EDENTON, N. C. April 6th, 1894.

The selection by Gov. Northern of Speaker Crisp to be Senator from Georgia is highly creditable to all concerned.

To injure the efficiency of our public school system would be to put North Carolina behind all other States.—Winston Sentinel.

The appointment by President Cleveland of Mr. E. F. Lamb, to the Postmastership of E. City, was a most excellent one and well deserved.

Governor Jones, of Alabama, has written a letter in reply to Hoar, in which he pins him and roasts Kolb, the ally of the Massachusetts corruptionist.

Does the New York Sun miss the mark when it says: "Judged by the conduct of the majority of Democrats at Washington, there are no Democratic principles."

Speaker Crisp can't be spared. The House of Representatives needs somebody who can squelch Czar Reed with neatness and dispatch about four times a week, says the Baltimore News.

The Durham Recorder, one of the oldest papers in the State, changed hands Saturday. Mr. E. C. Hackney, who has been the editor and owner for many years, sold out to Mr. Garland E. Webb, formerly editor and proprietor of the Winston Daily World.

One of the African kings is having a daisy umbrella built in London. The staff will be fifteen feet long, the ribs of brass ten feet, the whole covered with silk, making a tent big enough to cover the king and his royal household. With an umbrella like that a fellow might grin at the impromptu borrower.—Ex.

The Wilmington Messenger truthfully says:

"The blood shedding and mauling in South Carolina show how much damage and danger a bad, head-strong man—a political crank—may do. We were prepared to expect just such a sad condition of affairs in that State from the high-handed performances of the fellow who writes himself Governor."

Public men and leading Southern Democratic newspapers all condemn the veto of the President of the silver Seigniorage bill. The South is well nigh as united against the veto as the North is united in favoring the veto. The West is divided, but the majority of Democratic newspapers no doubt condemn the course of the President. The Republican politicians and newspapers are rejoicing.

The name of Wm. M. Bond, Esq., of Edenton, has been frequently mentioned recently as the successor of Hon. J. H. Blount, who declines a renomination for Solicitor of the First Judicial District of North Carolina. Mr. Bond is well known to the people and bar of this district as a lawyer of signal ability, a Democratic politician of courageous convictions, a gentleman of the highest character and whose personal courtesy has won him friends wherever he is known. He has represented Mr. Blount in several courts of this district and his management of the State docket has given general satisfaction. He would be a worthy successor of a long line of distinguished Solicitors who have given honor to the district and to North Carolina. Following the line of a previous suggestion of this paper we take pleasure in formally presenting the name of Mr. Bond before the next Judicial Convention of this district for our next Solicitor and bespeak from our people such a support as would be honorable to him and themselves.—Economist-Falcon.

We heartily endorse the above. Mr. Bond is one of Edenton's best known gentlemen, and his nomination should receive no opposition.

NOT THAT BLUE.

Miss Hanks—Who is that man with the empty sleeve you just spoke of?—Clement—Capt. Ketchum. He lost an arm winning a victory for the blue. Miss Hanks—Introduce me; I have a brother at Yale.—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

HAYWOOD'S CELEBRITIES.

Rarely do our citizens have the opportunity to hear such famous and popular artists as will appear with Haywoods Celebrities at Rea's Opera House, Monday April 9th. It is an opportunity that the lover of the beautiful, the sublime, and that which elevates can not afford to miss, while those who seek a lighter vein or the emotional can laugh and weep with Miss Rowell, the queen of impersonators.

Members of this company have appeared as soloists with the following well known artists: Mlle Albini, Marie Roze, Campanini, Mme Scaldi, Sarasate, Jules Massenet, Servais, Mme Laura Schimer-Mapleson, Miss Hope Glenn (with Patti), Arditi, (Patti's musical director), Mme Basta Tavery, Neil Burgess Pauline Montegriffo, Mlle Rhe, and others. Our people can expect a performance of exceptional brilliancy. Manager Rea has secured this company on a very heavy guarantee, and we trust the theatre goers of our town will show their appreciation of a good thing by a most liberal patronage. Seats on sale at Brinkley's Emporium.

COXEY'S ARMY.

