CAROLINA-VIRGINIA CONTEST THIS YEAR DRAWING GREATER NUMBER OF FANS THAN EVER

(By LOUIS GRAVES)
 CHAPEL HILL, Nov. 15.—Not since the Old North State poured her soldiers into Virginia 41 years ago, to swell the Confederate Armies, have so many North Carolinians gone Northward over the line as will go week after next to see the Carolina-Virginia football game. At least so it would appear from the telegrams and letters that are coming in a steady flood into the office of the graduate manager of athletics, Charles T. Woolen.

Everybody After Tickets.
 "Tickets! Tickets! We want tickets!" is the burden of the cry, not only from alumni but also from other North Carolinians who look upon the battle as something far more than a college affair—as a test of strength and mettle between Virginia and North Carolina. Mr. Woolen is having to pass the requests on to Charlottesville.

Special Pullman cars are to be run to Charlottesville from cities and towns all over the State, from Asheville in the mountains, from Wilmington on the coast, and from probably more than a score of places in between. The railroads—Southern, A. C. L., Norfolk and Southern, and the rest—are advertising special excursion rates. Every day news comes to Chapel Hill of some new party that has been made up. And there will be many who go by automobile.

Carolina's Record Draws Many.
 Of course, the string of Carolina victories this season has a great deal to do with the wide spread enthusiasm about making the trip. The triumph over V. M. I. in Richmond last Saturday was all that was needed to bring North Carolina seal to the boiling point. V. M. I. beat Virginia, 14 to 0, and Carolina beat V. M. I., 9 to 7.

Plainly this indicates a good chance for Tar Heel success on Thanksgiving Day. Carolina expectations have been disappointed in the past too often for the invaders to feel cocksure. They are never free from suspicion that a dread "something" may turn the tables. Yet, with the season's record in view, it would be strange, indeed, if there were not a pretty general feeling of confidence that this is Carolina's year.

A big section of the grandstand at Lambeth Field has been reserved for North Carolinians, but everybody who wants a place had better hasten to send a certified check or money order to D. E. Brown, graduate manager of athletics, University, Va. He is handling the sale of seats and will fill requests in the order in which they are received. It means a loss of time to make application here. Tickets are sold at $2.00 each.

It is thought here that considerably more than half of the Carolina section has been spoken for already by forehanded football fans. Mr. Woolen says that never before in his experience as graduate manager has he seen evidence of such determination on the part of North Carolinians to see a game so far away from home.

GENERALS PREPARE FOR TECH CONTEST

BY L. S. JOEL
 LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 15.—With the squad somewhat recovered from their poor condition of the past two weeks, the Generals are preparing for their annual affair with Virginia

VIRGINIA IS AFTER SCALP OF MOUNTAINEERS IN SATURDAY'S BATTLE; START JOURNEY TODAY

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 15.—Virginia goes to play West Virginia at Morganton on Saturday, and in spite of the stainless record of the boys from across the mountain border the Orange and Blue eleven is out to win. Monday, the men who played against Georgia were given a complete rest while the subs and the scrubs had a tussle. This afternoon the drill was a stiff one.

"Bib Charlie" Fenwick, whose three tries for field goals against the Bulldogs all went bad, two missing the uprights by a few feet and one being touched by a Georgian, has been paying special attention to his part of the play. While the other regulars were laying off yesterday he was out on the field practicing on drop kicking and punts.

Starting off the season by making each of the first six trials after touchdowns good for an extra point, Fenwick began to slide back in the Hopkins game until after the Georgia Tech in Lynchburg by hard practices every afternoon. Monday was a rest up day from the struggle with Central but sure then stiff workouts have been their program.

Monk Mattox did not play in the center game at all but was saving himself for the V. P. I. game. Arbogast played only a small part of the time and Tom Hennis was also kept out of the game. Eddie Cameron played the best game of any Blue and White man on the field and he gained a well earned through the line on powerful plunges, only to be knocked out in the final quarter. His condition was not as serious as was at first feared, and he will get in the V. P. I. game. On the other hand Walters has not returned to the University yet and it is doubtful if he will get back this year at all. Lewis is out of the game with a bad leg. His 80 yard kick from behind the Generals' goal line was one of the features of the game.

