Extra Teacher Need Felt At Rosman Hi

An extra teacher may be secured for Rosman high school, provided co-operation of residents of the community can be secured, and at the same time some worthy pupils will be enabled to secure desired high school educational training. Professor W. M. Hunt said here Wednesday.

The high school lacked only 13 pupils last year of the required number which would have enabled the school to secure another teacher, Mr. Hunt said. A gain of 14 per cent was noted over the previous term in the enrollment and attendance for the 1935-36 term.

Several boys and girls who are eligible for high school work, and who would like very much to attend the school at Rosman, have asked Mr. Hunt to assist them in finding board and room in repayment for work near Rosman school or near the bus line. At present, these students are too far from the scheduled bus lines to attend school at Rosman. Mr. Hunt is seeking places for some of these pupils whom he has found to be worthy in every respect.

Two Men Being Held In Jail Charged With Causing Death Of Plato Stancil

Clarence Stamey and Lester Bowen are being held in Transylvania county jail charged with the death of Plato Stancil, 50-year-old Brevard ex-serviceman.

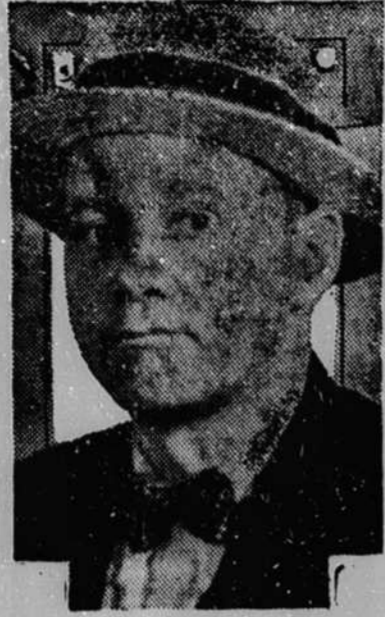

Stancil died at the home of his father, John Stancil, near Brevard, late Saturday afternoon from knife wounds which were alleged to have been inflicted by Stamey on Thursday afternoon of last week.

At a coroner's inquest held late Saturday night before Coroner C. S. Osborne, testimony of John Stancil was to the effect that a fight occurred at his home late in the afternoon between Clarence Stamey and Plato Stancil, and that Lester Bowen was present, and while not taking an active part in the altercation, had been with the two men who did fight when they arrived at the Stancil home.

The elderly man said that he saw Clarence Stamey draw back his arm in which he held an open knife, saw him sling the knife, saw the knife bounce back, but did not see the knife strike Plato. Both men had knives, the elderly man said, but he said that Plato's knife was not open. Stancil had a hoe or rake in his hand just before the knife was slung. John Stancil said, but had laid the implement down.

Evidence was also brought out at the inquest that there had been a fight at

ATTENDANCE LOW IN CO. SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Survey Shows That Less Than One Out Of Ten Are Regular Attendants

The Transylvania Sunday school revival and enlargement campaign in the Baptist churches came to a close last Saturday with a special meeting in the Brevard Baptist church.

The meeting was presided over by State Secretary L. L. Morgan, who spoke interestingly on the plans for the Sunday school work for the next year. Associational Superintendent N. L. Ponder and group superintendents, D. H. Orr, E. R. Bishop, T. C. Henderson and E. Carl Allison spoke on the program as planned for the coming associational year.

Some interesting figures were obtained by the workers in the nineteen churches of the association. The average attendance of classes meeting with the workers for instruction was above 700. Average attendance for Sunday schools in Baptist churches for the past year was 552 for the nineteen churches listed in the work. The Sunday school enrollment for these churches was 1522, with a resident church membership of 1294. The possibilities, that is the number the school should serve, total 5638. The unsaved non-church members number 1696.

Nearly all the Sunday schools of these nineteen churches were graded last summer and reorganized, putting in more officers and teachers to take care of the possible enlargement.

