NRA Drive In Full Swing Here With Hundreds Signing Pledges

Transylvania county people are responding in great fashion to the NRA campaign, with hundreds of people signing the pledge to patronize those people who are supporting the national movement by operating their places of business under the Blue Eagle.

Consumers in Brevard responded to the first day's drive on Monday by over ninety per cent signing up, while the campaign throughout the county did not get under way until Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday, with workers from the various communities reporting fine response.

An executive meeting was held at the U. D. C. Library last Friday night at which time representatives of religious and civic organizations met at the call of Postmaster T. C. Galloway and Mayor J. C. DOLLAR DAY TO BE PUT ON BY CHURCH

A campaign is being launched by the Brevard Methodist church, known as "Dollar Day Sunday," in which each member of the church is urged to pay at least a dollar on the first and third Sundays in September and October. Every member is urged to bring or send a dollar on each of these four Sundays, the amount to be credited on the individual assessments.

It is pointed out by the pastor, Rev. J. H. West, the board of stewards and the charge lay leader, sponsors of the campaign, that there are only two months until annual conference, and that every Sunday and every week day must count for the most for a creditable showing to be made on the church budget at that time. The sponsors of the movement are asking each member of this church to co-operate 100 percent with the dollar day campaign.

The second and fourth Sundays in September and October are to be observed as pay up Sundays. The sponsors are confidently expecting that this plan will meet with hearty response on the part of the church members, and that it will be possible to report the church budget paid in full at the annual conference, which meets in Charlotte early in November.

24 STATES NOW IN COLUMN FOR REPEAL OF 18TH AMENDMENT

Washington and Texas Both Wet By Two To One Vote Count

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Twenty-four states had joined the repeal column Wednesday when returns from the state of Washington gave repeal of the 18th amendment better than a two to one majority. This victory followed the voting in Texas which went two to one for repeal.

Washington, the 24th state to vote on repeal, was the 24th state to repudiate national prohibition. Fourteen states vote between now and November 7 and if all vote wet, the repealists will have two more states than the 36 necessary to accomplish repeal.

Virtually stunned by the sudden onslaught of repeal and the rapid progress of ratification, drys are beginning to stir to life again to prepare for what is to come after prohibition has been knocked out of the constitution.

After Maine votes on September 11, dry leaders expect to recognize publicly, according to press dispatches, the imminence of repeal and to open their fight for retention of prohibition in individual states and lesser units. There is a sentimental reason for waiting on Maine, since it was the first dry state.

NOTED WRITER SEES NEW THOUGHT NEED IN NORTH CAROLINA

"If you have two loads of bread, sell one and buy a lily" is an old Chinese saying, which, believes Professor Philips Russell of the English department at the University of North Carolina, contains a moral that the people of this state and especially of the western section might well need.

"North Carolina needs a school of writers to arouse her citizens to things other than the corn and cotton civilization which apparently has dulled the public sense of imagination. When her farmers have two loads of corn or wheat or other crop, they do not sell one and buy a lily, instead they grow another load of corn, which they do not need or cannot use," is the sentiment of Professor Russell who observes that industrialism has so blinded the people's eyes that they do not see or attempt to preserve the gorgeous beauties of nature in which Western North Carolina so abounds.

Professor Russell has been connected with the English department at the University for the past three years, he having classes in all forms

INTERESTING MEET HELD BY TEACHERS

Cooperation Stressed As Being Greatest Need To Make Work Success

Practically all teachers of the county were in attendance at the meeting held at Brevard high school Saturday morning, and heard discussions on the different phases of school work, the North Carolina Education association, and other matters of interest to teachers and parents.

Professor G. C. Bush, county superintendent, presided over the meeting and introduced the Rev. J. H. West, who had charge of the devotionals.

Mr. Bush called attention of the teachers to new rulings made by the education commission, and stressed the point that above all things he wanted cooperation from the teacher body as a unit, and that regardless of the fact that salaries were cut to a new low level this year, he had every reason to believe that Transylvania teachers would come through with the same type of service to the pupils and parents that has been so outstanding in years gone by.

Under the new rulings, and the regulations necessitated by the last legislature, Mr. Bush said, there would be many new problems in the schools of the county this year. These problems, he said, were to be faced by
