

Health And Happiness

Belongs to those who ride the wheel. The idea of exercise. Spring is the time one needs regular outdoor exercise something that will not only help to throw off that tired feeling but give strength and pleasure.

There is no other form of exercise so healthful, helpful and strengthening which can be regulated to fit the strength of any individual as cycling. "Throw your back to the dogs."

The best spring medicine and system-tuner is cycling, when entered into its spirit.

The best exercise the best medicine and the best bicycle, all three can be had of the Hathaway Bros., at the same time. Call or write for prices.

FRILLS AND FLUFFS.

Fur is mingled with other trimmings, but of castor crushed velvet. Narrow black satin ribbon is frilled about the crown and brim at intervals. At the left side three milk tails are clustered among four tips matching the velvet in color. Under the brim shaded red roses are bunched on a band and relieve the dullness of the neutral hues.

Jacket fronts are an innovation in the long-skirted Russian frock coat.

Trimming by the yard may be obtained to match the ornaments described.

All steel and jet-and-steel passementeries in open devices are fashionable upon vesting or carriage gowns of gray cloth or silk in shades of gray. Usually two in one of the new or two-tone will be used in conjunction with the passementerie. All-jet passementeries in motifs and also in bands are effectively used on both colors and black.

An example of the tasteful effect of a green and castor combination is given in a toque composed of four doubled frills of crushed green velvet in a leaf shade, a dull silver enamel-studded ornament being fixed on the crown. Two green-and-white tips rise at the left side, and on the band, which is a conspicuous feature of the toque, are clustered green and castor roses in addition to a green and castor lip, both of which are arranged at the back of the band to drop on the hair.

Like the blouse-jacket, the blouse-bodice confronts one at every turn.

Hercules chevrons are worn across colored grounds in another type of gown.

Doubled, undulating lines are raised like silk cord from dark-red and other colored wool fabrics with a surface like broadcloth.

Wide and narrow black satin stripes cross on bayadere velours grounds in dark-blue, green, golden-brown, castor and gray—from The Designer.

A STYLISH CAPE OF VELVET AND SILK.

No wrap has yet been devised that will entirely outstrip the cape. There are many new ideas in the shaping and decoration of these small outside garments and it is very difficult to make a selection; the modes are so numerous and so attractive. The cape shown in the sketch, and taken from the current number of The Designer, may be varied to suit personal fancy—that is, may be made of any material, color, or trimmings. Violet velvet, with delicate lavender was selected for the cape in this instance and fur and jet provide the decoration. The protective collar is a good feature of the mode and ribbon surrounds it and is bowed stylishly in front. A cape of cloth, velvet or silk made up in this style will be attractive. Specially prepared for us by The Tailor Publishing Co. (Limited).

EASTER

How the Day was Celebrated in Elizabeth City.

Easter was a rainy and gloomy day in Elizabeth City. Threatening clouds hung in the skies all day, with now and then a heavy drizzle to give a desolate look to streets, and dampen the ardor of any over venture some Easter costume. Proud Beauty, with waiting finery, peeped often through the curtained windows, scowling impatiently at the clouds that refused to go away, but were all the while being re-enforced by a brisk northwest wind. And also the day was robbed of its usual brilliant setting—the smart gowns that are the fashion for the coming season, and the brilliant creations of the milliner's art.

However this did not interfere with the attendance upon the churches, as the congregations were large, both morning and evening, and the great Christian festival was celebrated with prayer and praise—the special music being exceptionally fine.

At the Episcopal Church the decorations were beautiful and the service was in keeping with the day and occasion. Rev. Dr. Williams, rector, conducted the service and preached a splendid Easter sermon, which held the undivided attention of the congregation. The music by the choir was a chief attraction of the service. The afternoon exercises were a special Easter service for the children of the Sunday school, composed of music and recitations. The parents and friends were out in numbers enjoying the beautiful effect of the service, and it is hard to see how any one could have failed to enjoy it.

An immense congregation attended the services at the Methodist church, as Easter Sunday there is always celebrated in the most approved style. At the altar rail stately palms, hand some potted plants, beautiful roses and other cut flowers, were arranged by experienced hands.

The choir, under the direction of its skillful leader, Mrs. Thompson, was at its best, and the service was pre-eminently one of praise—sacred music and anthems—music that goes deeper into the souls than all else, save love.

It is music that takes one out of one's self and worldly things. The song of the Risen Christ was everywhere. And, as one listened, he forgot even the glorious voice, telling of the love which passeth all understanding, and thought only of the theme.

The address by Rev. J. H. Hall was short but highly appropriate.

At night the service was particularly pleasing, it being set apart as an Easter festival for children, and the young folks rendered the programme with such harmony as is worthy of the highest praise.

The usual services were held at the other churches.