The workers left a large task for the Sunday school and a follow-up plan to reach the possibilities. The workers left Sunday afternoon for the Carolina Association in Henderson county.

The next meeting of the Transylvania Sunday school association will be held in Brevard on the first Sunday in September, at 2:30 p. m.

Many Local Pupils Registered For College Term

Indications are that the number of local students and those from nearby communities who plan to enter Brevard College September 14th will exceed that of last year. The college will gladly welcome all eligible young people from Brevard and communities nearby. It is interesting to note how many of the local students are desiring definite training in some particular field. The college offers in addition to regular college courses which prepare its graduates to enter the junior classes of good four-year colleges, courses in agriculture, home economics, business, and music. A department of woodworking and construction is being developed.

Below is a list of local students who have indicated that they will enter Brevard in September. There will of course be others who will register. The college offices are open daily and will give prompt attention to any who may call or wish to apply for admission:

Theo Williams, Maybelle Allison, Lucian Deavor, Carl Hendricks, Oliver Hendricks, Edwin Hunt, Henry Miller, Nathan McMinn, Dorothy Dean, Merle Michael, Elsie Perry, Nell Scruggs, Elizabeth Jenkins, all of Brevard, and Dorothy Talley, Alma Talley, Boyd Meixell, Anna Meixell, of Penrose, and Buve Capps, Pisgah Forest.

Soil Erosion Work Starts Next Monday

(W. C. Maness, Ass't Agent.)

The measuring of soil conserving and soil depleting crops on all farms represented by "work sheets" will start next Monday, August 17. It is estimated that there will be in the neighborhood of 400 farms on the list.

The following men were approved by the county committee and board of directors for local supervisors, and these men will do the work: P. A. Rahn, head local supervisor; J. B. Hall, who will work in the Gloucester-Hogback communities; Robert Gravely, Eastatoe-East Fork; Otis Shipman, Brevard-Dunn's Rock; Merrimon Shuford, Little River; Lewis Meece, Cathey's Creek; Davis Woodfin, Boyd township. Any supervisor may shift from one community to another to work in case of necessity. In other words, the list above is a tentative list as to communities and may vary.

The county agent and I ask that each producer give these men full cooperation in getting this work done, in order that it may be completed as soon as possible. The producer should call the supervisors' attention to the improved farm practices in order to get the desired benefit or consideration for these practices. It is very necessary that the farmer or producer be with the supervisor when the farm is charted.

NEW ROOMS BEING ADDED IN CENTRAL CAMPUS BUILDING

New Members Added to Faculty—Music Department To Be Improved

Arrangements are proceeding for the opening of Brevard College at the beginning of its third year of operation, Monday, September 14. At the present time a force of workmen composed largely of students working under the direction of Mr. Colvard and Mr. Campbell of the college faculty is remodeling several different college buildings, which includes the painting of the president's home, a general reconditioning of the interior of Ross Hall, and the painting and remodeling of several smaller buildings. Under the direction of C. R. Sharpe and O. Ducloux, the basement of Taylor Hall is being developed as a home for thirty-two young men. The present prospect is that all available space on the campus will be reserved within the next few days. Arrangements have been made to utilize Virginia Lodge as a home for young women and likewise to give the president's home entirely over to girls and teachers. President and Mrs. Coltrane have renied the home at the corner of Caldwell and West French Broad streets which was formerly occupied by Chief Freeman.

Several new changes in the faculty have just been announced. In addition to A. J. Ranson and Mrs. Ranson as instructors and directors of physical education, President Coltrane has announced the appointment of Dr. Burt W. Loomis, formerly a professor in Limestone College, as instructor in psychology and director of the department of educational guidance. This department of guidance is a new and unusual department in junior college administration.

President Coltrane has recently announced the appointment of John B. Bennett to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Mr. McNeer. Mr. Bennett, in addition to his graduation from Wofford College in 1933, has recently received the B. D. degree from Duke University. Mr. Bennett has an unusually high scholastic record in both Wofford College and Duke University.
