President Coltrane Outlines Plans For Operation of Brevard College

(By J. Dale Stentz)
Brevard Kiwanians were treated to a front seat Wednesday on the first day of the presence in our midst of Eugene J. Coltrane, president of Brevard College, Inc.

President Coltrane drove into Brevard Tuesday night about 10:30 and went directly to the home of Rev. J. H. West at the Methodist parsonage. Mrs. Coltrane came with him and we venture the assertion that she is no small part of the fine combination.

He was roused out early Wednesday by the great moving van which brought his household goods which are now safely placed in the president's home at Brevard College.

At the noon hour President Coltrane was the guest of honor at Kiwanis where he was introduced briefly by the Rev. J. H. West.

We make no attempt to give President Coltrane's address but would like to pass on some of the high lights, as it were, that concern the opening and the policy of our new college.

After traveling in some thirty-five states we were told that one had to get away before he could really appreciate the beauties and the assets of our native state. Mr. Coltrane being a native Tar Heel, called our attention to our great road system which he believes is second to none, our great natural endowment of woods, hills and streams, but greater than any or all of these is the native ability of the great people who make up this grand old North State.

President Coltrane stated to us that he hoped that Brevard College would serve to help in the training of the fine young people of this and Three large eggs have already been received at The Times office, two sent in by Mrs. Wade Lyday and one by Mrs. John Maxwell. There is nothing to buy in this contest, the persons bringing in the three largest eggs to be given a year's subscription and also for the one smallest.

BALL LEAGUE MAY BE ORGANIZED IN COUNTY

Organization of an amateur ball league in the county is probable, with four or more teams, with games to be played once each week.

Transylvania Tanning company has a snappy team composed of employees, and are working out regularly, while Rosman has had its team going for several weeks. Gloucester and John's Rock CCC camps each have teams, and effort is being made to have these teams work out a schedule, with possibility that a team from Lake Toxaway and one from the lower end of the county will be formed, thus making a six team circuit.

Special Musical Program

Members of the choir of the Methodist church will present a program Sunday night at 8 o'clock at the church, rendering the "Life of Christ" in music and scripture. The public is invited.

Mrs. Carl McCrary, Miss Mildred Williams, J. Dale Stentz and Alvin Moore will render solo parts.

LOCAL BOYS WIN IN CORN GROWING TEST

E. J. Whitmire Produces 78.67 Bushels Per Acre— Jordan, 778.25

E. J. Whitmire Jr. and Sam Jordan both of the Cherryfield section, have been advised that they won second and third places respectively in the 3-in-one corn contest conducted in the western district of North Carolina under the supervision of the Vocational Agriculture department of State College.

Competing with over four hundred Vocational Agriculture pupils, young Mr. Whitmire was awarded eight hundred pounds of Chilean nitrate of soda and young Mr. Jordan 500 pounds, as prizes.

Whitmire's records show that he produced 245.45 bushels of corn on 3.12 acres, or 78.67 bushels per acre. Cost of production was 19.6 cents per bushel, giving him a net profit after labor, income, rent, seed, fertilizer had been deducted of $23.92 per acre.

Jordan produced 156.50 bushels of corn on 2 acres of land, or 78.25 bushels per acre. His cost of production was 23.9 cents per bushel, giving him a net profit after all deductions of $20.40 per acre.

Both boys are students of vocational agriculture at Rosman high school under Professor Randall Lyday, and both are again entering the contest this year, together with a large group of boys from the class.

Other sections so that they may be able to really take advantage of and use the great natural resources with which this state is so richly endowed.

You will be especially interested in the general outline of the policy of this institution which is destined to have a great influence on the lives of the young people of this section.

There are already not less than 12 Junior Colleges in North Carolina that are doing fine work but there is room for another of the type that Brevard College is destined to be. President Coltrane said that he did not expect to make this the best Junior College but certainly to make it as good as any other and who knows but that in the future this school may become a full fledged four-year institution.

For the present, the Kiwanians were informed, the plan contemplates two years of real junior college work which will be similar to the freshman and sophomore years in our regular universities. Students who have four years' credits in an accredited high school will be eligible for entrance.

The faculty will be selected from men and women who have the proper educational background and from those who have a real interest in a development of the kind of an institution that the president has in mind, not just instructors, but real teachers.

The expenses will be kept at a minimum and some opportunity will be offered to deserving students who wish to work out at least a portion of the costs necessary to attendance.

