S UMMER days are gone and the leaves are falling, but bright skies are overhead and -crisp, cheerful, frosty days, it may be, are just beyond the horizon of the seasons. Yet even when stern Winter blasts blow down upon us from the North, the days - and especially the evenings-are not without their happy compensations. For Autumn ushers in/the season of theatres and more formally brilliant affairs, which are accompanied by garments of rich loveliness. And in the veritable spirit of the cloth-of-gold and of shimmering silks and satins, evening costumes afford appropriate backgrounds for beautiful jewels, without which, indeed, the effect of no costume can be complete. .

And there is an abundance of such jewels now in Fashion's favor. The popularity of ear-rings shows no abatement; bracelets are gaining rapidly in importance; while the sautoir watch, an ornament of genuine distinction, has ticked its way into feminine fancy. But should we try to enumerate the charms of all the fashionable jewelry, we could never stop. Instead, we invite Madam to come and inspect them for herself.
