Rivers and Harbors
Bill Provides for State's Development

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The rivers and harbor bill as agreed to in conference today carries these items for North Carolina: Works of improvement to be prosecuted under the direction of the Secretary of War, $500,000 to purchase part of the existing Lake Drummond canal, the price not to be above that sum. All amounts are to be made for the water way connecting Core Sound and Beaufort; Cape Fear River below Wilmington in accordance with report submitted in the first session of present Congress, provisions for preliminary examinations are to be made as follows: Cape Fear above Wilmington with a view to the construction of a lock and dam about 15 miles below Fayetteville; survey of Cape Fear below Wilmington and between Wilmington and Navassa.

HIGHWAY STAFF ON PICNIC—RALEIGH, Sept. 11.—Three hundred employees of the State Highway Commission spent yesterday afternoon at Doctor's Lake, an outing place near the city, on a big picnic, featured by an abundance of barbecued pig, chickens and soft drinks, followed by all sorts of athletic events.

A spirit of good fellowship among high and low of the highway staff has been largely responsible for the big success in road-building officials hold and yesterday's outing was but one of the "stunts" to keep the employes fit.

Sergeant Ray Darden, of Nashville, Tenn., Enjoys
Brief Stay in Asheville.

After traveling considerably more than 100,000 miles in a 1918 model Chevrolet 490, Sergeant Ray Darden, who since April 25 has traveled through 12 states, arrived in Asheville yesterday afternoon. Sergeant Darden in his journeys pays his own expenses and boosts civic enterprises. He is pleased with the Land of the South, and says he would like to remain here for several days, but wants to be in attendance at the Tennessee State Fair at Nashville, Tenn., his home city, on September 17.

The visitor is a veteran of the 30th division, serving five companies. A 14th machine gun in Hamilton, his car, more than five years old, is quite unique. In every city visited he has some one to paint the name and date and some little attractive scene. There hardly room left for more verses. When his driver passed through Henderson, N. C., the speedometer ran out—his usual.

Sergeant Darden's car, the first year ran over 35,000 miles as a jitney. It has been over the worst roads in the South, over mountains, through swamps and sand beds. And it's been over some good roads, too, he says, offering praise for the State's road system.

The tourist recently presented a petition to congress, signed by some 300,000 persons, asking that Henry Ford be permitted to develop Muscle Shoals. While securing names he traveled through Tennessee, Alabama, Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, Indiana, and North and South Carolina. Upon completing his task, he turned his "little chariot" homeward and stepped on the gas.

"The sergeant will remain in Asheville today and tomorrow will leave for Tennessee."

CONTINUE HEARING IN RAILROAD TAX FIGHT

Special Correspondence The Asheville Citizen (GREENSBORO, Sept. 11)—Continuation of the hearing on the ad valorem tax against the Southern Railway and the Atlantic and Yadkin Railroad, of a temporary restraining order forbidding A. D. Watts, North Carolina Revenue Commissioner, from certifying down to the counties, municipalities and school districts the ad valorem tax assessments for 1922 against the Southern Railway and the Atlantic and Yadkin Railroad. The reason for the continuance was the inability of Judge H. G. Connor, Eastern North Carolina Federal District Court, and Judge Edmund Waddill, Jr., United States Circuit Court of Appeals, to attend the hearing scheduled for today. If they are unable to attend on September 21, it is probable that continuance will be granted for another 10-day period and so on until they can be present. Three judges must sit upon the case.