When students graduate from Brevard College it is expected that they

ROSMAN SENIORS TO STAGE ANNUAL PLAY

"Lighthouse Nan" To Be Given Thursday Evening Of Coming Week

The seniors of the Rosman High school will present their annual play May 9th at 8 o'clock in the school auditorium. "Lighthouse Nan" is an intensely human story vibrating with startling incidents and heart gripping situations. The heroine is a little uneducated waif, mistreated and overworked but full of merriment, kindness of heart, and sturdy good sense. Ned Blake, from the city, while spending his vacations in this rough lighthouse on the Carolina coast has fallen in love with Nan's cheerfulness and artless simplicity. The bibulous and henpecked old lighthouse keeper, Ichabod Buzzer, with his mule January, is in sharp contrast to Molly Buzzer, his shrewish and nagging wife, who possesses the proofs of Nan's parentage. A kidnapping and exchange of babies by Injun Jim forms the nucleus of the plot, the unraveling of which brings Nan into her own.

The adventuress, who stops at nothing in her war on the heroine, is the supposed daughter of John Enlow, president of the Seacoast Banking company. Indian Jim blackmails her after making known to her her identity but she succeeds in marrying an English baronet who, with his sister, is visiting in the United States. During the time when Mr. Enlow and his daughter and guests are stranded at the lighthouse after their motors have gone dead, he studies Nan carefully and decides to send her off to school and give her a real chance in life.

Several years have passed and Ned Blake is still in love with Nan. He becomes suspicious of Hortense's actions in regard to Indian Jim now in the penitentiary and starts an investigation. Nan has come to spend Christmas with Mr. Enlow where she again sees Ichabod and Molly Buzzer whom Ned has sent for to clear up the mystery. Hortense has secretly married the Englishman who takes her away just as Nan is being adopted in the eyes of the world by Mr. Enlow.

The cast of characters follows:

Hon. John Enlow, president of the Seacoast Banking company, E. J. Whitmire.

Ned Blake, his private secretary, Earl White.

Ichabod Buzzer, the old keeper of the lighthouse, Howard Galloway.

Sir Arthur Choke, a British aristocrat, Allen White.

Injun Jim, a bad man, Douglas Eldridge.

Nan, a little roustabout, Ophelia White.

Moll Buzzer, the gentle antelope, Fannie Morgan.

Hon. Sarah Chamley Choke, Arthur's sister, Mildred Henderson.

Hortense Enlow, a city belle, Lila Gillespie.

SWIMMING POOL TO BE FINISHED BY ERA

State Supervisor Says Work Will Be Resumed Here In Near Future

Mrs. Thos. O'Berry, state relief administrator, is authority for the statement that the Brevard swimming pool work will be resumed at an early date.

Interested parties in Brevard have been in communication with Mrs. O'Berry in regard to resumption of work on the pool and park here, and her reply to their query was to the effect that work would again be started as soon as funds through the Emergency Relief Administration were available.

The entire state system is being changed over from CWA to ERA and this has caused delay on the work, Mrs. O'Berry said.

Several Hundred Attend Welcome To Brevard Meeting Monday Night

Hundreds of people crowded into the county court house in Brevard Monday night when the regular meeting of the Welcome to Brevard was held, and heard glowing reports from the membership committee to the effect that every person in the community operating a boarding house, or who had furnished apartments or rooms for rent, and the business men in general had all subscribed to the fund for bringing tourists here this summer, and providing means of keeping them here for an extended season instead of just sitting by and seeing the multitude of cars go whizzing by, carrying "pay passengers" to other summer resort sections.

Reports made at the meeting were to the effect that people were deeply interested in making things hum in Transylvania county this summer, gathering in dollars that will be spent in the mountain region during the season by people who will be invited here by the concerted campaign—that the yoke has been thrown off and once more people are hitting their stride, boosting, believing in the community and willing to help prove to the world that this is the best community in the whole wide world to spend a pleasant two, three or four months this summer.

The several hundred people present at the meeting were enthused over the idea that there would be an increase of revenue brought into the community by following up the efforts now being put forth by the organized boys' and girls' summer camps, expressing the well founded idea that centers from which camp boys and girls are drawn will naturally be good centers to tap an advertising campaign to increase interest in this community of

First seen near the home of Luther Hamilton, alarm was sounded and a number of men of the community joined in the chase. The dog was black and white female bound with red ears.

Suggestion is made that all people, especially in the lower end of county, keep their dogs housed away from children for several weeks as a precautionary measure.
