PIGNIC WEDNESDAY AT AVERY'S CREEK

Hundreds attended a Fourth of July celebration, the greatest in years, at Avery's Creek, twelve miles from Asheville, Wednesday.

In the morning several patriotic addresses were made and songs and recitations given by the children.

The crowning event of the after noon was two ball games between the Avery Creek and Fairview teams. Fairview won both, the first, 4 to 0 and the second 4 to 3. The last game went for sixteen innings. With the count knotted, 3-3, one of the Fairview sluggers caught a fast one on the nose and sent it into a distant pine tree for a home run. Refreshments of various kinds were served throughout the day.

OPENING OF CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS MOST NOTABLE EVENT

Strong Addresses of Welcome Delivered on Behalf of City, State, Judiciary and Bar-Judge J. C. Pritchard

Responds for Himself and Associates.

Asheville and in court procedure in Asheville and North Carolina took place yesterday at noon, when the first session of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth district was formally convened with Judge J. C. Pritchard, of Asheville: Judge Martin A. Knapp, of Washington, and Judge Charles A. Woods, of Marion, S. C., presiding. As a tribute to the coming of this great tribunal to Asheville, members of the bar of Asheville and North Carolina, under the direction of Louis M. Bourne, had arranged a splendid program of welarranged a splendid program of welcome to the visiting jurists, and some excellent addresses were heard.
Among the speakers were Louis M.
Bourne, Corporation Counsel Marcus
Erwin, Aubrey L. Brooks, retiring president of the State Bar association; former Governor Locke Craig, exCongressman James J. Britt, author of the bell which brought the court to the bill which brought the court to Asheville; Ralph K. Carson, former president of the South Carolina Bar association, and Chief Justice Walter Clark, of the Supreme court of North Carolina. Response to the addresses of welcome was delivered by Judgo Jeter C. Pritchard, whose address was complimented by the attorneys present as a masterpiece of forensic abil-

Mr. Bourne Presides.

Promptly at noon, the meeting was called to order by Louis M. Bourne, president of the Asheville Bar association, the court room at the Federal building being filled to its utmost capacity. The three judges, in their gowns, added an impressive tought the scene, while a large number of la-dies were present in the court room to witness the making of judicial history in North Carolina.

Mr. Bourne, in his opening address called attention to the efforts made by members of the Asheville bar to se-cure the holding of an annual term of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Asheville, and the work that had been done to secure this that had term. He told how the members of the local bar association had always felt a personal interest in the court, through the elevation of Judge J. C. Pritchard, of this city, to the bench, and said that the feeling that the court was more of a local than Federal court was wide-spread.

Mr. Bourne expressed the hope that the time would come when the state and federal systems of jurisprudence would be assimilated in all respects would be assimilated in all respects and made as near alike as possible. He said that this would add greatly to the expedition of justice. Mr. Bourne also offered an apology for the present meeting place of holding the court, and promised, on behalf of himself and the Asheville Bar association, that the time would not be far distant when Asheville would be able to offer the judges more fitting quarters than the present federal building. At the conclusion of his address, Mr. Bourne introduced Marcus Erwin, corporation counsel, who offered a welcome on the part of the

Marcus Erwin Speaks.
Mr. Erwin said that the happy task of welcoming the judges had been delegated to him by the city commisdelegated to him by the city commissioners, and that the coming of the court was the fruition of a hope long cherished by the people of Asheville. He declared that the city is proud of the distinction of having the court as a permanent institution and declared that the judges would find it an excellent place for the administration of justice. He declared that the hearts of and home of Asheville are open to the visiting judges and that open to the visiting judges and that they will find the advantages of a comfortable, progressive cosmopolitan together with every advantage that goes to make up a Christian, law-abiding community.

Aubrey L. Brooks, of Greensboro, retiring president of the state bar association, who was the next speaker, said that the members of the state bar association also desired to claim some of the credit for bringing the higher court to Asheville, and on behalf of the state association, extended a most cordial welcome to the judges and the court attendants. Te told how, in former years, there had been, not without some reason, a feel-ing that a United States court was an allen court, and that southern mem-bers of the bar had been neglected when it came to selecting judges of a higher court. He declared, however, that this had now all been remedied, and that the United States courts have become the most important tribunals on earth, in the eyes of all people.

Welcome For State.

Governor Locke Crais, former chief executive of the state of North Carolina, speaking for the state, declared that there was a universal feeling of satisfaction among all the state officials at the fact of having the court as a permanent institution. He referred to the former feeling against the court in the south, and said that it was not strange, as the appointments. was not strange, as the appointments were made by people not in sympathy with the wishes of the people of this section. He told how this feeling had changed, and how all sectional lines

Women Everywhere Use Lemon Juice To Beautify Skin

The beauty lotion which is becoming so popular throughout the country is easily prepared by anyone, and a whole quarter pint of it doesn't cost any more than a small jar of the common, ordinary cold creams.

