VAILLANT PUT TO DEATH

Auguste Vaulant, the Anarchist, who on December 9 last threw a bomb into the French Chamber of Deputies, was executed at about 7.30 o'clock a. m., outside the Prison Roquette, Paris. At 7 o'clock Head Warden Brun, Judge l'Espinasse, Registrar Horgch and District Commissary Leigonte entered Vaillant's cell to inform him that the ime had arrived for the sentence of the law be carried out. The condemned man was leaping when they arrived. He was awakened and told to prepare for death. He appeared to be surprised and began to iterate the theories he advanced before the Assize Court. He declared that though it was easy to suppress him, it was impossible o suppress Anarchist ideas. "My body is othing," he added, "compared with the progress of my principles. I shall be roenged. Vaillant was perfectly calm and displayed to fear whatever. The warden asked him i the warden. "No," Vaillant replied : "I shall have mough courage without that."

As a matter of fact, the courage of the conemned man was remarkable, as the later inridents showed. He was shackled by the executioner's assistants and then ordered to follow to the guillotine. He obeyed the ocder readily, and as he left the prison his form was upright. He walked as quickly as his shackles would allow, without leaning for support on the assistants, one of whom walked on each side of him. As Vaillant appeared congregation, knocking down the sides of the building as it went. Not one of the forty persons escaped uninjured, and most of them were pinned down by the falling timbers. The citizens rallied to the relief of the sufferers and pried them out. Mrs. R. H. Prehard, wife of the general manager of the Alabama Rolling Company, was killed outright. Tom Williams, a young man living hree miles from Gate City, was bally crushed, his back having been broken. He soon died. Miss Estelle Jones was mortally hurt, her head and shoulders being crushed, About thirty others were injured. The hurch was a wooden structure and was built on a hill. This, it is thought, caused the wreck.

Two Members of the Turner Family Killed by Dr. William Nolin.

In a fight at Harlan Court House, Harlan County, Kentucky, John Turner and Will Turner, an uncle of John and a brother of Judge George B. Turner, were killed outright. The fight occurred in a barber shop on the Court House square. Dr. William Nolin and John Turner have been enemies for years, and their friends have always endeavored to keep them apart. They came together, however, and began shorting. Nolin was not thurr, but Turner was shot through the heart and fell dead. Notin had discharged all the loads in his revolver. Wil Turner had arrived and attacked Nohn Turher had no revolver, and the two men drew knives and slashed at each other. Turner was fatally cut. Notin's injuries are not serious.

scenes on the floor could be witnessed. The public galleries were quickly filled to overflowing. Every seat was occupied, and all the available standing room in the aisles was filled with men and women. The Capitol police were powerless to handle the crowd, and a detail from the city police force had to be called in to prevent a crush in the corridors on the gallery floor that might have resulted in fatalities. The pressure for admission to the private galleries was so great that soon after the House was called to order, the doorkeapers were instructed to admit the families of members to the floor, and soon every available inch of space back of the seats was occupied. Many members gave up their seats, and the gay dresses of women gave an unwonted color to the scene.

There was a secret about this angel's name that was not given me, but from the tenderness and sweetness and affection and interest taken in my walk through heaven, and more than all in the fact of thirty-two years' residence, the number of years since she ascended, I think it was my mother. But I said there was one exception to this fashion of white perva ling all the auditorium and clear up through all the galleries. It was the attire of the one who presided in that immense temple-the chiefest, the mightiest, the loveliest person in all the place. His cheeks seemed to be flushed with afinite beauty, and his forehead was a morning sky, and his lips were eloquence omnipotent. But his attire was of deep colors. They suggested the earnage through

I said to my accompanying angel, "Who is that standing yonder with the harp?" and the answer was, "David !" And I said, "Who is that sounding that trumpet?" and the answer was "Gabriel!" And I said, "Who is that at the organ?" and the answer was "Handei!" And the music rolled on till it came to a doxology extolling Christ Himself, when all the worshipers, ower down and higher up, a thousand galleries of them, suddenly dropped on their knees and chanted, "Worth is the Lamb that YOU WANT PAY THEIR THEMTOPAY THEIR Was slain," Under the overpowering har-mony I fell back. the overwhelming symphony. But I noticed as I was about to turn away that on the steps of the altar was something like the lachyrmal, or tear bottle, as I had seen it in the earthly museus, the lachrymals, or tear bottles, into which the orientals used to weep their griefs and set them away as sacred. But this lachyrmal, or tear bottle, in stead of earthenware, as those the orientals used, was lustrous and fiery with many splendors, and it was towering and of great capacity. And I said to my attending opened angel, "What is that great lachrymal, or tear bottle, standing on the step of the aitar?" and the angel said : "Why, don't you know? That is the bottle to which David, the psalmist, referred in this filty-sixth psalm when he said, 'Put thou my tears into thy bottle.' It is full of tears from earth-tears of repentance, tears of bereavement, tears of joy. tears of many centuries." And then I saw As I was coming out of the temple I saw all along the pictured walls there werd shelves, and golden vials were being set up on all those shelves. And I said . "Why the setting up of all these vials at this time? They seem just now to have been filled." and the attending angel said, "The week of prayer all around the earth has just closed, and more supplications have been made than have been made for a long while, and these new vials, newly set up, are what the Bibla speaks of as "golden vials full of odors, which are the prayers of saints." And I sail to the accompanying angel, "Can it be possible that the prayers of earth are worthy of being kept in such heavenly shape?" "Why," said the angel, "there is nothing that so moves heaven as the prayers of earth, and they are set up in sight of these infinite multitudes, and, more than all, in the sight of Christ, and He cannot forget them, and they are before Him world without end." WILLIAM L. WILSON Many ex-members of Congress were present to listen to the debate, and Governors Francis, of Missouri, and Greenhalge, of Massachusetts, were on the floor, as was also ex-Governor Russell, of Massachusetts.

