KING OF HEIDELBERG AT MAJESTIC THEATRE

Featuring Edith Kohnle, toe dancer and moubrette, the Harry Rodgers Musical Comedy company will open at the Majestic tomorrow at the matinee performance, presenting "The King of Heidelberg," a tabloid musical comedy show. The new company is said to possess an excellent wardrobe, clever comedians who make you laugh regardless of your condition of mind, and without "pulling any coarse stuff," and to offer new jokes, good dancing and new song hits. Charles Solorando, a feature singer, is among the singers carried by this company. Advance notices and press criticisms give the new offer at the Majestic credit for being a good production and well worth the money. The show will be presented Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"My husband has gone into the war," signs with these or similar words are displayed in many store windows in Berlin. They are a silent appeal to the customers to assist the wife of a soldier in continuing the business, and it seems that these appeals find ready response.

A button famine is said to be threatening this country on account of the war, but the buttons the supply of which is threatened are mostly of the ornamental kind. If the worst should happen, people could again use wooden buttons, covering them with cloth for the sake of appearances.