Coxey's celebrated Army of the Commonwealth have reached Pittsburg, Penn., and are now 300 strong. It is said that Coxey and a large number of his followers have decided to take a trip through the Southern States as soon as his mission in Washington is fulfilled. This decision was arrived at a day or so ago, and the trip will be made with a view of converting as many Southern people as possible to the ideas advanced by Coxey. As at present figured out by Coxey, it will require the best part of two months for his army to go to Washington. He will make a trip through Virginia, North and South Carolina, being joined in the latter State by Frye and his Texas band. The scheme is to win the Southern farmers over to the Coxeys-Browne-Smith ideas. When this is completed the task of the reformers will be fulfilled and the army will disband.

THE DAMAGE AT NEW BERNE.

The New Berne Journal of March 28th speaking of the cold snap and the damage done by it in that section, says: "The predicted frost and freeze both struck us with considerable severity. The thermometer went down Monday night to 26 and the result was the killing of a deal of the tenderest truck and severe injuries to other truck as well as fruit. Potatoes are cut down, but they will be later than they otherwise would and the yield somewhat diminished. All the potatoes were not up and those late ones will beyond doubt do the best. Peas are badly injured. Some of the truckers say they do not now look for more than a fourth of a crop. They were well advanced and scarcely anything is expected from the young peas and blooms that have put forth. This will make the crop both late and short. Some think that the vines lay on the ground the under blooms and peas, being protected, will survive and give a partial crop even of the first ones."

A BOOKSELLER'S catalogue recently published in Birmingham, England, gives a careful description of a portrait of Lord Cornwallis, painted in 1788, in which he is represented standing on an eminence overlooking the town and straits of Gibraltar, "while stretching away in the background several ships are steaming along the straits and emitting huge clouds of smoke." It was one of these steamships probably that carried Lord Cornwallis back to England after the surrender at York town.

The supreme court of Indiana recently made a decision which declares the saloon, even though licensed by the state, a nuisance, and that the proprietors thereof are liable for damages for injury to adjacent property depreciated, either for sale or rental, by the presence of the saloon. If the courts of all the states should so declare the saloon would get a black eye, for it does just that wherever placed. Even the regular toper prefers to raise his family some distance away from the saloon.

WAR IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

A FIGHT BETWEEN THE CITIZENS AND CONSTABULARY.

For some time past the towns of Darlington and Florence, S. C., have been in a state of great excitement over the Dispensary Law.

It seems there had been reports that Tillman's constables, or spies, would search private houses for liquor, and Gov. Tillman was asked about it, and he was reported as having said yes, that private houses would be searched, and trunks and boxes, &c., would be searched. The constables then went to Darlington, raided seven or eight business places and stated that they would next raid private houses. As if by magic, the citizens of the town appeared with shot-guns and other weapons, and formed themselves into a party, declaring that they would not submit to such an outrage.

The spies telegraphed to Gov. Tillman. He wired sheriff Scarborough that he must protect the officers of the State. The sheriff wired back that things were too serious for him to do anything himself. Tillman then wired to Capt. Thompson, of the Darlington Guards, to place his company at the service of the sheriff. The captain assured the Governor that this would be done. A telegram to the Governor shortly afterwards stated that while Capt. Thompson and the sheriff were consulting at the court house the mob had gone to the company's armory and had taken off all the arms and ammunition.

Gov. Tillman wired to Chief Constable Gaillard, at Charleston, to collect his entire force of spies for the lower section of the State and go to Darlington as soon as possible. Last Friday the constables were at the depot and a fight occurred, when Constable McClendon shot a man by the name of Redmond. McClendon then also shot Norment, and then the citizens drew their pistols and a general fusillade on both sides began. Seventy-five or a hundred shots were fired. One citizen was struck five times; another was struck twice; the Chief of Police was struck; one of the constables was killed; another mortally wounded; one had his nose shot off; one was shot in the back and another in the leg. The constables then fled to the woods, and bodies of citizens went to hunt for them, but they were not found. A dispatch says: The mob was composed of the most prominent and the very best people of the city, who are determined to resist any effort attempted to oust them from their private houses with their lives. They are determined people and any attempt to make such raids will result in serious trouble. The three Columbia companies of State troops disbanded, rather than obey the Governor's orders. The excitement is at fever heat.

