At 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon was solemnized the marriage of Miss Lily Tryon Meriwether to Mr. George D. Degge. The ceremony marked with sacredness, solemnity and simple beauty of detail, was quietly performed in the presence of thirty or more relatives and intimate friends of the couple, in the apartment of the bride's parents in the Carolina apartment house. With a background banked with palms, an improvised altar was artistically arranged, with garlands of southern smilax flanked by ferns and potted plants, on each side of which stood white standards holding three tall and stately lighted tapers. Throughout the room were placed crystal vases filled with freesias and asparagus fern. The vows were spoken by Rev. Willis G. Clark, rector of Trinity Episcopal church. Previous to the ceremony, Mrs. E. L. Wolskel played Barnaby's "O Perfect Love," and during the ceremony she softly rendered "Call Me Thine Own," on the violin. Mr. Degge had as his best man Mr. Robert R. Williams, of this city. The bride, who was unattended, was given in marriage by her father, Mr. D. L. Meriwether. She wore a smart suit of French blue and a small hat of brown. Her carriage was an exquisite affair of freesias and sweetpeas. Immediately afterwards, Mr. and Mrs. Degge left for a short honeymoon of a week, after which they will return to Asheville and will be at home in the Carolina Apartment house.

The following from an exchange will interest music lovers in the city: Extensive plans are under way for a great musical festival to be held in New York from April 6 to April 11 under the auspices of the New York Oratorio society and under the musical direction of Walter Damrosch, conductor of the New York Symphony orchestra.

Forty years ago Dr. Leopold Damrosch, father of Walter Damrosch, directed the first important music festival in New York. The two organizations of which he was founder, the New York Symphony and Oratorio societies, formed a nucleus for the undertaking, as they do today. Audiences of 5,000 persons packed the festival at the Waldorf Astoria for six performances. People came from all over the country to attend. Even those whose interests were not musical were drawn in by the magnitude of the affair. Walter Damrosch, then a boy of 18, drilled two of the choruses for this festival. Walter Damrosch and Anne Louise Carey, a great contralto of that day, are the sole survivors of the entire roster of the festival.

The present festival in the words of the official announcement, "will undoubtedly equal and perhaps surpass its predecessor both in scope and quality. Its avowed purpose is to supply an impulse for the promotion of musical culture by a presentation of varied and exciting programs of the best music on such a gigantic, almost spectacular, scale that it will be bound to attract huge audiences."
