

URGENCY CALL.

A great many people are due to small amounts on subscription if you are one of them please do us the kindness to send or hand it to us at once. To day—not tomorrow. We wish to give our patrons a paper worthy of their support and can only do it by meeting with prompt settlement of subscriptions.

We cannot afford to publish the paper except upon basis of cash in advance, and the paper will not be sent to anyone, hereafter, until paid for.

All who are in arrears are expected to pay up to date, and if they wish paper continued renew their subscription.

We are sending out bills to all our subscribers who are six months in arrears. We trust that these "gentle reminders" will not only refresh the memory, but induce our friends to call in and settle their accounts, or send to us, if you cannot call. We have furnished the paper and need the money. Be kind enough to come to our help.

CO-OPERATION.

The beauty of co-operation is that while one is helping others he is also helping himself.

Man is essentially a social being, and he finds his best in association.

It is said that the only way in which fuels are finally broken up is not by separating the antagonists by throwing around them the influences of social life and bringing them together.

City people enjoy many conveniences and comforts and even luxuries, which would be entirely impossible if they were isolated. Under the best conditions of life in the country there are so many things desirable, which are unattainable, that it is little wonder that everybody wishes to sell out the farm and move to town when considered from that standpoint.

We believe that things can be vastly bettered, if the country people will learn the lesson of co-operation. The telephone is a great convenience. It would be comparatively an easy matter for every home, along the public highways, at least, to enjoy the luxury of a telephone, by which neighbors could exchange gossip or impart information and sometimes insure protection.

A few years ago ice was regarded as a luxury. Through co-operation ice has become more of a necessity than luxury today, because brought easily within reach of all.

If neighbors would co-operate ice plants could be as established at convenient points as easily as saw mills or cotton gins. Do you laugh at the idea? That's the way to do it, and it's the only way. The truth is that the secret of success in public enterprises is simply that of co-operation.

Take a hundred men, each willing to spend one hundred dollars on some improvement or to secure for themselves some desirable object. One hundred dollars by itself would not make even a beginning. Two hundred would not go far, but a hundred hundred dollars, ($10,000) goes to the impossible within reach of each individual so that while his investment is blessing himself, the individual is helping others at the same time.

Let our country friends improve their surroundings. Admitting that this is easier said than done, we do not hesitate to say that it is easier of accomplishment than most people imagine.

A grass cutter, hammer and nails, glass and putty, and a tub of whitewash would transform some unsightly premises into pictures of restful invitation to enjoy one self.

Take more time for social enjoyment. Get better acquainted with your neighbors. Get something more than mere drudgery out of life. Honest toil on the farm is as honorable as toil anywhere else. Find out what you need and then pull together as one man and lo! the thing is done.

We love to get out in the country and enjoy the whole-souled hospitality of our country friends but we always feel like exhorting them to stand together not against their men, but for all possible improvement among themselves in schools, in churches, in everything. Co-operation is at last the concentration of forces which are potential only when united.

"Lee Triskery, of Glenwood, Wis., claims to be the heaviest man in the world. He weighs 560 pounds."—The Commoner. Lewis Lewark, of Currituck county, North Carolina, a seven year old boy, weighs 690 pounds. The gentleman from Wisconsin will please take a back seat.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and re-told by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by all druggists.
