Small Suburban Estate at Flat Rock.

Before the was, this property near Hendersonville, was priced at $12,000. It was even then, "ad valorem," but an inspecion was absolutely impossible to arrangs. Now, everything is different. The property belongs to a British subject in his Majesty's Service. The property must and will be sold. It is listed with another agent in Hendersonville. It is listed exclusively with this firm in Asheville. The price is the same as it was four years ago. No more, no less. There are eight acres of land, a secluded spot of infinite charm and beauty. There are trees, there are flowers, there are plants; shrubbery and hedge; walks and a pretty drive way. It's on of those rare old homesteads that suggest an English vicarage, old avender and lace. There is a coziness about the house that appeals. One of those homes, you know, that you read about and long for, rich in simple beauty and commonplace things, hase to the Church of the Wilderness on the Flat Rock place that would almost break one's heart to part with. Two miles out and a little more from Hendersonville. The key is here. In a few days, I will have a few photographs simek off, so that you can convince yourself that the trip to itendersonville is worth while.
