MISS DE SAYN TO RUN WINTER STUDIO AT THE CAPITAL

KARP TAKES CHARGE OF VIO-LIN DEPARTMENT OF CONSES Move Is Part of Program of Miss

De Sayn to Establish Summer Music Colony in Asheville.

Miss Elena De Sayn, Director of the Sayn Controversy of Music, has decided to make Washington her headquarters during the win-ter and has opened there a Mas-ter School for artistic violin play-ing to be known as "Sayn School of the Art of the Violin," and which will be affiliated with the of the Art of the violn, and which will be affiliated with the Misses Maret's French School. The opening of the school in the nation's capital will not have any effect on the Sayn Conserva-tory of Music in Asheville, which will remain open throughout the encoders and an analysis of the school of year as heretofore. As head of the violin department, Miss De Sayn leaves Maurice Sebastian Sayn leaves Maurice Sebastian Karp at the Asheville Institution. Mr. Karp will make Asheville his permanent home, he an-nounces. He was the organizer and conductor of one of the first symphony orchestras in the South. He is an American by birth and symphony orchestras in the South. He is an American by birth and has had unusual opportunities for studying under European and American teachers. For a while he played leading violin with the Portland, Ore., San Francisco and Symphony orchestras. During the San Francisco Exposition he play-ed first violin under the direction of Waiter Damrosch, conductor of the New York Symphony Orches-tra. As a violin soloist his reper-toire includes all of the standard and difficult works played by the greatest violinists in the country. and difficult works played by the greatest violinists in the country. Previous to her departure for Washington. Miss De Sayn an-nounced that she would return next summer and that owing to a heavy demand for violin in-struction in Asheville, it had been necessary to add others than Mr. Karp to the faculty of the Sayn Conservatory. onservatory. Mr. Howard Wilson, graduate of

Mr. Howard Wilson, graduate of the Cincinnaii Conservatory of Music on the 'cello and violin and Miss Sara Yost, violinist, have been added. Miss Yost is taking charge of preparatory courses training beginners in the rudi-ments of the "Auer-Sayn" method, to be taken up by Miss De Sayn upon her return in the summer. Miss Yost has been a successful teacher and soloist this past win-ter.

Mrs. Carroll and Miss Mary Mins. Carroll and Aliss Mary King, the latter a recent addition to the faculty, have charge of the plano department. Miss King is a graduate of the Cincinnail Con-servatory of Music and artist-pupil of Mrs. Carroll.

Miss De Sayn's leaving the city has been very much regretted in the musical circles and by the many admirers of her artistic playing. Her return will be look-ed forward to with anticipation. Since Miss De Sayn's ideal is to establish in the future, during the summer months, a music colony in Asheville, her branching out to Washington has to be looked upon as the first step toward its mater-ialization.
