. Percival Campbell Morgan as to his fitness for ordination as a minister to that community, to which he had been provisionally called in the place of Rev. Joseph L. Daniels, who recently resigned his charge owing to increasing years: Rev. W. H. Hopkins, D. D., Atlanta; Rev. William Ewing, superintendent missionary department Congregational Sunday School Publishing society, Boston; Rev. J. F. Blackburn, superintendent of Sunday school work for Georgia and North Carolina; Rev. E. F. Green, Star, N. C.; Rev. M. A. Martin, Demorest, Ga. Several invitations had been sent to laymen throughout the south, and to members of churches of the Congregational denomination, and letters of regret were received from a number intimating inability to be present. There was a delegation present from the recently organized First Congregational church of this city.

Dr. Daniels was appointed moderator, and he in turn appointed Rev. W. H. Hopkins, Rev. William Ewing, Rev. J. F. Blackburn and Rev. M. A. Martin a board to examine the candidate, these gentlemen appointing Rev. William Ewing to propound the questions. Mr. Morgan was examined at considerable length, as is the custom prior to ordination in the Congregational church, and having been found to be in accord with the doctrines was unanimously recommended for ordination.

The ordination service took place at 8 o'clock in the evening in the same building, the auditorium being filled by members of all the other churches in Tryon, their pastors, with the exception of the pastor of the Baptist church, taking active part in the ceremony. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion, but the ceremony was conducted with marked simplicity and deep solemnity. After the singing of the grand old hymn, "O, God, Our Help in Ages Past," Rev. M. A. Martin, who had acted as scribe at the early meeting in the afternoon, read the minutes of that meeting, and the moderator, Rev. Dr. Daniels, announced the acceptance of Rev. P. C. Morgan as a member of the Congregational ministry. Rev. H. L. Ferguson, pastor of the Methodist church, delivered the invocation, and he was followed by Rev. H. N. Bowne, rector of the Episcopal church, in the reading of the prayer lesson. The sermon was delivered by Rev. W. H. Hopkins, D. D. He dealt with great earnestness and deep feeling on the responsibility attached to the calling which Mr. Morgan had voluntarily taken upon himself, quoting experiences from long service, and dwelling upon the nobility of the work offered in the ministry. His discourse was listened to with rapt attention. At the conclusion of his sermon Rev. J. F. Blackburn tendered the right hand of fellowship, Rev. E. F. Green following with the charge to the pastor.

The speaker took for his text the Proverb, "The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life, and he that winneth souls is wise," using other quotations from the Scriptures to press home his charge, and rarely indeed has an audience been more intensely stirred by an admonition to win souls than was delivered by Mr. Green. His delivery was measured, but without rhetorical effort, and was a simple appeal calculated to stir all the latent desire for winning souls, and to create, where such a desire had not held previously. The appeal was marked by deep earnestness, and reached far beyond the one for whom it was especially delivered, finding an echo in the heart of every one gathered in that hall.

Rev. M. A. Martin was scheduled to deliver the charge to the people, but made a brief address instead, saying that after a ministry of four years in Tryon he felt that any charge from him would be superfluous. He spoke instead at some length of the inspiration that had come into his life through the published works of Rev. Campbell Morgan, Sr., father of the candidate, and expressed the sincere wish that the hope of his son's following in his footsteps might be fully realized. He also referred feelingly to the past ministering of Rev. Dr. Daniels, who had for forty-one years filled the chair of professor of Greek at Olivet college, Michigan, and whose recent years had been devoted to ministering to a loving and beloved congregation. Dr. Hopkins also paid a warm tribute of praise to the beautiful and useful life of the retiring pastor, and congratulated the newly-ordained pastor on the fellowship of such a friend during the early years of his ministry.

An informal reception was tendered to Rev. Mr. Morgan at the close of the service, and he left with his young and charming bride cheered and encouraged by the unanimous welcome accorded him, not only by members of his own church, but also by the members of all the churches in Tryon.

GOV. CRAIG APPOINTS TWO VICE-PRESIDENTS

FORMER ASHEVILLEAN NAMED BY GOVERNOR.

Charles Lathrop Pack is Appointed Vice President of Appalachian Park Association.

Governor Locke Craig, president of the Appalachian Park association, announced yesterday the appointment of Charles Lathrop Pack, of Lakewood, N. J., and Gustaf R. Westfeldt, of New Orleans, as vice presidents of the association. Mr. Pack, as is widely known here, where he resided for a number of years, is greatly interested in all forestry matters, and Mr. Westfeldt, whose summer home is at Rugby Grange, near Fletcher, is thoroughly acquainted with what a national park would mean to Western North Carolina in particular, as well as to the entire south.

The cordial endorsement of the association's aims by these gentlemen is indicated by their letters. Mr. Pack writes as follows:

Lakewood, N. J., Nov. 8, 1913.
Hon. Locke Craig, Raleigh, N. C.:
Dear Governor Craig—Answering your request of November 4, you certainly may use my name as one of the vice presidents of the Appalachian Park association.