Treatment of the Insane. Ministering to minds diseased is one of the most difficult and, as at present managed, the most hopeless tasks. Existing conditions are due largely to circumstances over which the friends of the unfortunate and the general public have no control. But all the same, these conditions work directly against the patient's recovery and serve to increase the tendency to vagaries in minds only slightly unbalanced. It is said by medical and mental scientists that there is no such thing as a perfectly balanced intellect. Every human being has some idiosyncrasy, some flaw in the construction, some weak spot that under undue pressure will give way and reduce the victim to a state of insanity or hopeless crankiness. The first and indispensable requirement for persons afflicted with mental unsoundness is a situation entirely apart from others similarly affected. Quarantining insane patients in wards and permitting free intercourse among those given to all sorts of eccentricities are, in the opinion of the New York Ledger, unquestionably the worst folly of which the caretakers of these people can be guilty. By constant association and daily interchange of thought and opinion these unbalanced minds have every opportunity to absorb more that is detrimental and to learn thousands of whims and caprices that, alone and untaught, they would never have dreamed of. An unsettled brain is fertile ground for the growth of the rank weeds of evil thought and desire, and these creatures, in almost all cases persons of exceedingly active and nervous temperaments, are simply undergoing a process of education that is likely to destroy whatever healthy and natural brain-tissue their misfortunes may have left them. Thrown constantly in the way of the lowest and most abandoned forms of mind-disease, it is perfectly natural that they should become familiar with it, and, as they are idle and easily attracted by things new and strange, they are almost certain to grow worse instead of better. Much the better plan, in place of this herding together of the insane, as is generally practiced, would be some arrangement by which each individual case could have special treatment carefully adapted to the needs of that particular case. Let the highly nervous or excitable person be in charge of some thoughtful, far-seeing nurse or physician, one who would be content to let nature do something, and would, instead of flogging, nagging and worrying the patient, seek to remove all irritating causes and conditions and give the overstrained nerves the opportunity to regain their normal strength.

HE KNEW HIS BUSINESS.

Kind-Hearted Maiden (fishing for a stray penny in her purse)—I suppose you poor blind people feel your misfortune keenly?—Blind Medicant—Yes, indeed. The Lord only knows how I miss the pleasure of being able to look into the beautiful faces of the handsome and lovely ladies who are kind enough to donate—Kind-Hearted Maiden (fishing out a quarter)—Here, poor fellow, take this. I'm sure you are deserving.—Puck.

LATE NEWS.

The Baltimore Southern Methodist Conference has expelled Rev. C. M. Bragg for immorality, and is looking into charges against Rev. V. W. Wheeler.

The Atlantic and Danville railroad was sold at Norfolk on Tuesday last, under order of the United States court for $1,105,000, to D. E. Newgass and associates.

Pendergast, the bloody and brutal assassin of Mayor Carter Harrison, of Chicago, who was sentenced to be hanged on Friday, March 23rd, has been respited for two weeks.

Wayland Rollins, ex-policeman, on trial at Durham for the murder of a countryman, has been acquitted and released. He was a year ago convicted of murder, but the Supreme Court granted a new trial.

A curiosity in the shape of a human midget is reported as having recently been born at Killingworth, Conn. The father is employed by a farmer cutting timber, and weighs about 190 pounds. The child is a male, as perfectly formed as any being can be, and on its birth weighed only eight ounces. Its face is about the size of a horse chestnut. A ring worn on the little finger of its mother was easily slipped over his foot nearly up to the knee. It is the opinion of the attending physician that the child will live. It is so small that three of its like could play hide and seek in a cigar box.—Henderson Gold Leaf.

The Third Party people have been making a great affair over a recent convention of Alliance people in Gates county. They make it a grand rally with increased numbers, and a fresh revival of old issue, when in fact we are informed by a most intelligent and observant citizen of Gates that such was not the case. That the entire number of participants in that convention was 71—and they were composed entirely of the moss-back followers of that reckless gang, with those who professed any intelligence, decency left out. The sturdy farmers, good honest men, who originally were roped in, under the flattering and insidious promises of Marion Butler, have seen the utter hollowness of their principles and have determined to retrace their steps, allying themselves with that old party that has been battling against all principalities and power for the redress that the Third Party profess to want, to wit—the welfare of the farmers.—Economist-Falcon.
