CALL on us for a first-rate stock of Dry Goods; Fancy Goods and Small Wares; Clothes, Shoes, Hats, etc., for Everybody; Rugs; Trunks and Bags and Butterick Patterns.

Ours is a one-price system with all prices in plain figures as low as the merchandise can be sold. We started this in 1881 with the prediction by some of our well wishers that we would fail of success. But we are still ahead of the sheriff—and going strong. The well wishers afterward told us the only way to sell goods HERE was to mark them with a large profit and FALL—where we could not get the high price marked. We dis-sented.

BUSINESS is good with us we are thankful to say. In common with other dealers we have felt the derangement of the draft but we know our patrons will understand and make allowance.

BUNCOMBE BOY WRITES OF AVIATION SERVICE

"DON" HARRIS, OF ARDEN, IS IN TRAINING.

Tells of His First Experience in the Air and How He Made His First Landing.

The following is from a letter just received from "Don" Harris, written to his mother, of Christ School, Arden. He and his brother Dave are both in the aviation service of the country. Don has been for some weeks under training in the most up-to-date of the Royal Flying Corps School of Toronto. He has now gone for flying practice to Deseronto, Canada:

"We came out something over a week ago, and got a joyride the same afternoon. The next morning our instructions began. After that it was a question of adaptability. Some of us got to our solo or work alone in short order; some had not started yet but are still doing 'du' instruction work. I had about three hours in the air and eight practice landings and then they sent me up alone. It was nerve-racking and terribly lonesome. The airplane tossed and rocked and drifted about in the most uncaring way. But I did manage to get about to the correct landing position. This was when my heart began to flutter. It's the landings that cause so many crashes, and as I looked down in the air I saw a machine go on its nose. Then I shut off the motor, and let her slide down. When I hit the ground, it was naturally at the wrong angle, and we had an awful bounce. I turned on the engine and came around again. This time we got around and landed in very good order. So far luck has been with me, and I have had no crashes. Some crash and some don't, but it is not dangerous. No one is hurt beyond a few bruises. It is expensive though for the Canadian government.

"Alderman went off this afternoon, and got himself lost. It is very hard to keep location and direction when you are up alone. He had to land finally in a corn field, which was no easy matter. He did it safely however, and found that he was five or a half mile east of Nazare, a small village about ten miles from Deseronto.

"Maybe you would like to know about the flying school here. It is about one hundred and fifty miles from Toronto, on the lake shore. It is a quaint, beautiful little place, but not so lovely as Toronto. The Indians and half-breeds are the majority of the inhabitants, in much the same way as the negroes are in the small towns of our south.

"The school is divided into two sections, one called Rathburn and located about two miles from Deseronto, the other is Mohawk and is about four miles out of Deseronto. This is our camp and a very pleasant one. We have quite nice quarters though a good deal crowded. The mess hall has two huge lounge rooms, with big fire places and large comfortable chairs. There is always a crowd about playing cards or singing or talking over the day's events. We get very good things to eat and very nicely served. It is more like a club or a fraternity than anything else.

"We got up at four and fly until eight. Then come in for breakfast. At nine-thirty we go out to fly again. At eleven-thirty when the air has become too drummy to be pleasant or safe, we bump and then come in for lunch. The early afternoon is given over to classes, and the latter part to flying again. The officers are very nice and quite friendly. Some of them are quite noted. Perhaps Vernon Castle is the best known, he and his pet monkey. He is fine and one of the very best of the instructors. He is not in my squadron, however, so I will not have the distinction of having flown with Castle. I am in the 87th squadron, and it is one of the very best in point of instructors and machines.

"You spoke of sending me another sweater. You don't know how welcome it will be. It's awful cold and in the early morning with everything on that we possess we shiver and shake and freeze. You can imagine what it is up five thousand feet. We wear leathers, of course, but that only keeps the cold off as far as wind is concerned. I wear the helmet you made all the time though it is a little small for me."

There can be no doubt of the great antiquity of measuring time by a period of seven days.

EAT LESS MEAT AND TAKE SALTS IF KIDNEYS HURT

Says a tablespoonful of Salts flushes Kidneys, stopping Backache.