I understand the office to be purely honorary and carries no obligations, but I am heartily in accord with the principles and ambitions of the association as explained on the card which you so kindly sent me.

We are going to have a successful conservation congress at Washington, November 13, 19, 20. I am confident that there will be more foresters and people interested in forestry in attendance on this occasion than have ever met in one place before.

We are devoting most of our time at the meeting this year to the questions relating to forestry and water power. I trust that North Carolina will be ably represented.

With kind personal regards and best wishes,
Yours sincerely,
CHARLES LATHROP PACK.
Mr. Westfeldt's letter is as follows:
Fletcher, N. C., Nov. 8, 1913.
My Dear Sir—This morning I have your very kind and interesting communication of the 4th instant. The objects of the Appalachian Park association appeal to me strongly, and I gladly accept the honor of identifying myself with the association.
Yours very sincerely,
GUSTAF R. WESTFELDT.

DOCTORS STRIKE AGAINST GERMAN INSURANCE CO'S

Following Example of Brethren in Great Britain, Band Together.

INSURANCE LAWS DECLARED NOT FAIR

Contract Physicians Prevent People From Choosing Their Own Doctor.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—More than 21,000 German physicians from small town and country districts have decided to follow the example of their professional brethren in Great Britain and declare a "doctor's strike" against sickness and accident insurance associations established under the imperial insurance laws. They complain against certain regulations under the laws, which they say militate against them, particularly one depriving the patient who is a member of an organization of any say in the choice of the physician by whom he desires to be treated. They object, too, to the wide discretion given to the organizations in the matter of contracts with physicians.

The decision to declare a strike against these regulations was reached at a meeting in Berlin of more than 800 delegates from all over Germany.

More than two-thirds of all the Germans are members of insurance organizations, which have their own contract physicians and the remaining medical field is over-crowded. The number of medical students in Germany has risen from 4,300 in 1905 to 14,000, an increase utterly disproportionate to the increase of population. The result is, according to statistics, that half of all the physicians have incomes less than $1,500 yearly.

The doctors of Berlin, Dresden, Hamburg and other large cities did not join in the movement, owing, it was said, to the desperate competition among them.

Berlin is not usually looked upon as an important "seaport" for almost as much water passes daily through its water mains as through the little river Spree on which it is situated. The navigation interests of the German capital are so important, however, that after opening a large new harbor on the eastern side of the city only a few weeks ago at a cost of about $5,000,000 the municipality has just decided to build another one on the western side which will cost almost as much. It will cover, including warehouses and grounds used for harbor purposes, seventy-five acres. This step is taken in anticipation of a very large increase in canal and river shipping after the opening of the new canal at Stettin, now nearing completion.

In view of its improved shipping facilities and enlarged waterways Berlin looks forward to a more rapid development of its manufacturing and commercial interests.

Victor Stoeffler, the aviator, who by setting up a new world's record of 1,375 miles for a day's flight, proved that Germany may be considered a worthy rival of France in aviatorial accomplishments, may lose the $25,000 prize in which it was supposed he had won by the feat. This was offered by the committee in charge of the National Aviation Subscription Fund for a record in excess of the hurricane flight of Brindejone des Moulins from Paris to Warsaw. Objection has been raised in the committee, on the ground that Stoeffler's flight was not made all in one direction like Brindejone's, but that the last 435 miles was made by flying back and forth between Darmstadt and Muelhausen in Alsace. The aviators point out that the general conditions of the contest as adopted and published by the committee only require that 210 miles be covered by continuous flight in a given direction, whereas Stoeffler's flight from Posen to Muelhausen alone covered 650 miles. They are already in arms against the committee for risking the lives of competitors by appointing the long distance competition for the month of October with its foggy nights and short days.

A decision has not been announced but aviators fear that the committee will not allow Stoeffler the grand prize, $25,000, for a flight surpassing Brindejone's, but will award him only $15,000, the prize for the longest flight under the regular conditions.

The "Princely Schaumburg-Lippe Sailing Fleet" has been disbanded. In spite of its high sounding title, this navy consisted only of small sailing boats which plied the inland lake called Steinhuder Meer. It was, however, a historical curiosity.

The Princes of Schaumburg-Lippe have for nearly 150 years owned a little water fortress on an artificial island in the lake and maintained a sailing fleet, at first to provide communications with this castle of refuge in case of an attack but later for the more prosaic use of excursions.

The eighteen seamen who manned the vessels were officials of the little state and wore its queer, antiquated uniform. The reigning prince finally decided that his navy was an expensive luxury and sold it to private persons. A restaurant on the island also belonging to the Prince and kept up a retired official from the little court of Bueckeburg, went under the hammer as well.

Lippe-Detmold is just having a new issue of money. The royal mint in Berlin has struck off an issue of thalers (three-mark pieces worth about 75 cents) bearing a new likeness of Prince Leopold IV. The coins will not be placed in general circulation, but collectors and others desiring them must apply to the princely treasuries or princely savings banks.
