BIBLE SCHOOL WILL START AT BREVARD CHURCH MONDAY

Young People of Community Invited to Attend Revival Services

Vacation Bible school for young people will start at Brevard Baptist church Monday morning at 9 o'clock and continue for two weeks, Monday through Friday.

The Rev. Yancey Elliott, pastor, and a corps of 20 or more teachers will have charge of the classes which will meet each morning at 9 o'clock for three-hour sessions, and all children of the community are invited by the pastors and church to attend.

Miss Catherine Lois Martin, of Southwest Baptist Seminary, Fort Worth, Texas, and the Rev. James Wilder, of Raleigh, together with a group of teachers and church leaders of Brevard, will have charge of the classes.

Young people of from 4 years of age through 16 are especially invited to the classes, and provisions are being made to adequately care for the 4-year-olds, as well as all departmental ages.

In connection with the Daily Vacation Bible school a youth revival will be held, with services beginning Monday evening of next week, May 24, at 8 o'clock.

The Rev. James Wilder, who will enter the Baptist Seminary at Louisville this fall, will be in charge of the youth revival services, and Miss Martin will have charge of the music.

This series of services is exclusively for young people, the Rev. Mr. Elliott announces, with all young unmarried people urged to attend. Special services to which older people are to be invited will be announced later.

"We are trying to reach the young unmarried people of the community through this special series of services," Mr. Elliott said in announcing the services. "and while we expect the parents to take enough interest in the services to the extent of urging young people with whom they come in contact to attend, we do not think it advisable to have the older group in this special series of services."

Both the Rev. Mr. Wilder and Miss Martin are experienced in young people's work, the pastor said, and with the excellent corps of teachers which the local church affords, a successful Bible school is looked forward to, as well as the special series of services in the evening for the young people.

Fresh Paint Big Aid To Uptown Business

Application of fresh paint to business fronts in the uptown section is adding materially to improved appearances in Brevard.

Galloway's cafe went in for something fancy and used silver and olive gray very effectively, while the Main street and Broad street A & P stores each used a bright red.

Ordinarily black paint is a rather doleful thing to use on a building but three grocers on East Main street seem to have used it to good advantage. Waters' Market used black and red to decorate their front; the Buy-Rite used black, white and red; and the Turner Williams grocery used cream and black. Whether one likes the color of black or no—the new paint is better than the old.

Seventy-two visitors registered during the reception hours of 4 to 6, and others who were unable to be present sent donations for the hospital. A special feature of interest was the presence of 20 babies and children who were born in the hospital. Those interested in seeing the equipment and the patients' rooms were directed over the building by the nurses. Ice cream cups for the children and fruit punch and cookies for the older ones were served during the afternoon. Frady Inquest Will Be Completed Soon

Inquest in the matter of the death of Bennie Lee Frady, who died early on the morning of April 24, after having been struck by an automobile, will be completed sometime this week, according to Coroner John S. Kilpatrick.

The young man died after an automobile driven by Harry Pickelstimer, struck him as he was lying in the highway near Penrose. Mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of the 16-year-old boy caused Coroner Kilpatrick and Sheriff George Shuford to delay the inquest until investigation as to cause of the young man's lying in the road at an early hour in the morning could be conducted.

The young lad's stomach was sent to a chemist at State College, Raleigh, for examination, and the report came back Tuesday to the effect that there was no trace of either liquor or poison in the stomach.

Appearances of the boy's vital organs were such as to lead doctors to believe that he was struck by more than one car.

The car was placed on the sidetrack at Pisgah Forest station and the 270 cans of fingerling fish transferred to the pools where they will very probably remain until next spring when they are destined to be turned loose in the streams of the forest.

T. K. Chamberlain, of Brevard, fish culturist, was in charge of the transfer, using several of the CCC trucks from P-66, and having members of the camp and forestry workers to assist him in the transfer.

Two hundred cans contained rainbow trout, and 70 were filled with brook or speckled. The fingerlings were of a large size, and should be good-sized healthy fellows by next spring after being cared for at the modern rearing station on Davidson River until next spring.
