TELLS HOW LOSS FROM WEEVILS IN CORN MAY BE MUCH REDUCED

Farmers Have Found Pests Making Greater Inroads Than Ever Before—State Entomologist Sets Forth Methods by Which Grains May Be Kept Largely Free of Troublesome Insect.

(By Franklin Sherman, Entomologist, North Carolina Experiment Station, Raleigh, Oct. 15.) During the last two years there has been a notable increase in the complaints of weevils in grain and most of these complaints refer to damage by the Black Weevil or Rice Weevil in corn in the eastern half of the state. Although this weevil and other weevils have long been present, many farmers appear to be noticing it for the first time, often reporting it as a new pest to them. This Black Weevil has somewhat the appearance of a very small horn weevil but is an entirely different insect. While it is primarily a pest of dry corn in storage, it does attack corn in the field before harvesting or even when the grains are in the dough stage. As long as we allow the corn to stand in the field until winter and then harvest and store it in the shock in barns and bins which are not tight and cannot be made tight, we stand to lose severely from weevils. But by prompt harvesting, and husking at harvest and storing into tight bins we have a chance to reduce the loss. Our careful farmers can well afford to consider the advisability of building tight houses which can be properly fumigated and at the same time make them as tight as mouse proof as possible. The most practicable steps which our farmers can reduce this weevil injury are: 1. Harvest the corn as early as practicable and husk at the time of harvesting. 2. Husk each ear as husked and put loose apparently not infested to themselves, dividing the wagon body for this purpose. 3. Ears which are visibly infested should be given a sudden knock or jar to get rid of as many weevils as possible and then put them in their separate places. The weevil infested ears may be stored in any convenient place and should be placed in tight bins, boxes or barrels where they can be fumigated. 4. Fumigate soon after storage or whenever weevils become troublesome. For fumigating, the material known

FARMER CONVERTED ON PEDIGREED SEED

Gives Experience With Ordinary Cuts and With Special Seed—Says Best Is Cheapest.

REIDLEIGH, Oct. 15.—Another Tar Hee farmer has found that it pays to use good seed. In an interview with Dr. R. V. Winter, plant breeder for the North Carolina Experiment Station, J. W. Watts tells of an interesting experience in using good seed oats on his farm near Statesville in planting his oat crop last fall. Mr. Watts bought 25 bushels of the ordinary Fairbank variety and planted them on a six-acre tract. He then purchased the same quantity of good pedigree seed of the same variety and planted these on an adjoining six acres. Here is his report on the results: "When the crop was harvested this summer, the field planted to the common seed yielded at the rate of 45 bushels per acre and the oats were mixed with cockle, rye, wheat and chaff. From the adjoining acres, planted to the well bred Fairbank seed, I harvested at the rate of 72 bushels to the acre. This was an increase of 27 bushels to the acre because of the better quality of the seed. The common seed because of other conditions on the two fields was the same. I gave both the same care and attention." In marketing the crop, the oats from the common seed sold at 42 cents per bushel, while I had to sell locally for all my pedigree seed at the rate of $1.50 per bushel. The pedigree seed cost me $1.00 per bushel and the common seed 30 cents, so you can figure whether or not it paid to use good seed." Mr. Watts had fed his good oats, he believes that it still would have paid to use the higher priced pedigree seed because of the higher yield obtained per acre. In commenting on this experience, Dr. Winter says, "Seedmen and seed dealers supply us with common seed because we ask for cheap seed and cheap seed sells more easily. Farmers should get good seeds that are known to be good producers even though they cost more. The local county agent or the agronomist workers of the extension service will be glad to tell either farmers or their dealers where to get the best seed."

AT THE MAJESTIC
 Opening today, for a week's engagement, the Majestic theatre in the Broadway Folies, headed by Art Candler, a musical comedy company which promises to give the audience with their appearance this week. The follies company is well recommended and is fresh from a series of successes throughout the principal cities of the South. An unusually talented aggregation of players are in the personnel, including Howard and Earl, a team of dancing specialists; Billy Fenton, character portrayer and singer of ballads; Lilian May, singer of comedy and song; Earl, ingenue and prima donna; Art Candler, comedy man and single comedian; the Polly Trio; Jazz Band and the Polly chorus.

The opening bill today is "School Days," a particularly clever piece utilizing the school room with Howard Myers in the comedy and specialty numbers. There will be changes of bill on Wednesday and Friday.

PACKED IN SEALED, SANITARY CARTON
 For the motion picture attraction today a new line of the popular serial "Adventures of Robinson Crusoe" will be presented, featuring Harry Myers in the title role. The picture is an adaptation from the story by Defoe but has gone further than the original in the unique portrayal of life and adventure on the desert island.

AT THE STRAND
 A vital and vivid story of a crook's search for freedom, his torment of brain, his yearning for happiness and his ultimate redemption after his long and vowed vengeance upon his enemy—this is "Flesh and Blood," the Irving Cummings production which will be seen at the Strand today and tomorrow. In this dramatic picture, a convict escapes from prison and finds refuge in Chinatown. He has been confined for 15 years. His cup is overflowing with bitterness. He has one motive to punish the financial financier who sent him to prison. He also wishes to look upon the faces of his dear wife and daughter, the latter grown into womanhood since he entered the big gray prison. It is a picture which absorbs the attention of the spectator.

AT THE IMPERIAL
 "A man's answer to Edith Hall's 'The Sheik.' Such a line is inspired by the Paramount picture of Arthur Wellesley's novel, 'Durning Sands,' which will be on view at the Imperial theatre for three days. This is the powerful story of an English girl who seeks the man she loves and makes him love her. As in the case of 'The Sheik,' the one who sought love triumphs. Ward Haywood is the girl and Milton Sills the man, and there is a powerful supporting cast.

AT THE PACK

Number of Leaders of Party Scheduled to Speak in Near Future.

HICKORY, Oct. 15.—Catawba voters who like speeches are destined to few disappointments in the present campaign, judging from the number of prominent men brought into the county to entertain them.

Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby, former Congressman from this district, will hold forth in Conover next Tuesday night, and Mayor Gallatin Roberts of Asheville, himself prominent as a legislator, will speak at three points in the county. He is billed for Newton next Wednesday night, Claremont Thursday night and Brookford Friday night.

Leaders of both sides are working hard and local speakers are visiting all the school houses. In Hickory there has been a great deal of interest among the men, but the women have not turned out in great numbers to hear the speeches. The exception to this rule was the appearance here of Josephus Daniels.
