PEACE

Dedicated to the many who worry for a cause or needlessly.
(Contributed)
Sometimes when we're quietly thinking
Of all that's passed and gone,
We somehow, in spite of ourselves,
Worry, fret and mourn.
Just look to the future with composure,
And let your mistakes be gone.
Smile, be happy and contented;
Stand like a giant tree in a storm.
Let the thoughts that worry you pass
As a gentle breeze in the night.
Can't we only remember the many deeds
We knew were right?
Of course your hearts may be heavy,
For reasons no one can know.
Forget it, bury your troubles so deep
They will never show.
