Harrels Store School

Franklin high school is ideally situated forward and in the middle of a 4 1/2 acre plot of ground on highway 60 near Harrels Store in Franklin township.

The Franklin high school plant is exactly like that of Ingold high school. It is a wooden, steam heated structure, one story high, containing ten class rooms, four office rooms, an auditorium large enough to seat 500. It is an accredited high school, group 2 class A.

We have in the Franklin school eleven grades teachers and one music teacher. There is a teacher to each grade in the elementary department and four in the high school who teach according to subjects not grades. The building is seated throughout with single patent desks. The class rooms are properly lighted. We have a school library of 400 volumes; laboratory equipment for the teaching of general science and biology, eighteen standard maps in steel cases; 48 windows are equipped with uniform and standard shades. The school owns one piano and rents a second. One office room is used for music, one for laboratory equipment, one fitted out as a library and one for the principal's office.

The school tries to function as a community center. It tries to fit into the needs of the community and at the same time unify all of its elements.

An unusually large number of public programs are arranged through the year to furnish wholesome entertainment for a rural people. The commencement is given in three distinct programs. This year, primary program February 27; Grammar grades, April 10; high school May 1.

We could use many things in the way of additional equipment, but our real necessities are few. Our teachers need chairs.

Our present senior class numbers 17, most of whom will go to college. Misses Edith Colwell, Junita Wells, Eva Belle Johnson, Mary Ross Pigford, Willie Bernice and Janie Lee Carter will go to East Carolina Training school; David Wells and Henry Lee Johnson will go to W. and L. Azile Rivenbark to Salemburg; Isabelle Coine and Hazel Shaw to Flora McDonald, Horace Tolbot to Wake Forest; A. A. Maynard to N. C. State and Madge Bowen to Meredith.

KING'S SCHOOL

King's school building has two rooms, about 24 feet by 26 feet, with two cloak rooms and a porch. The building is part new and the new part has not been painted and the inside is not painted.

There are 27 home made desks and eight patented desks and the remainder of the seats is benches; not enough of these to seat the pupils as they should be.

There are two tables and one chair. All windows (14) have shades, eleven are new. Also have about 70 feet of blackboard and an organ. There are no maps or globes and no library. From the above an intelligent person can see that we need many things to make our school come up to the standard requirements.

In the seventh grade there are five pupils supposed to complete the seventh grade as outlined by the state course of study. These pupils will possibly enter Faison high school. Most all of the pupils who have attended school regularly and have done the required supplementary reading will be promoted. No pupil can be promoted in any grade until he has done the required work as outlined by the state course of study and has read the three required supplementary books. We have many bright pupils in our school, the only thing they need is a chance. I trust the time is near at hand when we can have better schools and better prepared teachers.

The school is in Piney Grove township, Sampson county district No. 5, is a two teacher school. Principal, Mrs. J. S. Darden, Faison, N. C., and the assistant, Miss Frances Clifton, Faison, N. C. The principal has the grammar grades and the assistant the primary grades.

FANN SCHOOL

Fann school is a two room building painted white, situated on the Dunn public road. Each room is about 24 by 30 feet, provided with a heater, table and chair. There are 36 double home made desks and six patent and one library. Seven grades are taught with a total enrollment of eighty pupils.

We suggest that improvements should be made by providing ground for athletics and books for the library. Single patent desks would add to the comfort of the pupils. Teachers' desks are also a necessity.

The following pupils are planning to enter high school at Salemburg when they complete the required elementary grades: Bula Fann, Lemon Tew, Wilbert Crumpler, Bertice Tyndall, Clifton West, Esther Tew, Okle Tew, Cleo Honeycutt, Rovanie Fann, Eloise Strickland.

WOODLAND SCHOOL

Miss Estelle Alderman, Teacher

Woodland is a one teacher school. The census for the district is 57, about one-fifth of whom go to school at Magnolia. Thirty pupils are enrolled. Five have already completed the seventh grade here and are not in school. Several children in the district who are six years old have not enrolled and only two above the compulsory age are enrolled.

The building was formerly a one room structure about forty feet long and thirty feet wide. Now, however, it has been divided into three rooms by a thin partition.

The double door, at the front, leads into an empty room which has three windows containing altogether sixteen panes.

The school room has three windows on the left and two on the right and two at the back. These windows have all their panes and boast of white scrim half curtains. The furniture consists of twelve small double patent desks, two large patent desks which are in good condition, and six partly broken desks. These are arranged in four rows. At the front of the room stands an oak library table and a swivel chair. A cast iron heater stands in the center of the room, a bookcase containing about twenty books is on the right, a small blackboard on the left. Two 5 by 3 feet blackboards and the daily schedule adorn the front wall.

Another dozen desks, new window shades, door locks are need. New windows are needed for the sashes are so old that the wind blowing against the panes cause them to fall out. However, consolidation would be the best answer to this problem.

Sixth Grade—Virginia Marley, John W. Merritt.
