"The ideals of democratic government and democratic education were planted simuleducation were planted simul-ianeously in our country. The fathers rightly believed that only a people trained to vision of public needs and duties could develop and maintain the institutions of popular government. The system of universal education, established in the beginning, has de-veloped with the country and become one of the character-istic features of our life. In it we have laid the foundation of that system of American culture which has enabled us to absorb and assimilate mil-lions who have come to us

liofs who have come to us from many countries, bring-ing the traditions of widely varying institutions.
"In order that we may keep in mind the need constantly to improve our educational sys-tem, it is proposed that the week of December 3-9, inclu-sive, be set aside for special observance as American eduobservance as American edu-cation week. It is recom-mended to the governors of the states that they co-operare with the squeational and livic authorities of their com-monwealths to make the week a period for revival of interest in the broad work of national education.

"It is gratifying to know that in a time when public burdens have lain very heavy upon the people there has been everywhere a determined purpose to maintain education un-impaired in lorder that the coming generation may be equipped, regardless of sacri-fices in the present, for the increasing responsibilities which it must bear. * * * The strength and security of the nation will always rest in the intelligent body of its people. Our education should implant conceptions of public duty and private obligations broad enough to envisage the problems of a greatly dis-traught world. More than anything else, men and wo-men need the capacity to see men need the capacity to see with clear eyes and to contemplate with open, unprejudiced mind, the issuances of these times. Only through a properly motivated and generously inspired process of education can this be accompublished.