Add the juice of two fresh lemons to three ounces of orchard white and shake well in a bottle. Strain the lemon juice two or three times through a fine cloth so no pulp gets into the lotion, then it will keep fresh for months. Regardless of what price you pay or how highly advertised, there is nothing else really more meritorious in beautifying, softening and clearing the skin. As a tan and blemish remover, also to remove ciliness and sellowness, lemon juice has no rival. Massage it into the face, neck, and arms once or twice each day, and just see if it doesn't bring out the roses and hidden beauty!

Lemons have always been used to bleach the skin, but pure lemon juice is too highly acid, therefore should never be used except in this manner. If properly prepared, this sweetly fragrant lotion will speak for itself. Any drug store will supply the three ounces of orchard white at very little cost, and the grocer will supply the lemons.

An event notable in the history of | had been eliminated, and said that the state is now proud to have a court of this distinction within its confines. He declared that the nation is now at war, and that the American flag. wherever it flies, is now a symbol of liberty to all oppressed and down-trodden people.

Former Congressman James J. Britt who introduced the bill giving the court to Asheville, modestly disclaimed all credit in the case, declaring that without the able assistance given by Mr. Bourne, Clement Manly and others of the Asheville and state bar associations, his efforts would have been useless. He also mentioned the help given by Judge H. J. Steele, of Pennsylvania. Mr. Britt said there had never been any real reason for hostility between the state and federal courts, and that whatever had existed had now passed away. He paid high tribute to the widdle. had now passed away. He paid high tribute to the judiciary and bar of North Carolina and predicted that the movement launched sometime ago for a half million dollar federal building here would eventually bear fruit.

For South Carolina.

Ralph K. Carson, former president of the South Carolina Bar association. said that South Carolinians feel a personal interest in the court through the presence of Judge Woods, of the the presence of Judge woods, or the Palmetto state, on the bench, and because they felt that, through Judge Woods, the state contributed to the dignity and honor of the court. Mr. Carson said he liked to practice in Federal courts, and that he believed in the relection of judges rather than in the selection of judges rather than

Chief Justice Clark, of the state
Supreme court, spoke for the judiciary of the state in welcoming the court. He declared that the two courts, federal and state, have their foundation in the same organic conditions, and said that there is no reason for any feeling of distrust between them. He said that there is no reason for any feeling of distrust between them. He welcomed the court to North Crolina, and said that the state is proud that Asheville was selected as the permanent place for holding the court.

Judge Pritchard Responds.

Judge J. C. Pritchard, of Asheville, made the response for himself and two conferences.

two confreres.

Judge Pritchard's Address.

Judge Pritchard said in part: 'Gentlemen of the State Bar association and the bar of this city:

'We are highly gratified at the gen-erous welcome that you have ex-tended the court on this the beginning of its first regular term for Asheville The spirit you manifest clearly indicates the treatment that is to be ac-corded the court by the people of this section of the circuit. I have always felt that there should be the closest relation between the bench and the bar, and in this my associates heartl-ly concur. The performance of our duties as judges is not without difficulty, and sometimes embarrassment, but when we feel that we have the hearty co-operation and enjoy the confidence of those who practice before us, our burdens are more easily borne. And here it is appropriate to say that as the judges are recruited from the bar, whatever of honor or renown the judiciary has won, belongs to the legal profession. The most celebrated judgments that have ever been rendered from the bench were been rendered from the bench were rendered after able and helpful arguments from the bar. Think of the in-valuable contributions to our jurisprudence in the forensic arguments of Hamilton, Webster, Wilson, Martin, Prentiss, and many other brilliant ornaments of the bar, whose names are naments of the bar, whose names are familiar to us all.

"The judge, if such a one there be, who imagines he has no need of the aid of counsel, is to be pitied, as are the unfortunate litigants before him, or, rather I should say, the unfortunate victims of his stupidity and conset."

"To say, moreover, in this connec tion, that not only has the American bar won imperishable fame in the forum and in the senate, but that in every great movement in our history which has redounded to the public good and the public honor, the lead-ers have nearly always been lawyers would be but to affirm the well-known facts of history which no one can re-

Court of People. "There has never been any real rea-son why differences should have exist-ed between the federal and the state courts; each working within its own sphere is entirely independent of the sphere is entirely independent of the other, and where judges of either court exercise common sense in the administration of the law, the one can always be helpful to the other. This court is as much the court of the people of the state as the state court could possibly be in any sense of the word. There have been in the past, and will probably be in the future, conflicts of jurisdiction, but the Supreme court, which presides over the destinies of all, will-sh the future, as in the past, determine such controversies in acdetermine such controversies in ac-cordance with the constitution which was framed by our forefathers.

cordance with the constitution which was framed by our forefathers.

