CONNESTEE NEWS

The Conneestee correspondents wish you all a happy Thanksgiving. Miss Margaret Gash was the Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Verner that morning she attended the Presbyterian church service.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hogsd enjoyed a week's visit among their two daughters, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Holden, both of South Carolina.

Fidella Henderson Jr. writes from Hong Kong that the Brevard paper means a great deal to him. He says, "I am glad to know the paper will keep coming to me. Gee! I appreciate that a lot. That is the best birthday present I could have received from home. Without it I would be lost now that I am used to seeing it every week."

The majority of our community believe as our editor does—we don't want our homes and little farms covered with water. Where would we go? Where could we live? How could we profit by this immersion project? But what is one's loss is another's gain we suppose. Even if they paid us well for our homes, this is the best sweetest place in the world to us to live; then no amount of money can replace that which we want, want, want.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hogsd had an enjoyable day Sunday visiting Mr. Lee Holden's. Miss Mildred Whitmire is now home after spending some time at her grandparents, the Henry's in Brevard.

There was an old time quilting given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Baker for the recent bride, Mrs. Elmer Baker.

Miss Margaret Gash went to her home at Blantyre last Wednesday afternoon for a short visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Gash.

Mrs. Press Galloway and Mrs. William Hogsd visited Mrs. Huston Giazener last Thursday.

Owners of ten poultry flocks in Catawba County report their birds laid them an average return of $1.21 each above feed throughout the past year.

Fifty herd of young Hereford and Shorthorn steers paid F. W. Von Cannon of Avery County 1 1/2 cents a pound more than other farmers received for scrub beef animals last week.

One hundred and eighty 4-H club members attended the four regular club meetings held in Gaston County last week.

A. M. Bruner who has been employed on boat on the great lakes returned to his home here Friday.

LAKE TOXAWAY

(Mrs. H. D. Lee)

FOREST FROCK SHOP
Vanderbilt Place Biltmore Forest

There's a frock at JEAN'S that a lot of women are going to be unhappy about if they miss being the first to see it. It has a shimmering metallic bodice with a graceful draped neck that drops into a low cowl back, and a skirt of red lame caught with a rhinestone buckle that is breathlessly smart. Please take a look! JEAN'S is also showing sport and street dresses with a hint of spring (already!) in lovely light shades.

LOWENBEIN'S gets in more new clothes almost before I can jot down data on the ones I saw the day before. His newest shipment of street clothes (large women will find their sizes without trouble and with great satisfaction) are tailored in lines that forecast the spring styles. I was particularly charmed with his choice of day-time frocks that can be worn for shopping, luncheon and afternoon bridge. His prices, by the way, are extremely reasonable.

Of all the charming dinner dresses I have ever seen one of the many that THE FOREST FROCK SHOP is showing is the most stunning. This effect creation is of heavy black silk crepe with long sleeves, a low graceful drop back and a straight neck line in the front. On the shoulder is a gleaming rhinestone and jade clip that matches the belt buckle. The skirt falls in clinging, straight lines with a little fullness at the bottom. To be the hit of the evening one need only wear this ultra smart gown.

HURSEY'S is evidently destined to be my financial downfall. They don't have just one thing I want, they have dozens: They have a desk set, for example, like I've wanted for years. It's made of leather, with elegant Florentine scroll work. There's a handsome set in Brass, too, and next to that one in copper that I cast longing eyes upon. HURSEY'S sample line of Rosenthal china, with its delicate flower patterns and their display of Wedgewood, Rockwood and Royal Doulton will fill any housekeepers head with dreams.

I can never get past BURGE'S and occasionally feel a Cinderella complex coming over me. What good looking shoes they do have! Every style—every size and if you wanted glass slippers I have a feeling they would politely go and get them for you. There's nothing sissy about them, either. You'll find an exquisite pair of evening slippers for yourself and at the same time the clerk is fitting a pair of conservative, handsome English-cut shoes for friend hubby.
