REPLANTING TREES ARE NOW AVAILABLE

N. C. State Nursery Will Furnish Seedlings at Nominal Cost To Farm Owners

E. R. Galloway, County Forest Warden at Rosman, announces that for the fall of 1937 and spring of 1938 two and a half million forest tree seedlings are available at the State Forest Nursery near Clayton, N. C., which is operated by the Forestry Division of the Department of Conservation and Development.

The county warden urges that those who are interested in forest tree planting make their plans now to apply for the planting stock. Applications and announcements of the terms of distribution are available at the District Forester's office at Asheville, N. C., or from the State Forester at Raleigh, N. C. The applications are filled in the order they are received until the supply is exhausted. In past years the supply of trees has not been equal to the demand.

Plans are under way to double the capacity of the State Forest Nursery for next year so that 5 million trees will be available for the fall 1938 and spring 1939.

The species of trees now growing at the nursery consist of loblolly or old field pine, longleaf pine, shortleaf pine, black locust, white ash and slash pine. The slash pine is not a native tree of North Carolina and its planting is recommended only in an experimental way in most of the counties of the state.

Over 215 million forest trees were planted in the United States last year on Federal Forest land and the southeastern States distributed 56 million trees to private individuals from State nurseries.

Something To Be Thankful For

Glasses for Children Goal of Commission

Effort will be made within the next few days to secure glasses for indigent school children, with all organized clubs of the community, and individuals cooperating in the movement.

Through the State Blind Commission, arrangements have been made whereby treatment of eyes and glasses may be obtained at a very small cost for those who are unable to pay, and such fine results were obtained last year from a similar movement that the work will again be started in the county with a view to treating around fifty children, and securing glasses for them.

For the cases who are unable to pay, Dr. W. E. Brackett of Hendersonville gives his time, and through the state, glasses are secured for a charge of three dollars. Last year, individuals and clubs banded together and secured glasses for 34 children whose parents were unable to take care of the costs.

Mrs. Madeline P. McCrary, field supervisor for the state commission, was in Brevard Tuesday, and conferred with leaders of the clubs, and the health unit, looking toward repeating the work.

Announcements as to dates for the clinic and other data will be made through the office of Mrs. C. Y. Patton, later.

RED CROSS

Annual Red Cross Roll Call for Transylvania county has been started and response reported by Jerry Jerome, roll chairman, is very good.

Later starting than usual, numerous calls have been made at the office of Mr. Jerome and at the Times office for membership cards, and it is believed that when work of canvassing gets fully underway that the goal of two hundred members will be reached within the next week.

Schools, church leaders, and others as usual, will assist in the work of canvassing, and the work of contacting prospective members will take but a short period.

While the American Red Cross operates on a world-wide scope, yet the local community work is carried on by the chapters in the various communities.

In Transylvania county last year, funds were available for aiding in the health work, for purchasing supplies for the first aid kits in the schools of the county, and other aid rendered to the lunch room project.

The American Red Cross was called upon to give assistance to victims following 128 disasters this past year. Millions of persons were aided when no other assistance was available.

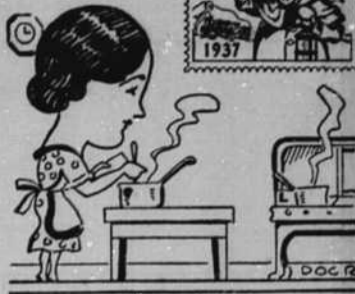

Public health nurses working for the Red Cross made over a million visits to the sick and needy families, and 257,000 persons were trained to give first aid to injured, as well as 81,000 in life saving.

Maintenance of 1,779 first aid stations along highways of the nation is another phase of the work that was instituted during the past year as a part of the service which the Red Cross renders.

Biggest single piece of humanitarian work done by the Red Cross during 1937 was rescue aid to 1,062,000 persons, from quickly setup offices in 328 counties of the flooded area. A total of $25,429,465 was expended by the Red Cross for this particular relief work alone.

Bank-By-Mail Added at Transylvania Trust

Hugh Sowers, president of the Transylvania Trust Co. announces that the bank has inaugurated the "Bank-By-Mail" system for the convenience of its out of town customers. It is possible now for the most remote customer of the local financial institution to make deposits in the simplest possible way with the convenient, new, and simple combination Deposit-By-Mail envelope.

The new system is most simple in its working. The front of the envelope carries the address of the bank, while on the back flap is provided space for the name and address of the sender or customer. On the left or envelope part of the inside appears a complete deposit ticket on which the customer is to fill out as if he were making a deposit in the bank. On the inside of the flap are printed in the most clear manner instructions for using the system, and an official receipt for the customer to be detached by the bank and returned to the customer with a new envelope for the next deposit.

Mr. Sowers states that it makes every mail box a handy deposit branch of the bank—open at all hours—with safe, inexpensive and sure messenger service always in action. To make a deposit all the customer needs to do is fill out the deposit slip on the envelope pocket, endorse checks as specified, enclose them in the envelope, write the name and address on the back of the flap, seal, stamp and mail.

The deposit will be credited as soon as received. The deposit receipt will be returned by mail, and it will be impossible for the bank to make an error for the customer has written his own name and address.

Many banks are using this simple method for the convenience of its customers. Much time, effort and cost is saved by making routine deposits through the nearest mail box. After all, it is just as logical to mail checks to the bank for credit as it is to pay bills by sending checks in the mail, the bank official says. Currency may also be included in the deposit, but for the protection of the customer, the envelope should be registered in such cases.

The Transylvania Trust Company adopted this new and modern system for the convenience of its many customers who are scattered throughout a wide area in Western North Carolina. Then, too, it makes it possible for those who have not had a bank account to receive the same accommodations as the person living next door to the bank, although he may live in the most remote section.

Mr. Sowers states that naturally the bank officials are glad for customers to call in person when possible, but when found inconvenient or impossible to make deposits in person they will be pleased with the ease and security they can do their banking by mail.
