BREVARD BUILDINGS UNFIT FOR USE SAY STATE DEPT. HEADS

Auditoriums Dangerous And Class Rooms Ordered Vacated at Once

All three auditoriums of the Brevard school buildings have been condemned by the state insurance department, together with the entire second story of the primary building.

The high school auditorium is cited as being unsafe for assembly purposes, and has been closed during the school term.

Second story of the primary building is unsafe from many angles, including both fire and danger of collapse, while the grammar grade building is hazardous on account of fire escapes and doorways, according to the report.

The high school auditorium and primary building auditorium were condemned several weeks ago by A. M. Case, city building inspector, with permission being granted by Mr. Case to school authorities to continue use of part of the class rooms in the building until such time as check could be made against his findings by a state engineer.

It is expected that provisions will be made in the grammar grade building and utilization of a downstairs room in the primary building to take care of class rooms, while the use of auditoriums in each of the buildings will not be permitted.

Professor John Rufty, principal of the grammar and primary grades, states that while the arrangement will be far from ideal, that he can get by with the class rooms until repairs can be made.

County Superintendent G. C. Bush stated Wednesday that he did not at that time know just how the repairs called for by the report from the state insurance department could be made on account of lack of funds for this purpose. He stated that there were no provisions made in the school budget for 1934-35 for repairs other than small items which are necessary to all schools of the county each year.

Full reports of the state engineer and the insurance commissioner are carried below:

Much Work Has Been Done By National Organization In Transylvania County

Jerry Jerome, Red Cross Roll Call chairman, reports that he is finding great response to the call this year, with an increase in memberships over that of last year looked for.

Teachers in the schools of the county are being called upon this week by Mr. Jerome to assist in taking the campaign into each school community, while other community workers are being started out the last of this week in an effort to give all people of the county chance to take a membership.

Goal has been set by the national organization for Transylvania at two hundred memberships, and it is readily believed that people in general will respond to the call, especially when they remember the great amount of work that has been done in this county during the past three years through the Red Cross.

Half the enrollment fee of one dollar is kept in the local chapter treasury to be used as the chapter deems fit, this money having been expended in past years principally for hospitalization of children of needy and worthy families.

The Transylvania Trust company has qualified under the federal government for making loans under the FHA plans, and will make approved loans to local people.

An office has been opened in the rear of the S. M. Macfie Drug store where E. P. McCoy, acting as secretary for the local Better Homes setup has all necessary information for benefit of those seeking loans for improvements on homes and business houses. Purpose of the Better Housing Program is to encourage widespread repairing and modernization of residential and business properties.

Aside from Mr. McCrary as general chairman for Transylvania county, the following people have been asked to serve in some capacity, their appointments to be confirmed this week from the district office in Asheville:

Work of the advisory committee and other citizens who are expected to take part in the program will chiefly be the creation of interest in modernization and repair of homes and business properties, with the idea in mind that through actual work, and especially through construction and repair work, men will be given work, materials used and property made better for home and business. #### Surveying Parties To Begin Work Next Week—1000 Foot Right Of Way

Announcement was made Monday from Washington by Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes that the southern route of the $16,000,000 scenic parkway connecting the Great Smoky Mountains and the Shenandoah national parks would follow the "North Carolina outline," which brings the much sought after route within twelve miles of Brevard, through Pisgah National Forest.

Surveying parties are to be sent into North Carolina next week to begin work on the scenic route, it was announced from Raleigh office of the state highway department Tuesday. A preliminary survey of the route has already been made by the department, this survey having been presented to Secretary Ickes several weeks ago.

The selected route runs from Blowing Rock south of Linville City along the Blue Ridge and the Mt. Mitchell and Craggy range, to come into the Mt. Pisgah range, bending sharply northwest on a line along that ranges west of Waynesville, with an entrance into the park at a point where it will connect with the Newfound Gap highway near Cherokee, N. C.

Ickes, who made known his decision in letters to Governor J. C. E. Ehringhaus of North Carolina and Governor Hill McAllister, said his selection was influenced by the fact that there is now a well established entrance to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park at Gatlinburg, Tenn.

The secretary added there was little to choose between the North Carolina and Tennessee routes from the scenic standpoint, and that, other things being equal, it seemed "unfair" that Tennessee should have the sole entrances to the park from both the west and east.

The northern route, from the Shenandoah Park to Blowing Rock, N. C., was determined several months ago. The road will be approximately 400 miles in length.

Already the sum of $6,000,000 has been allotted by Secretary Ickes to be expended on the parkway from the Shenandoah park to Blowing Rock, and contracts are to be awarded on the southern line as soon as possible. The right of way for the parkway is to be 1000 feet wide, and it is expected that the paved roadway will be of sufficient width to make it the world's widest parkway for a distance of 415 miles.

Brevard is vitally interested in the new highway, inasmuch as two direct connections, the Boylston road and highway 248 will both connect with the route. The board of county commissioners and board of aldermen attended the meeting in Washington in September when appeal was made by the North Carolina delegation to Secretary Ickes from the finding of the location committee sent out from his office, which committee had recommended the Tennessee route. Those attending the Washington meeting were:

W. L. Aiken, Otto Alexander, W. E. Breese, Ralph J. Duckworth, C. M. Douglas, Jess A. Galloway, W. D. Cash, W. E. Henderson, Dr. G. B. Lynch, W. L. Mull, S. M. Macfie, H. H. Patton, Ralph H. Ramsey, L. V. Sigmon, Anthony Trantham, and Mayor J. C. Wike.