Prominent in the Speaker's gallery were Mgr. Satolli, the Papal Delegate to the United States, and Cardinal Gibbons, both of whom listened to the speeches with the closest attention. The Diplomatic and Executive galleries filled up under pressure for seats by others than those for whom they are generally reserved. The scene on the floor of the House was just as exciting as in the galleries, and there was an air of eager expectancy in the faces of the members as they moved about the floor and gathered in knots to discuss the all important question of the day.

The Speaker's table was ornamented with a magnificent bunch of long stemmed Marechal Neil roses.

The leaders on both sides were accorded ovations as they entered the hall. As ex-Speaker Reed pushed through one of the lobby doors on the way to his seat, the galleries recognized him, and the applause which greeted his appearance was pro-longed for tully half a minute. Mr. Reed bowed his acknowledgments. A similar demonstration occurred when Speaker Crisp, dignified and erect, ascended the rostrum and called the House to order.

The speeches were not to begin until noon according to the special order. The hour which intervened after the reading of the journal witnessed a continuation of the skirmish over the amendment to the barley schedule.

Before a vote on it could be taken, Chairman Richardson rapped loudly for order. "The hour of 12 o'clock having arrived," said he, "the Committee will now rise and report this bill to the House." The Speaker reascended the rostrum and the gavel was passed to him. Mr. Richardson moved around to the area in front of the Speaker's chair, and, according to the parliamentary formula, reported that the Com-mittee of the Whole had had under consideration House Bill 4864 (Tariff bill), and reported it to the House with sundry amend-

The announcement by the Speaker of the fact that the bill was passed got a fleeting burst of applause, but the crowd knew it long before and was dissolving like the mist through the dim corridors and gloomy halls of the great building, hurrying home. The session had lasted for seven hours.

MESSAGE ON HAWAII.

More Correspondence Sent to Congress by the President.

The President sent in a short message to Congress about Hawaiian matters,

He transmitted a letter received from Minister Willis in reference to the reply of President Dole to Mr. Willis's request for specific answers to what Mr. Cleveland termed Mr. Dole's "most extraordinary" document.

In forwarding the letter to the President Secretary Gresham says that dispatches 25. 26 and 27, received from Mr. Willis, are not inclosed. They relate solely to routine legation matters and the Minister's accounts. The letter of Mr. Willis to Mr. Gresham follows

"LEGATION OF THE UNITED STATES. ) Honolulu, H. I., January 12, 1893. "Hon. W. Q. Gresham, Secretary of State "Sir-On yesterday, at 6.30 p. m., I received the Hon. S. B. Dole's answer to my letter of January 1, requesting him, 'at his earliest convenience,' to give me the specifications contained in a prior letter. His answer is about fifty pages of closely-written official paper, and has been delivered to me too late to either copy or reply to in time for the steamer leaving at 2 a.m. to-day.

"There is one extract, however, to which 1 think your attention should be called wherein it is stated 'this Government has been and now is subjected to the necessity of increased watchfulness, and large additional expense, which but for such attitude, would have been unnecessary.

"The emphasis above is mine. In a previous letter of December 27th Minister Dole had stated that 'the Government offleers have been placed and still continue in a condition of defense and preparation for siegs, and the community has been put into a state of mind bordering on terrorism.' The emphasis above is mine. Some portions of the letters from which these extracts are made confirm the above statements, while others seem to negative them. With this explanation I submit them for your consid-

THOMAS B. REED.

"The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maine," said the Speaker, with a last rap of

Mr. Reed was greeted by a tremendous burst of applause on the Republican side, which spread to the galleries and swept in wave after wave around the great cham. ber. He stool for a moment silence, and then, raising his hand, stilled the tumuit of applause and began his speech. He spoke without notes, but his speech had been carefully prepared and committed to memory, and he delivered it with great deliberation and impressiveness. As he sat down at his conclusion, he was surrounded by Republican members and was cheered from the galleries until he retired to the cloak room. During Mr. Reed's speech Speaker Crisp surrendered the chair to Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, and took his seat near the centre of the Democratic side. As soon as the applause which greeted Mr. Reed's conclusion had subsided Mr. Crisp was recognized, and received an ovation from the Democratic side of the House that fully equalled that which the Republicans had given their leader.

At the close of Speaker Crisp's address he was greeted with a repetition of the applause When which had greeted his appearance. this had subsided in some degree, Chairman Wilson, who closed the debate in a thirtyminute speech, spoke with a force and vigor that were unexpected because of the reports that have been frequently heard of late in regard to the condition of his health. The speech was a polished one, and in some respects
