

NEW BUILDINGS AT GLOUCESTER CAMP

(From Mountaineer, CCC Paper)
After three weeks of construction the welfare building, Forestry buildings, and officers quarters have been completed.

Thorson Hall, the welfare building, was appropriately named. It was dedicated in honor of Captain Thurman C. Thorson, who was the first camp Commander. He came to the camp at the beginning of the Civilian Conservation Corps last June and served as its Captain until his injury in an automobile accident in the same month.

In the welfare building will be housed the recreational educational, and spiritual activities of the camp. The recreational equipment will include a radio, writing desks, magazines and other forms of amusement. A teacher has been appointed for this camp and classes will soon be started. Prominent ministers of the nearby towns will lead in the religious services.

Moving pictures will also be shown in the recreation hall. The CCC boys that have had experience in motion picture projection will be in charge of the operation of the machine while it is at this camp. Plans are going forward for other forms of entertainment such as; singing, string music, and comedy teams. These programs are being planned by the boys of the camp. Everything planned is for mutual benefit, and it is hoped that everyone will take part.

The Canteen has been moved to Thorson Hall and mail is being given out there. The old Canteen has been turned into a store room for the kitchen.

The second of the new buildings houses the foremen of the road and forest crews, while the third is being occupied by the Army camp Officers.

The addition of these new buildings makes a great improvement to the camp and all the boys point them out to visitors with pride.

In Yadkin County, 94 wheat growers have received rental payments of $2,490.20 for reducing the acreage this winter.

Approximately 95 percent of the tobacco growers in Wilson County signed acreage reduction contracts, says Farm Agent W. L. Adams.

New "Knee-Action" Chevrolet Gives Passengers Ride Like a Glide

In the design and development of the new 1934 Chevrolet, particular attention has been given to driver and passenger comfort. All annoying sensations of disagreeable sound and feeling having been eliminated. The upper photo shows the new Chevrolet coach with its long, sleek lines. Wind rush has been eliminated by the Fisher No Draft Ventilators and the new streamlined bodies. Chevrolet's "Knee-Action" wheels enjoy the advantage of being completely enclosed in a weather-tight housing; the coil springs and shock absorbers ride in a bath of oil. William E. Holler, Chevrolet's general sales manager, is shown at the left holding a chart which shows the internal construction of the system. The radiator of the new car has added beauty through its graceful and sharply pointed design. Smoothness has been the theme in every line of this year's Chevrolet.

The driver and passengers in the new 1934 Chevrolet get a ride like the glide of an airplane. One of the main factors in improving the riding qualities of the new car is such a great extent is the "Knee-Action"—or independently sprung front wheels, to use the technical term.

So much has been written about independent springing that the public has doubtless concluded that it is something too technical to understand. As a matter of fact, there is nothing complicated about either the principle involved or the construction of the system. Chevrolet's "Knee-Action" enjoys the advantage of being enclosed in a welded weather-tight housing in which the entire spring mechanism and shock absorbers ride up and down in a bath of oil.

An automobile gives a perfect ride when both the front and rear springs have the same "frequency" or tension. Actually this has been impossible to carry out in the past because the front springs had to be over twice as "stiff" as the rear springs in order to hold the wheels and brakes in place. In independent springing, the wheels and spring mechanism are rigidly attached directly to the frame and there is no front axle. By relieving the front springs of the task of carrying wheels and axle, therefore, it became possible to make the front springs as "soft" as the rear springs. When the new Chevrolet strikes an irregularity in the road, both front and rear move up and down with the same frequency—there is no inclination on the part of the rear end of the car to leap into the air and throw the passengers forward and upward.

Chevrolet's "Knee-Action" has additional advantages all contributing to a comfort in riding never before thought possible in a motor car. There is a decided improvement in handling, steering, safety at high speeds and tire economy.

In design, the front spring is a neat, compact and efficient unit, as Mr. Holler points out in the above picture. The entire spring mechanism is attached rigidly to the frame. From this enclosed unit the wheels spring vertically at the ends of strong, steel horizontal arms.
