WALKER WILL MEET T. D. DANFORTH TODAY

PINEHURST, Jan. 1.—Arthur L. Walker, jr., of Richmond county, and Frank S. Danforth, of North Fork, will meet in the finals in the midwinter golf tournament at Pinehurst tomorrow. Young Walker's victory over J. D. Chapman, of Greenwich, in today's semi-final round, was more or less a foregone conclusion. The inter-collegiate champion was five up at the turn, where he arrived in 38, and although Chapman held his own. S. Danforth's defeat of Donaid Parson, of Youngstown, the medalist, was on the other hand, a good deal of a surprise to the prophets. LET'S GO!

We have no apology to make for the terse sentence with which we have headed this announcement. The occasion demands words that mean action. The future that we thought of yesterday is-today. Today is the genesis not alone of the New Year, but of our share in its opportunities. And there's no time to waste in talk. There's no time to dally with further delay. It's time to be doing something. It's high time, indeed, to attune our steps with the march of time and go forward toward our goals as steadily, surely and irresistibly as time will go.

A challenge to our New Year's Resolutions to save some money! A dare which we cannot deny. Are we resolute-or do we merely dabble in resolutions? We shall see before the tenth of the month, when the Savings Period closes. Someone will say "My hat's in the ring!" Another, "I'm right here!" And all together the Fortune Builders will join—"LET'S GO!"

Griffith's Triumph? "Scarlet Days Not a finer picture of the days of '49 has been produced than D. W. Griffith's "Scarlet Days," which will be shown today and tomorrow at the Strand. Here is what Frances Agnew of the New York Morning Telegraph says of this picture:

"Scarlet Days," the new mount-Aircraft picture wh which reflects in every foot of action and in every characterization the hand of every characterization the hand of D. W. Griffith, is the feature of this week's program at the Rivoil. The obvious appeal that it had for yes-terday afternoon's capacity audience, which was thrilled, amused and dramatically impressed by turns, may be regarded as an assurance of its success as screen entertainment. Judging from the applause and ness to the body. It does more and audible comment, every one enjoyed better, by keeping the lamp of good it, even the spectators seated in the nature burning brightly in the heart, vicinity of a pair of chatterboxes of and leading thoughts away from the the feminine gender. You know the and leading thoughts away from the type, those for whom every number on the program is a reminder of something they say or read elsewhere, who praise the must be much and who must be much and the must be who praise the music too vehemently to enjoy it and read the sub-titles aloud. However, their neighbors forgot the chatterboxes during the run-ning of the feature, which is a tri-but to Mr. Griffith,

"Scarlet Days" is a romance of the picturesque and carefree old West in the days of '49. It presents a more complicated plot, having more thrilling and more intensely dramatic action than Mr. Griffith's recent Paramount-Art-craft releases. At the same time the story is essentially one of character interpreted by a cast of players whose work testifies to Griffith's able direction.

The story introduces a wealth of
