ANOTHER ACT OF DEVILTRY.

The last Legislature and all the employees, clerks, pages, etc., drew pay for 64 days when they were not entitled to pay but for 60 days, which the Constitution of North Carolina says is the legal time set for the session. Other acts will follow.

POPULIST CREED.

WRITTEN FOR THE COURIER.

I believe in one simple solemn truth, sustained by history and proved by experience. Lying is right, treachery is right, hypocrisy is right, and ingratitude is never wrong. And I believe in politics the only way to save the State is to lie when I can, to take what I can, to deceive when I can, and be true to my friends only, so long as it shall be to my interest to do so. And I believe that, if an one doubts the efficacy of this creed, and he will study the acts of the last Legislature, of North Carolina, he will be thoroughly convinced that I am right.

ANTI-POP.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., July 8, '95.
Much is heard in Washington about the Quay and anti-Quay fight in Pennsylvania. Nobody would care much under ordinary circumstances whether Quay continued to boss the Republicans of the Keystone State or gave way to Hastings, Wanamaker or some other boss, but the presidential politics in the fight in the fight is what has excited general interest. It is really the first of a long string of fights for the control of state delegations to next year's Republican National Convention. Sen. Cameron was egotistical enough at one time to think that he could get delegation for himself, but he doesn't think so now; he will be very lucky indeed if he can succeed in holding on to his seat in the Senate. Quay was supposed to be for McKinley, but he has recently come out for Reed. Wanamaker is, of course for Harrison. It is believed that the result of the fight will show which of the Republican candidates can count upon the solid Pennsylvania delegation to the National Convention, and that the winner will have taken a long step towards getting the nomination.

Many people appear to be under the impression that the entire South is in a white heat on account of political discussions, but that isn't the way men directly from that section who occupy positions which enable them to speak authoritatively on political subjects, talk. For instance, Representative Bate, of Georgia, who is in Washington on business, says:

"Political matters in Georgia are very quiet just now. The Legislature that will elect Senator Gordon's successor will not be chosen until next year, and there is little talk now about candidates. Our people are busy getting in their crops, which, I am glad to say, promise to be good. I don't know how the State would go on the free coinage question. It will be time enough to settle that when we have to vote upon it, if we ever." Mr. Bate's statement doesn't gee with the sensational stories, sent from Washington, concerning the desperate conflict between ex-Speaker Crisp and Secretary Hoke Smith over that seat in the Senate—truth and sensationalism seldom do.

Ex-Senator Camden, of West Virginia, who is a close observer, thus sums up the political situation: "Two or three months ago I wouldn't have given a copper for the chances of the Democratic party. Since then there has been a marked change in public sentiment, due largely to the improvement that has taken place throughout the country. Cattle has gone up, so has wheat, so has cotton, so has iron, so have wages. All these things redound to the credit of the party, and my belief is that it will triumph in '96."

Ex-Governor Campbell passed through Washington on his way home from New York, where he made a great speech at the big Tammany meeting. He reported the New York Democrats as being confident of an early return to power, and said of the Ohio situation: The Democrats are not making a hopeless campaign in Ohio. They are going in to make a stiff fight, and the Republicans will have no walk over. From a National standpoint the party is in a good condition and there is solid ground for encouragement in the bettered condition of the country. It is noticeable, too, that the improvement is marked in certain lines where the Democrats reduced duties, as in the iron, steel, and woolen industries."

SENATOR RANSOM.

This distinguished ex-Senator has returned from Mexico, and is now trying to recuperate his health in the mountains of Virginia and North Carolina. It was supposed that when he first went to Mexico as minister plenipotentiary that the change of climate to Mexico would greatly benefit him and that the climate was specially suited to his condition, but it seems that the reverse was true. Every patriotic Carolinian will sympathise with him. He is now our foremost statesman, and his long public service has made him more conspicuous and better, and more favorably known than any living son.

The last report from him is that he is improving and that he will return to his post of duty at the expiration of his term of absence. North Carolina has no abler man, and the whole country no more courteous gentleman.—Economist-Falcon.

Lack of desire is one of the greatest riches.

Bicycling is becoming very popular in Mexico and Brazil.
