OUR RIFLE AND PISTOL CLUB.

Doc Henderson Acts Up Again, But Promises to Take in the Coon-Hunt.

Dear Billy:

Well, I had the surprise of my young life since I wrote you. You know I was telling you how close Doc Henderson and I finished in the final shoot of the season for the club medal, winning out by one point after they had thought he had it by three. And I also told you how Tom Prunty, our club's president, put us on a committee together to work for the United War Work campaign. I said that, much to my surprise, the old Doc was turning out fine and he and I were pulling like a regular team in the drive for contributions. But now listen to this:

The other day he casually brought up the subject of the match, and after a bit he says, kind of offhand, that I used my peep sight in the rapid fire at 200.

"I had the leaf up when I stood up to shoot my string, and it was still up when I sat down because I was so intent on winning that I had not noticed it. Well, when I looked for the sights I noticed that and slipped the leaf down, naturally, and I don't mind saying that I got rattled about it and twice during the firing I did not yank the bolt back far enough, so that when I closed it there was no cartridge in the chamber and I got a miss. Furthermore, I know damn well why I got a miss in my string; it was because in my hurry and confusion I must have fired my first shot with the front sight touching the black, instead of fifteen inches below it. It should have been, and overshoot the target."

"I did," says I. "Say, if I did, how does it come that this is the first I heard of it, why didn't somebody tell me, and keep me from breaking the rule?"

He said he only heard it, but I'd bet my shirt he saw me sit down with the sight leaf up, kept mum, and was now going to get me to admit it, after which he would enter it and show it, and they would award him the medal.

In the excitement of shooting my string in the minute and a half allowed me, and the miss immediately afterward about which of us was the winner, and then hurrying home an hour late for dinner, I overlooked mentioning to them that I had my sight leaf up after the target came up for me to shoot, but that I used the battle sight for all shots. So the only thing I could do was to take the Doc right up home and get out my score book and show him how my rapid fire record was entered at the time I was shot. That and what I told him must have convinced him, for he backed down mighty quick.

I told it all to Tom and showed him my score book, too, and he said he didn't think anybody but the Doc had noticed I had the sight leaf up when I stood up to shoot, because in rapid fire everybody is watching for the target to come up, and it would be funny if the club's secretary had to be watched for fear he was going to break any rules. "The medal is yours," says he.

So I cooled off, but you can bet your best pair of caulked boots that

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Our club is building an indoor range, and the thickest steel we can get here for our backstop is one-eighth inch. Will this be satisfactory if only .22 rifles are used?

You really ought to use one-fourth inch steel, even with the plates pitched at forty-five degrees. Of course one-eighth inch steel will stop .22 bullets, and if the plate is pitched at the proper angle the first may give promise of being satisfactory. But it must be remembered that a very small area immediately behind each target will receive a tremendous amount of battering—thousands of bullets fired in exactly the same place. Ordinary boiler plate one-eighth inch in thickness will not stand this battering. If you can do no better, rivet two thicknesses of the one-eighth inch stuff

OWNERSHIP OF WIRE SYSTEMS BY THE GOVERNMENT IS "IMPERATIVE"

It is a defense of the national interests as much in peace as in war.

The postmaster general said he believed that an effective plan could be worked out by which the waste and competition can be eliminated and the advantages of private initiatives in research not be lost.

Calling attention to the fact that under the existing law the telephone and telegraph properties will automatically revert to the private owners upon proclamation by the president of a state of peace, the letter says that many of the independent companies could not take back the properties without serious loss to the investors and great detriment to the service.
