

OVER HUNDRED MEN TO BE GIVEN WORK ON HIGHWAY NO. 284

Road Machines Brought Tuesday—Large Crews Begin Construction Today

Trucks, a steam shovel and grading equipment had arrived Tuesday and according to J. C. Grice, resident engineer, the state highway department expected to break dirt on the five mile stretch of highway 284 Thursday morning.

Thomas McMeekin is in charge of bridge construction for the Rickenbacker Construction company and 20 men have been at work this week on the first of four reinforced concrete rubble masonry bridges and two culverts which the contract provides.

Fifteen men have been clearing right-of-way and laying pipe lines in connection with the highway project this week.

When the two projects get in full swing Thursday, about 70 men will be employed on the road crew and 50 on the bridge crew, Grice said.

The W. H. Anderson Construction company, of Asheville, was awarded the contract for building the five-mile stretch of roadway through the Looking Glass section.

Time To Sow Crops For Winter Feeding

(J. A. Glazener, Co. Agt.)

Now that the season is almost over for the seeding of grass and clover, may we turn our thoughts to the possibility of sowing an acre or two of winter hay crops to be harvested early next summer. Such crops will furnish several tons of good feed just at a time when the old barn loft will be about empty. If possible, select good ground, where potatoes have been grown makes a very good place to sow the following mixture: wheat, 4 to 6 pecks; barley, 4 to 6 pecks; vetch, 15 to 20 pounds, and if they can be had, 15 to 20 pounds of Austrian winter peas will improve the mixture. Sow all this on one acre. Seeding should be done just as soon as possible in order to get a good root growth before real cold weather arrives.

Two years ago I used this mixture on good potato ground and on one and one-half acres there was harvested 12 two-horse wagon loads of fine hay. This stubble was then turned and a good seed bed prepared for the sowing of soybeans. That fall eight two-horse wagon loads of soybean hay was harvested from the same ground, making a total of 20 big loads of hay produced on one and one-half acres of land. To replace the plant food removed by the hay crops 15 tons of manure were spread on the ground in the early fall and turned under. The following spring potatoes were again planted on the same piece of ground and the yield was by far the best we ever had on the place.

In addition to furnishing good hay next spring, the winter hay mixture will be a splendid cover crop for the ground this winter, helping to hold the soil that might otherwise be lost by erosion. This mixture will also take up the surplus plant food left in the ground from the previous crop, which would be lost by leaching due to the winter rains. Here is hoping that several will try this winter hay crop mixture this fall and find for themselves the value of this feed.

Several WPA Projects Applied For By Transylvania Units--Sept. 10 Deadline

September 10th has been set as deadline date for accepting Works Progress Administration projects, according to W. E. Breese, of Brevard, who is director for district eight, comprising 13 western counties.

Mr. Breese, who is Transylvania county attorney, urged the county commissioners in meeting here Tuesday to use every available dollar in payment of sponsor's part of projects of a needed public nature for this county, stressing the fact that the relief agency which has been in existence here for the past two years will be closed out as such, and the burden of caring for unemployed people will be placed upon the town and county unless work can be provided through the WPA. The only way to relieve this situation, Director Breese pointed out, is for sufficient work projects to be provided so that those in need of work may get it and be paid for their individual efforts.

Approximately four millions of dollars have been allotted to the eighth district, and unless sufficient projects are turned in to the Asheville office by September 10th, balance of the funds not applied for will be returned to Washington and allotted to those other states and districts which have projects amounting to more than the original amounts allotted to them.

The WPA has for its principal objective the placing of unemployed people back in private employment. After the relief agency has been closed out, for unskilled labor the WPA will pay approximately $21.00 per month, and up to a maximum of $50 per month for skilled labor, with wages to be paid every fifteen days.

Several road projects of a farm-to-market nature have already been approved for Transylvania county by the Asheville office, while others have been submitted by District Highway Engineer Ernest Webb. Project for a new elementary school unit has been made up by Professor J. B. Jones. Sidewalk construction from the square to Brevard College, construction of a bridge over King's Creek near the cotton mill, a road to the town watershed, and sewer work have been submitted by the town. Figures on a community athletic field on property secured from Brevard College have been submitted, while the county is making up this week projects for painting the court house, plumbing for the court house and jail and work at the county home, including completion of a building started by the ERA and other work on the grounds.

APPLICATION MADE FOR NEW BUILDING BY SCHOOL BOARD

Repairs and Other Improvements Sought Through Works Progress

Formal application for WPA projects that would provide for the construction of a new elementary school building in Brevard, repair of all school buildings in the county, full-time librarians in county schools, and janitresses for the county's larger schools, has been authorized and filed by the county board of education, County Superintendent J. B. Jones said Tuesday.

One application provides that the present local elementary school building be torn down and replaced by a modern six-room unit to accommodate students of the primary department. This building would be the nucleus of a new elementary plant which would be formed as a primary grade wing, auditorium, and grammar grade wing to be added in the future. This plan would ultimately bring about the construction of an adequate school plant for young students and all on one floor.

The same project would also provide for the repair of all school buildings and grounds in Transylvania county.

A second project calls for the employment of full-time librarians in each county school having three or more teachers and a third project would provide a janitress for each school having five or more teachers.

The Works Progress Administration pays all labor and thirty per cent of the labor cost on material. The board of education is eager to take full advantage of the federal offer and obtain these needed projects for Transylvania county's school system.
