The situation of the foreigners in Shanghai awakens concern here. The Cologne Gazette prints a powerful article, arguing that the powers should treat the Chinese just as barbarous as African tribes are treated by the Europeans, who burn whole villages as a punishment for crimes, It says: "Should the punishment be any less for a people proud of their antique civilization, like the Chinese, who must be conscious of their atrocities, than for the savages and the cannibal? Certainly not, since the higher the civilization the more aggravating the circumstances. Consequently, Pekin should be razed to the ground.'