"I sincerely trust that the day is not far distant when we will have a uniform procedure and practice throughout the country. Every movement made by the congress, as well as by the Supreme court in the promulgation of rules, tends in that direction. There is one matter that I feel should be called to the attention of the members of the bar of this circuit. Under the law as it now exists, there are two methods provided, by which cases may be brought to this cour; for review; I refer to the bankrup/cy law. Endless confusion has grown out of the provision which requires an appeal in certain instances and in others a petition to superintend and revise. All cases from the courts of bankruptcy could easily be brought to this court by an appeal, and thus avoid confusion, much expense, and relieve the uncertainty among the lawyers as to how suits of this character should be brought here for review.

"This is a matter that should be pre-acter should be brought here for review.

"This is a matter that should be presented to the National Bar association, and through that organization direct to congress, where I have no doubt it will receive prompt attention. It is true that we have two methods of bringing up other cases, but that is due to the fact that the Federal court still preserves the distinction between law and equity. So long as that distinction is made, perhaps it would be just as well to permit the rules to remain as they are at this time; that is, have cases brought from an equity court on appeal and from law courts by writ of error.

Should Observe Rules,

"Congress recently nassed an act which provides that where a case is brought by writ of error and it should have been brought on appeal, or vice versa. While I am not inclined in the slightest degree to criticise configurable.

"In these trying times it should be a source of gratification to know that is can divide a conflict with Germany—nothing mere could have presented used every dreams within his power to avoid a conflict with Germany—nothing mere could have presented used every means within his power to avoid a conflict with Germany—nothing mere could have pression. Therefore, it becomes the duty of every citizen the pression.

"That we will succeed in the undertaking in which we are engaged I take awaits us, inbued from the spread of the source of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it will be pression. It will not cost you a penny unless it will not be undertaking for the flavour set of the internal courts by writ of error.

to do so) on account of its action as respects this matter, still I believe that it would have been much better to have provided that all cases should to have provided that all cases should be either brought by appeal or writt of error. Indeed I think that until the distinction between law and equity is abolished, if that should ever occur. It would perhaps be better for the profession, as well as for the Court of Appeals to require leavers to of Appeals, to require lawyers to acquaint themselves with the rules and to adhere strictly thereto. It is hardly fair to the well prepared lawyer who is capable of bringing his and to adnere strictly thereto. It is hardly fair to the well prespared lawyer who is capable of bringing his case here in a proper manner, to permit another who perhaps is not so well prepared to totally ignore the rules by bringing his case here in an improper manner without being penalized. If lawyers and litigants could only appreciate the fact that thousands of dollars have been wasted in the past, and many times litigants deprived of their just rights, because lawyers have not taken the pains to study the rules governing in such cases, I am sure this evil would be cured, either by the adoption of suitable legislation or the more rigid observance of the rules by many of the lawyers of the circuit. In saying this it is not my purpose to lecture the members of the bar as to their duty, but simply in a friendly way to advise them as to the importance of this matter.

"There is one thing that I deem proper to refer to before I conclude. The whole country is overchadowed with gloom on account of the terrible war that is raging in Europe, and our own land is saddened on account of the fact that our brave boys are called upon to engage in this terrible conflict for the purpose of protecting American rights and rendering aid to suffering humanity. Notwithstanding this condition there are some who are doing all in their power to embarrans the president in his efforts to bring the war to a successful termination. The only way to successfully meet those who preach the doctrines of the war to a successful termination. The only way to successfully meet those who preach the doctrines of anarchy and disloyalty is to instill in the minds of the people, lessons of patriotism and devotion to America and her institutions. Let us, therefore, cultivate a spirit of patriotism and respect for the majesty of the constitution, and the laws passed in pursuance thereof.

The disposition in certain quarters to denounce the courts and criticise those who are charged with the administration of the law, has a tendency to weaken the faith of the people in the stability of our government. Notwithstanding the critical condition of the affairs of the nation at this time, some have dered even to go far as to criticise the president, and in the past this same class of people have impugned the motives of the Supreme court—the highest court in the land—the last resort of the people."

"The courts are not above legiti-mate criticism, and when a judge acts improperly he should be criticised, and if his conduct warrants it, he should be impeached, but there should be no wholesale denunciation of the courts, and those who attempt by such methods to bring discredit upon the judiciary should be taught by the American people that the doctrines which they teach can never flourish which they teach can never flourish on American soil.

"This is indeed a land of liberty, but it is not a land of liberty, but it is not a land of liberse, and the sooner the lawless classes understand the true situation, the better it will be for all parties concerned. We welcome from abroad the better class who desires to come among us, but our laws should be strengthened and improved so as to keep beyond our borders those who believe that their mission in life is to perpetuate strife and discord. The individual who believes in dynamite rather than reason, and who is willing to resort to unlawful methods, to further his ends, should find no cordial welcome in this free land of ours. The enemies of this country and the demagogue have much in common, and the one is as dangerous as the other, and each should be shunned by the American people.

"In these trying times it should be people.
