Auctioneer Hammer Will Be Averted If Friends of Church Rally To Its Support Now

Members of the Brevard Methodist church are making a valiant effort to ave the church property from the auctioneer's hammer.

Arrangements have been made by the pastor, the Rev. J. H. Brendall, by which part of the indebtedness on the church property will be taken care of through the church conference provided a sum of money equal to the amount put up by the conference is raised. Several years ago an expansion program was begun by the church body, with additions to the church, and a nice new, and modern parsonage was built. Both building projects were regarded as necessary and highly essential to progress of the church, and an Indebtedness of better than $12,000 was incurred.

Some money has been paid on the aebt, which now stands in the neighborhood of $10,000, including interests and carrying charges, and it is to liquidate this sum that the officials and members of the congregation are work-

Plan is to end the obligation for once and for all, provided co-operation (and cash) from members and friends of the church is to be had.
