HENDERSONVILLE, June 2—The marriage of Miss Geraldine Barrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Barrett, of this city, to Lieutenant J. R. S. Mays, medical corps, U. S. A., will be of interest to a wide circle of friends. The marriage was solemnized on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock by Capt. W. C. Holland, camp chaplain, with the Rev. Claude H. Moser, pastor of the First Methodist church offering prayer. The ring ceremony was used, in the presence of relatives and a few close friends.

The church, admirably suited for weddings, was beautifully decorated with a massing of hemlock and mountain laurel. The floor canopy held cathedral tapers and large

Chicago—The great drought of 1934, destined to become historic, Monday took its daily toll of several lives and two million dollars. Some sections received relief from cooling winds and showers but for the most part the country remained fast in the grip of the worst dry spell since 1871 when Ulysses Simpson Grant was president. Unofficial estimates placed the damage to date at more than $200,000,000 and loss of life at 154.

MISS BARRETT AND LIEUT. MAYS ARE WED SATURDAY

Of interest to many friends is the following account of the marriage of Miss Geraldine Barrett, formerly of Brevard, to Lieutenant J. R. S. Mays, of the medical corps, U. S. Army.

HENDERSONVILLE, June 2—The marriage of Miss Geraldine Barrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Barrett, of this city, to Lieutenant J. R. S. Mays, medical corps, U. S. A., will be of interest to a wide circle of friends. The marriage was solemnized on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock by Capt. W. C. Holland, camp chaplain, with the Rev. Claude H. Moser, pastor of the First Methodist church offering prayer. The ring ceremony was used, in the presence of relatives and a few close friends.

The church, admirably suited for weddings, was beautifully decorated with a massing of hemlock and mountain laurel. The floor canopy held cathedral tapers and large basket of snapdragons stood out in bas relief at either side of the pulpit.

A program of wedding music was rendered by Miss Rachel Mays, of Macon, Ga., sister of the groom, who presided at the organ rendering the conventional wedding marches as the processional and recessional, with Mrs. Carl McCrary, of Brevard, and Mr. Jean Whisnant as soloists.

The bride's sister, Mrs. L. James Peacock, Jr., as matron of honor, was smartly gowned in a frock of moonstone blue crepe and wore a felt halo hat and other accessories of white. Her corsage was of gardenias.

Mr. L. N. Sicha, of Asheville, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Joe Hanna and Mr. Robert Perkins, both of Salisbury, Mr. Robert Walker, of Atlanta, Ga., and Mr. John Stevens of Charlotte.

The bride, a striking brunette, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a white crepe ensemble, the coat being three quarter length, with which was worn a chic braid hat with a fetching satin bow at the back. Her corsage was of tansman roses and valley lilies. Because of a gracious and sweet personality the bride has endeared herself to a wide circle of friends since moving to Hendersonville. While attending Mars Hill college, Miss Barrett took an active part in journalistic and campus activities; she has decided dramatic ability and has taken leads in productions staged by the Theatre guild.

Lieutenant Mays is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Mays, of Macon, Ga. He received several degrees at Mercer university and during a year of post graduate work there he was on the faculty as an instructor of chemistry. He received his degree of Doctor of Medicine at the University of Georgia and served as house physician at the University hospital. He is a member of the Sigma Phi fraternity and also of the Theta Kappa Psi medical fraternity. At present Lieutenant Mays is on duty with the United States Civilian Conservation Corps in South Carolina.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Barrett were at home informally to the members of the wedding party and out of town friends at which time the lovely bride's cake was cut. Miss Verna Hogsett and Miss Elizabeth Shipman served and presiding at the bride's register were Miss Garnette Shipman and Miss Hasseltine Shipman.
