

THROUGH STATE CAPITAL KEYHOLES

By Bess Hinton Silver
LOOKING AHEAD—Much has been said and not a little done about who will be next governor of North Carolina but some folks are far ahead of that.
 Long visioned men in politics are already pondering who will be governor in 1940 when the honor will return to the east. Although a lot of dust will blow down the secondary roads of North Carolina before that time there is no question that State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson is being groomed for a gubernatorial candidate in the year that President Roosevelt will complete his second term. Watch Mr. Johnson's smoke.

BACHELORS—The recent wedding of Assistant Director of the State Budget Frank Dunlap leaves only three unmarried officials among the upper crust of state officialdom. These eligibles for blondes and brunettes are: Wm. A. Graham, commissioner of agriculture; Edwin M. Gill, parole commissioner; and A. J. Maxwell, commissioner of revenue. Don't get excited if the trio is reduced to a duet since a most persistent rumor has one of the three slated for double harness in the near future. Mr. Dunlap was married to the charming Miss Kate Leak, of Wadesboro.

A BIT NEGATIVE—Former Lieutenant Governor Richard T. Fountain, who made a good but unsuccessful sprint for the gubernatorial nomination against Governor Ehringhaus in 1932 will not say that he is going to run against Senator J. W. Bailey in 1936 but then he will not say that he will not seek Mr. Bailey's toga. When last asked for publication if he would run, the enigmatic Mr. Fountain replied, "I won't say that I won't." Mr. Fountain is a business man these days and his business takes him over the state quite often. He is a past-master at mixing business and politics. The logical conclusion is that while he may not have decided to run he is not burning any bridges.

STALKING HORSE—Capitol Hill is not taking too seriously all this talk about State Senator John Sprunt Hill, of Durham, running for governor in 1936.

Close friends of Mr. Hill avow that he harbors no greater political ambition than to represent his district in the legislature but they also whisper that he would not like to see Lieutenant Governor A. H. Graham win the democratic gubernatorial nomination. You can hear in some places that Mr.

Hill will run against Mr. Graham just to split his strength in Durham, Orange and surrounding counties. Put this down in your little blue book—Senator Hill has enough 60-cent dollars and the intestinal fortitude to run for governor if the notion strikes him.

JOHN BARLEYCORN—Although many Raleigh political writers have freely predicted that modification of the state's liquor laws is a long distance in the future the drys smell a mouse and are not to be caught napping. Cale K. Burgess, who directed the ditching of repeal in North Carolina last November is active again, writing drys that money will be needed to keep the state a Sahara during the next legislature.

REAL ISSUE—The fight over adoption of the proposed revised constitution for North Carolina is taking in the appearance of an administration and anti-administration battle. Looking over the list of opponents you will find the name of Attorney General Dennis G. Brummitt, R. T. Fountain, who lost in the 1932 gubernatorial scrap and a host of his supporters. On the other side you will see administration stalwarts. One prominent attorney remarks that it looks like political prejudice is going to determine the kind of constitution North Carolina will have for a while.

INVITES TROUBLE—Raleigh politicians are of the opinion that Governor Ehringhaus throws crumbs in his own bed by delaying appointments that come his way. They recall several occasions on which the governor has postponed naming appointees while partisans of candidates organized campaigns that gave his excellency little rest. He lost no time in naming a successor to the late Justice Walter Adams and paying several political obligations before Justice Michael Schenck ascended to the supreme court bench. But in filling the vacancy on the industrial commission left open by the resignation of Chairman Matt H. Allen the governor again took his own sweet time while lines formed behind several candidates for the post.

COUNTER ATTACK—Just a few days ago the office of commissioner of revenue was made appointive instead of elective on the premise that this important position should be kept free of politics. Recently the revenue department has set about the task of collecting all taxes due the state and that has not been popular. Now there is talk of making the office elective again. One member of the next legislature is making solemn vows to introduce a bill to make the revenue commissioner run for office.

AT THE CLEMSON THEATRE

The Clemson presents for Friday, September 7th and 8th "Guns For Hire," featuring Lane Chandler, Neil Hart, Sally Darling, Yakima Canutt and John Ince. A girl's love and a ho-man's joy in combat sends Lane Chandler galloping over the range, past threatening foes in ambush, every heart-beat marking a step closer to death and danger.

Monday and Tuesday Lew Ayres and Janet Gaynor are again matched in "Servants Entrance." Sweethearts of "State Fair" are in love again. She as a society girl who turns kitchen maid. He as a chauffeur who turns inventor. Each loved by another. Both loving each other. You'll laugh at their troubles as you thrill to their romance.

For Wednesday and Thursday an all-star cast consisting of Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Otto Kruger and Stewart Erwin are featured in "Chained."

The Old Dollar Watch Back Again

The old dollar watch that made the dollar famous is back again for $1.00 (including state tax). It's dressed up in a very attractive case.

Now is a very good time to buy.
