General Get-Together Meeting Proved To Be Great Success Last Night.

With more than 250 present the Kiffin Rockwell post, American le-gion, held its first public meeting, which was an entertainment and ban-quet for every ex-service man in the county, last night in the assembly hall of the Masonic temple. visitors in the city who are members of other posts, and delegations from Weaverville, Canton and Kenilworth hospital, and several invited guests were present and appeared to enjoy the highly successful occasion, as well as the members of the local post.

After the assembly call, the Legion rehestra, composed of Ed Davis, Twano, Bingham McKee, Ed Hartskern, Lelcester Chapman, Richard ethledge, Bob Redwood, R. H. Meriple, Jr., and Mr. Lynch, rendered NIC 22z melody, which incidentally of a up more than 250 appetites, ter the mess call everyone apparatly enjoyed chicken salad, chicken rudwiches, fruit, punch, grape inice, friftee, and several other "good eats" long with an abundance of cigars, ligarettes and "Brown's Mule," in act the latter commodities were in fruch an abundance that many good ligars and cigarettes were left on the tables, along with a good supply of apples and oranges.

"Bloody War", sung by Grady Rea-gan, of Weaverville, was the hit of the evening. Reagan sang several selec-tions of his own compositions which recalled to the mind of every ex-ser-vice man, the hardeling but vice man, the hardships but covered them with the humor of army life. He had to reappear several times to satisfy his eager hearers.

Considerable interest was shown when Commander R. R. Williams of local post read a letter which kiffin Rockwell sent the French Consultat New Orleans on August 3, 1914. in which he offered his services for overseas. Lieutenant Rockwell was accepted by the French government and became a famous aviator. He was killed in an air raid in an engagement with a German plane over Thann, and in his memory the local post of the American legion is named.

I have a friend, a player of three years only, who by reason of developing a good swing has reduced his about five or six years to arrive. The newer players are constantly getting new ideas and thoughts which they put into practice with various results. Time alone steadles one's game. With all due respect for club makers this friend of mine has a feut most common to many enthusiasts. It is the adding of a new club about every week. He buys a new club, hits every week. He buys a new club, hits three or four shots with it and casts it aside for another. Such action means that he cannot learn the possibilities or limitations of a single club. Naturally his game cannot settle.

Recently this player purchased a perfectly fine wooden spoon. He hit three balls with it, all poor ones, and immediately traded it for one not nearly so well balanced. The man who got it didn't care much for it either, though it had cost $7.50 that same day, so he in turn traded it to the club professional, along with some other clubs, for a midiron, A few days later my friend, the original pur-

He came across a spoon in the bag of the professional, liked it and got it by offering $7.50. He played some beautiful shots with it, all of them being noticed by the man he had made the earlier trade with. The latter asked to see it abd on tooking it over discovered it was the same spoon my friend had traded to him a few days before. That spoon had cost my friend a double price, Had he been patient, in the first place and thoroughly tried out this spoon he undoubtedly would have found it unnecessary to pay double for it.
