FINE SPORT ENJOYED BY PISGAH HUNTERS

(By L. M. SIMPSON)

Hunting in the Pisgah National Forest for the first week was a great treat for hunters who were lucky enough to be drawn for the first week. Almost everyone got his deer. The largest and most perfect horns were obtained by Dan Wexler of Johnson City, Tenn.

There was one lady on the first week's hunt. She was a real good sport but did not get her buck. She had several chances at small deer, but wanted a big buck—but he stayed out of her way. So she went back home without a buck, but happy because she had had a try.

There were all classes of hunters—some good shots, some poor ones. The outstanding yarn from hunters was that told by Mr. Bridges, who on the last day finally got his deer but not before shooting him 26 times and then running him for two miles before finally getting in the fatal last shot.

Ten states were represented in the first week's hunt and almost every one carried back home in his mind some beauty spot which he will come back to see at some future date.

Coal Needed To Heat The Nursery School

The Brevard Nursery school, in charge of Mrs. Constance Banks and Mrs. John McLean, is reported to be badly in need of fuel with which to heat their school building on Jordan street.

Forced to move out of the Brevard Elementary building several weeks ago when the building was condemned, the old Taylor house was rented and work continued there for the thirty or more indigent children.

It is required by the relief agency that the building and fuel be supplied by the community in order to make the community eligible for the nursery school, all foods and salaries being paid by the federal government. As there are no public funds available it necessitates the community joining in on the expense of the school.

This is a great chance for Brevard citizens to be nice and courteous, as the sportsman is always a good spender and a good fellow to have around.