Following the game with the Gobblers in Lynchburg, there will be but one more opponent in the 1922 schedule, John Hopkins, to be played in

SAME PRESIDENT FOR GOLF BODY

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—J. Frederic Byers, of the Allegheny Country Club, Sewickley, Pa., has been nominated for re-election as president of the United States Golf Association, according to the slate of officers for 1922, announced tonight by the nominating committee. The annual meeting will be held in January.

Six sectional or state golf associations, it was pointed out, are recognized in the nominations, in which is included the Southern Golf Association.

Football And Other Things

By PAT RICHARDS

Can They Repeat?

Last season Carolina approached the annual Davidson game favored by a bright and shining pair of touchdowns to outdo the Wildcats. Those same Wildcats held tight and allowed the University crew to escape with the worse end of a scoreless tie. The big question this year is: will the Wildcats repeat? Can a Davidson team which seems not quite so good as last year's hold or lick a Carolina team that is much stronger than in 1921?

According to late advices from Charlottesville, and Paul Walp has been given a berth in the varsity backfield. The first string guards, Ward and Hainey, who were unavailable to make last week's trip to Athens because of injuries, will probably get into the middle of things at Morgantown.

If things are as they seem, Carolina has a slight edge over Virginia in the matter of schedules, for the Thanksgiving Day classic which annually draws a majority of the citizenry of Tarheelsville either to Charlottesville or Chapel Hill.

This Saturday Carolina should be able to take it at least a little easy against Davidson, while Virginia, facing a superior team, must put on all the steam they have to cope with the West Virginians.

But even if the schedules were reversed, Carolina would still be a favorite to win.

That is a funny turn some of the students at fair Harvard are taking—that the Crimson should play that one football game a year, and that with Yale. For the last decade a progressive movement has carried American colleges further and further from the old hide-bound idea of nothing but intramural sports, and why the learned under-grads should want to revert to the days of cannibalism and Indian massacres is a problem, unless they are thinking of what the Tiger did to them last week and fear a repetition.

SPORTS PROGRAM AT TRINITY FULL

By HENRY BELK
 DURHAM, Nov. 15.—Trinity College second football team will meet the High Point Athletic Club team in High Point on Saturday, according to announcement made today by Graduate Manager H. W. Barnard.

Schedule of this game makes full week in sports for Trinity. On Friday afternoon the varsity meets Presbyterian College in a game which is expected to outlast anything seen on Hanes Field this year, while on the same afternoon a cross-country run between teams representing Trinity, Carolina, Elon and Guilford will be staged.

Twenty men will make the trip to the Furniture City Saturday. Just who the 20 are will probably be determined by practice work during the remainder of the week. Trinity has some good material among the second stringers, and they should become form against the Furniture Makers. As Trinity will this year lose several of her varsity linemen, and as the schedule of this game makes material to fill these holes, the strength which the team shows will be followed closely by observers of the sport. Captain Tom Nea, of the varsity, is expected to pilot the scrum on their invasion.

The cross-country run will be staged Friday afternoon in conjunction with the Trinity-P. C. game, the start to be timed so that the winners will come in between halves of the contest. Trinity, Carolina, Elon and Guilford will each enter. By-ones teams. The runners will follow a 2.5 mile course through the outskirts of Durham and return.

Last year Elon copped the honors in a match against Trinity, her runners scoring a nice pair of touchdowns. This year Coach Burbage has had his men doing faithful training, and they should show some splendid form against Carolina and Guilford are of unknown strength.

TIGER ELEVEN SEES BULLDOG IN MOVIES

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 15.—Figures in the Yale-Princeton football game of last year moved with fantastic swiftness on a screen today in a slow motion picture version which Coach Roper used to point out to the squad its errors of commission and omission.

MACKS TO PLAY IN GREENSBORO

(Special Correspondent The Asheville Citizen)
 GREENSBORO, Nov. 15.—A letter was received today from officials of the Philadelphia American League Club, the Athletics, by the new owners of the Greensboro Club, seeking to book a game here on next April 14, when Connie Mack's bunch will be returning to Philadelphia from its southern training camp.
