DYNAMITE ENDS LIFE OF PIG AND MULE CHEVROLET BUILDS N. C. SCHOOL BUSES

GOLDSBORO, N. C.—This is a story of one little pig, a big bad mule and half a case of dynamite.

Wyatt Powell, who owned the pig and the dynamite, is the authority.

Powell has a farm, part of which is stumpy, near Pinkney. He decided the stumps needed blasting out.

Taking a case of dynamite, Powell went into the fields. His only companion was the pig. The farmer blasted stumps until noon, then went home leaving the pig and the dynamite.

When Powell returned, he found the pig with his head in the case, eating the explosive. He forgot stump blasting for a moment and carefully trotted the pig to other parts of his farm. Then he went back to work.

At quitting time, Powell started home and saw in the distance the pig nipping at a mule's heels. Apparently, Powell believed, the dynamite had made the grunter believe he wasn't afraid of anything. Powell stopped, staring. Finally one nip landed. The mule kicked. The kick landed.

There was an explosion. Powell said, that levelled a two-story barn 50 feet away. The explosion also obliterated the pig. The mule spun round once and dropped lifeless to the ground.

Powell came on home. He said he knew looking for the pig or remnants thereof would have been useless.

IN MEMORY OF COY HOGSED

Dedicated to the brother and two sisters who are left, in loving remembrance of baby brother, Coy Wayne Hogsed, who departed this life on Monday, May 22, 1933.

"You, our own dear brother, have shown me the Creator. Your kiss upon my cheek has made me feel the gentle touch of the Almighty, who leads us home. The memory of that last sweet smile, dear Coy, reveals God's face as the years come on with haste. And when you left us and went on before, you left the gates of heaven open wide that I might, as I struggle here below, see the glories of God's grace. Oh, Coy, dear Coy, reach out and hold my hand and guide me along the road, so, as I come to you, I may not stumble or stray, nor fail to find the way that leads to God and to you, dear brother, and to home."

Written by Mother, Mrs. ADDIE HOGSED, Brevard, R-I.

Since the discovery of America 25,000 tons, or 17 billion dollars worth of gold, has been produced in the world. This amount would make a solid gold tower 20 feet in diameter and 140 feet high.

RALEIGH, Aug. 15—Chevrolet Motor company was awarded the largest order for automotive equipment ever placed by North Carolina, calling for the delivery of 350 bus chassis for use in school districts throughout the state. Chevrolet was the low bidder at $22,655. At the same joint session of the state division of purchases and the state school commission at Raleigh, July 27, orders were awarded to various builders for 675 bus bodies, to cost $255,685. These bodies are to be mounted on Chevrolet chassis and on additional long wheelbase chassis, to be purchased later, mounting 17 and 19-foot bodies.

The federal government recently granted North Carolina $182,000 for the purchase of transportation units for schools, and the state itself is providing $420,000.
