

Mr. W. E. Grainger, of Knoxville, Tennessee, who analyzed our water, writes us as follows:

Mr. C. S. Lowe, Asheville, N. C.

Dear Sir—This is a complete examination of your Warlowe Water, including, in addition to the mineral salts present, a search for undetectable things which might be injurious, and I am glad to say nothing of this kind was found.

Your water is clear and strongly Alkaline; contains an ample quantity of Magnesium Sulphate (which is nothing but Epsom); you have a fair amount of Lithia, also Sodium, Chloride, Sodium and Potassium Carbonates. All these things combined should make the water of great benefit to persons suffering from Kidney, Bladder and Bowel troubles. I should add that the benefit to be derived would depend, of course, on the amount used, and that it be used freely and regularly. Yours truly,

W. E. GRAINGER.

SPRING HATS SHOW THE HAIR.

A good deal more attention will be given to the coiffure this spring than has been the custom for some seasons; for gradually the hat brim is rising to show the hair, and no longer may one venture forth with absolutely unarranged coiffure, secure in the confronting knowledge that the close-fitting hat will tell no secrets, so long as a few becoming waves are pulled over the forehead and ears. This new hat flares up at one side and has the trimming under the brim—a distinctly new note.

A SOUTHLAND FROCK ENCHANTING IN ITS SIMPLICITY.

Palest yellow pussy willow taffeta and cream white voile patterned with a conventional rose design in faint tones make a lovely pansy color scheme for this Palm Beach afternoon frock. The narrow skirt has three shallow flounces slightly lifted at the front, the tunic following the line of these flounces. The sash is of pansy silk ribbon with the ends rounded off in fan effect. A wide-brimmed hat wreathed with tea roses and violets matches the dainty frock.

FEDERALS IN LAST DITCH; VILLA SURE TO WIN

of the Zaragoza brigade which undertook to blast the way through the heavy federal cannonading outside Gomez Palacio. These soldiers were mowed down, killed and wounded by scores, according to the stories told by individual soldiers.

Hell met us at Torreon," said one youthful soldier, as he crawled out of the train with his head, arms and legs wrapped in rags but with a smile on his face.

As the train with its freight of mutilated men neared the city every public conveyance in Chihuahua was ordered to the station.

Pitiable as their condition was, it was noticeable that all of the wounded had been given first aid treatment before they were started northward. This was regarded as marking an advancement in the treatment of wounded in Mexican revolutions.

MORE WOUNDED.

JIMINEZ, Mex., March 27.—(Via El Paso, March 28.)—Two more trainloads of rebel wounded from near Torreon passed through here today en route to Chihuahua. The soldiers reported that there was 300 or more wounded at Bermujillo, unable to find accommodations in the northbound trains. Some of the soldiers were injured too seriously to be transported.

PALACE FOR CARRANZA.

CHIHUAHUA, Mex., March 27.—(Via El Paso, March 28.)—Homes of rich Mexicans exiled from their country by the rebels were stripped of furniture, bric-a-brac and costly decorations today to provide suitable accommodations for General Carranza, who, on his arrival here will be domiciled in a palace, afterwards to be known as the provisional capitol. The building set aside for Carranza is on a boulevard opposite the United States consulate. Its commanding towers and walls overlook the city. It is here the civil head of the revolution will conduct the government opposed to Huerta. The city will be decorated and church bells will proclaim his presence.

General Villa's presence in the south has called attention to the fact that he and General Carranza are not likely to meet soon. The two revolutionary leaders have been hundreds of miles apart since the revolution reached its present magnitude and it is probable they never have had more than a brief conference.

FINAL STRUGGLE IN PARLIAMENT MONDAY

advice from the beginning of the home rule controversy. While maintaining impartiality, apparently he had a personal leaning toward home rule. The king and the members of his court were outspoken in condemning Sir Edward Carson for organizing the Ulster volunteers army and resented his act in reviewing the volunteers as though they were a regular military body, and in assuming prerogatives, by reason of which the liberals named him "King Carson."

Such an offense, as General Sir Robert Baden-Powell discovered when he placed his portrait on postage stamps during the siege of Mafeking, is an unpardonable sin in the eyes of the court.

While Premier Asquith and Colonel Seely were cloaked with the king recently, Major General Sir William R. Robertson, director of military training at the war office, accompanied by a colleague, visited the place, according to reliable information, and asked to be admitted to the conference on urgent business. The request was granted and the officers announced that they and a majority of the staff officers would resign immediately unless the government made its peace with the Carranza officers.

Premier Asquith's statement to The Times, the first interview which the premier has granted in office, was the result of the impression that this ultimatum had been delivered. No solution has yet been found of the situation caused by resignations of Field Marshal Sir John French and Adjutant General Sir John Ewart from their positions at the head of the British army.

Meantime, the opposition of the army to employment in the coercion of Ulster is vouched for by no less an authority than Sir Edward Richard Russell, a staunch supporter of the government, who in a signed article in The Liverpool Post says today:

"It is a positive fact that when he visited the war office early this week, Field Marshal Lord Roberts had in his pocket a list of nearly 900 officers of the army who are ready to send in their papers."

SENATORIAL FILIBUSTER WILL DELAY REPEAL BILL

It repealed the exemption, to declare that it had not surrendered the contention that the United States might make one.

Representative O'Shaughnessy, democrat, of Rhode Island, spoke for the exemption, declaring the platform pledge of the Baltimore convention for free passage should be supported.

Representative Gardner, republican, of Massachusetts, supporting the bill, quoted from debates on the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in the senate to show that the spirit of that agreement was opposed to the exemption of American ships.

Representative Gray, democrat, of Indiana, supported the bill.

CAPTAIN W. H. BIRD CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF OF BUNCOMBE CO.

Enters Race at Solicitation of Friends—Supporters Predict Victory.

CAPTAIN W. H. BIRD.

At the urgent request of his friends Capt. W. H. Bird announces his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff of Buncombe county.

Capt. Bird has for some time been considering the advisability of entering the race for sheriff, but only consented to do so after a thorough investigation as to the political situation in this county, and while his announcement will come as a surprise to a few of the democrats, yet those more intimately associated with him have been expecting his entrance into the race for some time.

Capt. Bird has been a life long democrat, having fought from his entrance into manhood for the democratic party and the high principles for which democracy stands. In fact he was bred and born a democrat. His father, A. L. Bird, having given four years of his youth and vigor to the Confederate cause. His friends insist that there is no man in Buncombe County better qualified to hold the important office of Sheriff, and it is with pride that they point to his record as Sanitary Inspector of the City of Asheville.

While there are several candidates for sheriff, still Capt. Bird's friends and supporters predict a victory for him in the coming fight. adv it

High Living and Tango Tea.

The present high cost of living is due almost entirely to the lack of interest and attention on the part of the consumer, according to Alfred D. Woodruff, of the bureau of foodstuffs, and he backs his assertion by the bold statement that "25 per cent could be deducted from the gross profits on all foodstuffs if the consumer, and mainly the housewife, would devote as much attention to marketing and gaining knowledge on this subject as she does to dress, bridge parties and tango teas."

The milk in the cocoanut, according to Woodruff, is that the consumer forces the retailer to add from 25 to 40 per cent to gross profits by causing unnecessary expenses in delivery, credit systems, insisting upon out-of-season goods, premiums, trading stamps and so forth. Sounds reasonable enough, but what are you going to do about it? The hand that rocks the cradle does the marketing and rules the roost, and there is no evidence that tango teas are waning in popularity. It is quite evident that Mr. Woodruff is an unmarried man, whatever may be his other good qualities.
