WPA AUTHORITIES SET DEADLINE FOR FILING PROJECTS

Federal Funds Be Granted Only To Those Who Apply At Once

Only fourteen more days remain in which Works Progress Administration project applications may be filed, according to bulletin issued from the office of W. E. Breese, district administrator. Deadline applications has been set by the president at Sept. 12.

Governing bodies of all municipalities and governmental setups in the county have been notified that to receive assistance in needed projects of community benefit and to provide work for the unemployed, applica-tions must be filed in district offices on or before Sept. 12.

All labor costs and up to thirty per cent of labor costs in materials will be furnished by the federal gov-ernment on town, county and school projects, this amount reaching up to eighty per cent of the total cost for Transylvania county and four others have been submitted by Ernest H. Webb, district engineer, who will have charge of the road projects for the state highway commission.

Applications for completing the sidewalk on North Broad street, building of a bridge on Kings Creek, and construction of a road to the town watershed have been submitted by the town of Brevard. Figures are now being made up for a sewer main project.

Application for repairs on school buildings, and rebuilding of the Brevard elementary unit have been submitted by the board of education.

A community athletic field is being worked out for application by Brevard College, with the completed data expected to be in the Asheville office by the last of this week.

Repairs on the court house and jail are under contemplation by the board of commissioners, but esti-mates have not been submitted.

It is not known whether there are to be any projects from the town of Rosman or for any other sections of the county. Community leaders are reminded of the fact that to avail reminded of the fact that to avail themselves of the federal fund grants for any projects of a needed or worthwhile nature that the applications must be sent in immediately or they will be too late.

Trench Silos Built On Whitmire Farm

(J. A. Glazener, Co. Agt.)
To Arthur Whitmire of the Cherryfield section goes the honor of being the first farmer in Transylvania county to dig a trench sile. Mr. Whitmire is completing two this week that will hold fifty tons each of silage. He is making plans to feed several head of beef cattle this win-

According to state feeding authorities, silage is fine for beef cattle. Not only being good for cattle, but it enables the farmer to get more feed per acre than most any other feed he could produce.

The trench sile program for this county this year calls for ten siles, which will be a fine start for the first year. If this county should take to the trench silo idea as Jackson, Haywood and many other neighboring counties are taking to it, next year there will be at least fifty dug in the county.

The increase in improved pastures, more hay produced and the silos that are being started, should begin to make the most skeptic minded see and know that a big portion of the farmers are beginning to lay the foundation for a higher type of farming in this county.

It shall be the one united aim of both the county agents and the vocational teachers, along with the re-tional teachers, along with the assistance of the able agricultural teacher at Brevard College to help the farmers plan and build a bigger and stronger agriculture for Tran-sylvania county. Here is hoping that the interest may spread until it reaches every nook and corner of the county.