Meat forms Uric Acid, which excites Kidneys and Weakens Bladder

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

TO SUCCEED WITH SWEET PEAS, FLOWERS SHOULD BE SOWN NOW

There is no doubt but that the Sweet Pea is the favorite of all annual flowers, though in some sections it can not be grown successfully from sowings made in the spring. In such locations Sweet Peas can, however, be grown to perfection if the seed is sown in the fall. By sowing in the fall the plants made much stronger root growth under cool ideal conditions, and are therefore, better able to withstand the heat and drought of late spring and early summer, while an extended flowering season is assured.

Sowing in Warm Sections.

In the south and in fact all warm, tropical and subtropical locations, Sweet Peas should be sown during the last week of September or in early October. From these sowings and in such sections, the plants should flower from December until May or June, and in some places even longer. Or, in fact, until extreme heat kills the vines.

Sowing in the North.

In the north success will also follow fall sowings if protection is given. The best method is to sow not later than the middle of October, using a protection of boards and glass. Six or nine inch boards should be placed lengthways along both sides of the row, nine inches apart, making the ends quite tight with a piece of board to fit the opening. Glass is then laid along the top of what might be called the "Sweet Pea frame," the glass being held in position with either broad headed nails or string. The glass, however, should not be placed in position until severe weather sets in, or during heavy rain storms. In the course of two or three weeks the seed will have germinated, and the seedlings will appear above the ground. But so long as the weather is open and mild, do not cover them, as we must aim to encourage a stout, sturdy growth, and Sweet Peas are impatient of covering at this time. A few degrees of frost on plants that have been grown in the open without protection, will not harm them.

In this section (Philadelphia) the Peas require no further covering than the grass already referred to, but in the north where winters are more severe, it may be well to cover the glass and the sides of the frame with burlap, old sacks, or rough litter, but be sure to remove it during mild weather. As soon as the weather opens up in early spring, remove the glass, and a week or two later the boards.

In this section, fall sown Sweet Peas begin to flower with us quite early in May, certainly several weeks ahead of plants from seed sown in the early spring, and these plants continue blooming throughout the entire season, quite as long as the plants from spring sowings. The advantage of going to this little extra trouble is obvious. When sowing in September or October in the south, or in Sweet Pea frame, do not cover the seed more than two inches.

Another Method of Fall Sowing.
In light, well drained soils and sheltered positions, Sweet Peas may be sown from the middle to the end of November. In making this sowing, however, the seed should be covered right to the top with three inches of soil. As soon as the ground freezes hard cover the rows with a heavy mulch of rough litter.

This latter sowing is made with the object that the seeds may just have germinated in the soil previous to frost, thereafter laying in cold storage, as it were, until the weather opens up in early spring. At this time the covering must be removed, and the soil lightly stirred, breaking any hard crust that may have formed.

Best Articles For Fall Sowing.
Where your Sweet Peas are wanted primarily for cut flowers, I would suggest using the Early Flowering Spencer varieties only. Of these the best will be found among the following: Burpee's Early Enchantment, a bright deep rose pink. Burpee's Early Loveliness, soft pink on white ground.

Burpee's Early King, a rich glowing crimson.
Fordhook Pink and White, with standard rich rose pink, white blush wings.
Burpee's Early Pink Beauty, a charming shade of soft pink on white ground.

Burpee's Primrose Beauty, rich primrose, suffused with rose.
Fordhook Rose, rich carmine rose.
Burpee's Rosy Morn, rich rose with crimson standard.

Burpee's Early Sankey, a fine white.
Farrara, rosy pink with cream base.
Where room will permit it might be well to also sow a few of the standard or summer flowering Spencers, and among the best I can recommend are: Florida Fairy, deep primrose.
Margaret Atlee, deep pink on cream.
Royal Purple.
King White.

The President, orange scarlet.
Charm, bluish pink.
Constance Hinton, ivory white, (black seeded.)
Elfrida Pearson, charming shade of light pink.

Hercules, deep pink.
Irish Belle, lilac.
Illuminator, salmon cerise.
King Edward Spencer, rich crimson.
Margaret Madison, azure blue.
Mrs. Routzahn, cream pink.
Orchid, rich lavender.
May Unwin, orange scarlet.
Nubian, maroon.

The seeds mentioned in this article may be purchased from any reliable seed house at a very low cost. How-ever, W. Atlee Burpee & Company of Philadelphia publish a cultural leaflet on Sweet Peas. This with other leaflets and a copy of their catalog offering all these flowers may be had upon application.
